AFTERMATH OF A FIRE

A fire, which fire officials said was started by gasoline leaking from this charred 1957 model Chevrolet and ignited by a water heater in the garage, caused $25,000 in damage yesterday afternoon to this residence and its contents at 176 Montego Key in Bel Marin Keys. The blaze, to which the Novato Fire Department responded at 4:07 p.m., was under control in two hours. It destroyed most of the roof of the garage and the attached house. The home, owned by William Harkness, also of Bel Barin Keys, is occupied by Thomas Dougherty and Alice Jones. An adjoining house sustained roof damage estimated at $500.

Arafat Calls For Creation Of New Palestinian State

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Palestinian Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat, in an unprecedented appearance before the United Nations General Assembly, called today for creation of a Palestinian state in which Moslems, Jews and Christians could live in peace.

Security precautions at the United Nations were the greatest in history of the organization. Arafat, under death threat by the militant Jewish Defense League, was flown to the U.N. compound from Kennedy airport in a U.S. army helicopter and he was living in the U.N.'s 38-floor glass secretariat building which had been turned into a fortress.

Arafat, his hands over his head in a victory salute, received a standing ovation when he finished his 92 minute speech. Several delegations including the U.S. neither stood nor applauded. U.S. Ambassador John Scali sat impassively through the speech while Arafat was interrupted by applause half a dozen times.

Outside U.N. headquarters, rival pro-Arab and pro-Israel groups demonstrated while hundreds of police tried to keep them four blocks apart. The Arabs, many in traditional headdresses, chanted "Welcome! Welcome PLO" and "Palestine yes —Israel no." Despite the precautions, there were a few scuffles.

The New York Fire Department said it had received two tepehone calls that bombs had been placed at the U.N. but they turned out to be hoaxes.

The Israel delegation, which has called Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization a group of murderers and assassins, boycotted today's session. The Israeli government warned that U.N. permission for the militant Arafat to address the assembly would mean an end to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's peace efforts in the Middle East.

"I have come bearing an olive branch and a freedom fighter's gun," he said in a speech delivered in Arabic and translated simultaneously by U.N. interpreters. "War starts in Palestine and peace starts in Palestine."

Arafat warned Israel and Zionism that Israel's present course would lead to continued bloodshed and continued war. He said the Palestine Revolution was not based on race or religion and "I announce here that we do not wish the sheddings of one drop of either Arab or Jewish blood."

"In this respect, our revolution is also a revolution for the Jew," he said. "We struggle so the Jews, Christians and Moslems may live in equality of rights and obligations without discrimination."

Arafat received a standing ovation when he appeared before the assembly wearing his black and white checked Arab headdress and his customary khaki uniform. The seats of the Israeli delegation in the front row were empty.

His visit to New York will be brief. The Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said he will fly to Havana tomorrow for talks with Premier Fidel Castro and go to Moscow later in the month for consultations with Soviet Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Arafat said in the text that the PLO will demand the following three objectives at this juncture:

Self determination for the Palestininan people.

Wornum's Hold Out Plan Is Jolted

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — Assemblyman-elect Michael Wornum may find himself out of office before he is even sworn in if he insists on waiting until January to take his seat in the Capitol, according to an opinion by the legislature's lawyer.

If Wornum fails to take his seat next month, the governor may be required by the state constitution to declare it vacant and call a special election to fill the slot for the next two years, the opinion states.

Wornum has declared his intention to try to control appointment of his successor on the Marin County Board of Supervisors by refusing to take office when the new legislative session begins Dec. 2. Instead, he would wait until January when the governorship transfers from Republican Ronald Reagan to Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Wornum is a Democrat, and his term on the county board will be filled for its remaining two years by a gubernatorial appointee.

The possible legal peril to Wornum came to light in a previously undisclosed opinion by legislative counsel George H. Murphy. Dated July 29, it was addressed to Assemblyman John F. Dunlap, D-Vallejo, who asked if someone elected to the legislature may delay taking his oath of office until after Jan. 6.

The Independent-Journal previously reported that an attorney general opinion was due on the issue, but this report apparently stemmed from rumors about Murphy's opinion.

Capitol sources said yesterday that apparently no opinion has been requested from the attorney general, whose word generally carries more legal weight than Murphy's.

The Murphy opinion said there was nothing to prevent or penalize a newly elected legislator delaying his taking office.

But it added that "it is probable, however, than on and after Dec. 2, 1974, his office would be construed as vacant, and the governor would be required by the constitution to call a special election to fill such vacancy."

Murphy quoted directly from the constitutional provision that on the opening day of the session "the members-elect shall present their certificates, take the constitutional oath of office and assume their seats."

The constitution, however, also provides that members-elect "who do not take the office at the assembling of the Legislature may take the oath at any time during the term for which they were elected," Murphy noted.

This would be moot, however, if Wornum took his seat late and the governor called a special election first.

"If the office is not assumed (on Dec. 2), it could be considered to be vacant and we think it is possible that such a vacancy, resulting from refusal to take the oath, would be construed to be a vacancy within the meaning of subdivision (d) of Section 2 of Article IV of the California Constitution, which requires the governor immediately to call a special election to fill that vacancy," Murphy wrote.

"There is a possibility," he concluded, that in such a case "the governor would be justified in considering the office to be vacant, and in calling a special election to fill that vacancy."

Wornum is vacationing out of state, but a spokesman for him said the opinion would be studied for its impact on Wornum's plans. If the opinion appears valid, Wornum may have to be sworn in Dec. 2, the spokesman said.

Strings Attached To Housing Funds

By JEFF GREER

Marin County and its 11 cities face a sort of polygamous shotgun wedding, if there is to be any major sharing in rich federal housing and development funds next year, two housing officials warned a Marin audience yesterday.

The reason is that the new federal Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, earmarks 80 per cent of its $11.2 billion, three-year spending program for urban areas.

Marin County lies within the San Francisco-Oakland metropolitan area, and hence partly qualifies. The catch is that the new law allows the federal Housing and Urban Development office to open wide the money faucet only to political agencies representing 200,000 or more population.

Thus, Marin and almost every one of its cities must agree to a mutual contract in order to apply for block grants, according to Julian Fitzhugh of HUD. He and fellow HUD official Steven Sachs spoke yesterday to 50 persons at a public information meeting sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Central Marin at Pilgim Park in San Rafael.

A potential total of $8 million for Marin County housing and community development is at stake. Should any cities other than the smallest — Ross, Tiburon and Belvedere — balk at the proposed cooperation, the remaining cities and the county couldn't muster the necessary 200,000 population to qualify for full-scale funding as an "urban county," Fitzhugh said.

President Gerald Ford signed the new housing act in August; it contains a sweeping reorganization of the way HUD will dole out funds to what used to be nine separate programs for low-cost housing, leased housing, upgrading utilities, urban redevelopment and other programs.

Under the new scheme, Sachs explained, qualified agencies such as an "urban county" may apply annually for a single block grant to finance all its varied programs. Sanitation districts and other agencies that formerly received some HUD funds for such things as new sewage facilities will have to rely on the Environmental Protection Agency or other federal funding sources, he added.

The actual allocation of $2.5 billion for fiscal year 1975 hasn't yet been approved, Sachs reported. He said the lame duck Congress is expected to act on the funding bill soon.

The money will be divided

Freeze Extended In San Anselmo

San Anselmo's moratorium on new housing last night was extended to Oct. 10, 1975, for any development that may conflict with the city's still-formative new general plan. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 25.)

The vote was 4-1 as Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro unsuccessfully fought to have the freeze extended only six months.

Other councilmen, particularly Pieter Toal, expressed doubts about extending the freeze for a year, but said they were willing to wait if City Administrator Alan Bruce will keep a tight rein on the timetable set for consultant Albert Solnit to complete the general plan.

Actually, not all building is banned. City Atty. Hadden W. Roth explained to questioners in the audience. Single residential lots in areas not likely to be wanted for open space are eligible for building permits under the new "conflict zoning" ordinance.

The council last night reviewed a report by Bruce on the timetable for Solnit's work in hammering out the general plan according to policies of the council and city planning commission.

Bruce said Solnit will meet with the planning commission Tuesday to confirm what he perceives as policies the city wants for its general plan. The administrator said that next month he will prepare a "critical path schedule" for the rest of Solnit's work, to have it done by next October.

Agreement Is Said Near On Coal Mine Contract

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Negotiators for the nation's 120,000 soft coal miners today presented counterproposals to an industry settlement offer. The two sides were "very close" to agreement, a union spokesman said.

The bargaining session, which began 90 minutes late to allow the union time to study the industry offer proposed late yesterday, recessed at 12:15 p.m. (EST) to allow negatiators repesenting 80 coal mining companies an opportunity to study the union counterproposals.

Harry Patrick, secretary-treasurer of the union, said the two sides were "very close" to a final agreement.

The industry contract offer sparked optimism from both sides that a tentative settlement may be near and the miners would be back at their jobs before Thanksgiving.

The coal industry said it offered the United Mine Workers' bargainers a "complete, total package ... that could settle the contract."

Guy Farmer, chief negotiator of the Bituminous Coal Operators of America, said the package was offered as "a super human effort to make this agreement." He said it was possible the miners would accept "at almost any time."

Union President Arnold Miller began studying the new offer at 9 a.m. EST.

Patrick told reporters early today that he was "very, very optimistic that we can wrap this thing up very, very soon."

The strike by soft coal miners in 25 states, which officially began at midnight Monday, claimed its first large-scale layoffs in related industries yesterday when 13,700 U.S. Steel Co. employees were told they are temporarily out of work. The firm announced a 25 per cent production cutback.

More than 1,000 railroad workers had already been laid

Tax Boost Causes A Run On Gasoline

LONDON (UPI) — British motorists drained gasoline stations dry today in a panic rush to fill up their tanks before a new tax hike boosts the price by up to 15 per cent next Monday.

Bagman Testifies Making $217,000 In Hush Payoffs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former New York policeman Anthony P. Ulasewicz testified today that he made a total of $217,000 in payments for the original Watergate defendants in bags deposited in airport lockers and telephone booths.

Ulasewicz, 55, talking fast in a Bronx accent, repeated for the Watergate cover-up jury the same colorful story he had given to the Senate Watergate hearings in 1973.

Describing his job as that of a "messenger" or "delivery boy," he said he used fictitious names, dealt only in cash and made all of his telephone contacts on pay phones.

"At the outset, I carried the coins around in a small box, but all of that change could wear out your pocket," he said. "Later on, I got myself one of those bus driver coin changers, I could very quick then feed them into the phone."

The coin changer was introduced as evidence in the trial of five associates of former President Richard M. Nixon charged with conspiring to cover-up the Watergate scandal.

Ulasewicz said he was contacted for the job on June 28 or 29, 1972, less than two weeks after the Watergate bugging arrests, by Nixon's personal lawyer Herbert W. Kalmbach, who had testified yesterday.

Kalmbach, Ulasewicz and Frederick LaRue, who was expected to testify later today, have been named as unindicted co-conspirators in the case.

From then until Sept. 19, 1972, he said, he delivered a total of $217,000, most of it to the wife of E. Howard Hunt Jr., one of the masterminds of the Watergate break-in.

Ulasewicz said he delivered the first $25,000 to William O. Bittman, Hunt's attorney, by going to a supermarket, buying a brown envelope, putting the cash in it and leaving it lying on a shelf near a phone booth.

Other payments were placed in an airline bag or a brown paper bag, put in a locker at Washington's National Airport and the key to the locker was taped under a prearranged phone booth, he said.

Rockefeller Defends His Gifts In Testimony Before Senators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller defended his multimillion dollar generosity today as "the most natural thing in the world" but apologized profusely for his role in backing a book derogatory of a political foe.

Appearing at a nationally televised reopening of the Senate Rules Committee's hearing into his nomination, Rockefeller amplified on his defense of $2.5 million worth of gifts and loans and his explanations behind a critical biography of Arthur J. Goldberg, his 1970 Democratic opponent for the New York governorship.

Rockefeller appeared to be ill at ease. He stumbled over words in his 33-page prepared statement and frequently had to restart reading sentences.

Rockefeller admitted under questioning that his first explanation issued after word of his family's involvement in the Goldberg biography was wrong.

He said the statement he issued was based on his incomplete recollections of "15 minutes in the middle of a long campaign" and the equally incomplete memories of his brother, Laurance, who put up $60,000 to help publish the book.

"This is so unbelievable —the whole thing —that it is pathetic," he said when asked how both brothers' memories could have been faulty.

"If I was trying to make up a story I wouldn't have indicted my brother who I love very dearly."

Rockefeller was accompanied to the hearing in the ornate Senate caucus room by his wife, Happy, who was smiling and relaxed after her recent operation for breast cancer. Also seated behind the witness was Nancy Kissinger, wife of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger who was employed by Rockefeller on the staff of his Commission on Critical Choices for America.

Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., charged there had been an "elaborate scheme to launder the Rockefeller money" invested in the Goldberg book. A corporation was created to publish the volume.

"Not the money, the Rockefeller name," Rockefeller shot

SEEKS SAFETY — Patrolman Patrick Feeney of the special services force of the police department sought refuge behind a trash can yesterday when a rock and bottle-throwing disturbance broke out at a Chicago high school. Twelve policemen were injured in the melee and 27 persons arrested.

12 Police Hurt In School Fracas

Police said 27 persons were arrested during the disorders.

Authorities said the disturbance apparently stemmed from a controversy over the activities of a Puerto Rican political club at the Roberto Clemente School and the reassignment of three teachers, including the club sponsor.

Those injured in the disturbance included Deputy Police Supt. Walter Vallee, who was treated for glass in his left eye. One policeman was hospitalized for observation of a back injury. The others injured were treated and released.

Some parents and 12 members of the school's student council organized the walkout to protest alleged interference with studies by the club, which supports independence for Puerto Rico.

Dorothy Maeda, 51, charged that the club was pressuring students to buy tickets for political rallies and "brainwashing them."

A Chicago Board of Education spokesman said about 300 to 400 students walked out of school before noon.

The rocks and bottles began to fly shortly after the walkout, but there was no report of what touched off the disturbances, which raged for six hours.

Classes continued despite the disorders surrounding the school.

About 30 other members of the community gathered at school board offices to protest the reassignment of teachers, including Carmen Valentin, sponsor of the Puerto Rican political group.

Miss Valentin met with Associate School Superintendent Dr. Angeline Caruso and she was ordered to report to Senn High School today. She said she did not intend to comply with the order.

U.N. Ouster Of South Africa Hailed By Black-Led Nations

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Black-led African nations today applauded the ouster of South Africa from the U.N. General Assembly, but the Pretoria government recalled its ambassador and cut off its contributions to the world body.

Prime Minister John Voster said in Johannesburg that "South Africa will decide in her own time what the next step will be.

"The decision is an example of how the United Nations manages to circumvent its own manifesto to perpetrate an illegal action," Voster said.

Voster said South Africa would immediately stop its annual payments of about $1 million and had recalled its ambassador indefinitely.

The 91-22 decision to deprive the white supremacist South African regime of its rights and privileges for the session which ends Dec. 17 was without precedent in the United Nations, 29-year history.

Delegates from Africa's black-ruled nations who fought to exclude South Africa because of its police of racial separatism — apartheid — led the applause and cheering in the assembly hall last night when the decision was announced.

South African Ambassador Roelof Botha, however, called the suspension "an act of desperation, not of hope. Whatever you do, I say to you you cannot suspend our policy our ideals, our place in this world."

The United States, Britain and a number of Western European and South American countries criticized South Africa's apartheid policies, but voted against suspension. Nineteen countries abstained from voting.

The United States, Britain and France last month vetoed an attempt in the Security Council to expel South Africa from the United Nations.

The assembly vote bars South Africa from taking its seat, speaking or voting in the assembly, but does not oust it from the world body.

The seats of the South African delegation were empty at the time of the vote. The country has not participated in an assembly session since the world body voted Sept. 30 against accepting the delegate's credentials.

The spokesman for the black African nations, Salim A. Salim, said during the debate that the Security Council attempt to expel South Africa "demonstrated the universal condemnation of the apartheid regime and its practices.

"Not a single member state has raised a voice in favor of that regime, even those who misuse their responsibility under the charter and cast their vetoes against the explusion of that regime have condemned it and its practices of apartheid."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Resignation Is Accepted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has accepted the resignation of the government's highest ranking black woman, Barbara Watson, from a political patronage job she was appointed to by Lyndon B. Johnson and survived in through the Nixon administration.

Watson

Her resignation, formally submitted with those of other officials when Ford became president in August, was accepted yesterday and is effective Dec. 31.

Miss Watson, head of the U.S. State Department Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs, has been a cause celebre among civil rights leaders and black members of Congress.

The Nixon administration tried to replace her but was stymied by pressure from the congressional black caucus.

Nome Storm

NOME, Alaska (UPI) — A Bering Sea storm which wiped out a seawall and flooded the main street of Nome turned northward today, threatening small towns and villages near the Arctic Circle.

The storm roared into Nome from the Bering Sea Monday, and yesterday was declared a disaster area by Gov. William Egan.

Release Seen

LONG BEACH (UPI) — If Richard Nixon's lung problems clear up, he will be sent home to San Clemente later this week, Dr. John Lungren said yesterday.

The former President still faces examination by court-appointed doctors to see whether he can testify in the Watergate cover-up trial.

But Lungren said yesterday Nixon's blood pressure goes up if subjected to "even minor stress."

Search Launched

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard has launched a worldwide search for the seventh Earl of Lucan, a playboy nobleman wanted for the beating death of his children's nurse and the attempted murder of his estranged wife.

The earl vanished last week after the murder of Sandra Revitt, 29. Scotland Yard also charged Lucan with the attempted murder of Lady Lucan, 35, who staggered bleeding from her home.

Tained Salt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A consumer group and a trade association today accused the government of allowing the sale of food grade salt that may be contaminated with asbestos particles.

The Federal Drug Administration on Oct. 23 allowed chemical companies that manufacture chlorine to sell the salt left over from the process as food grade salt. It is not known whether any such salt has actually reached the market.

The Salt Institute and the Maryland Public Interest Research Group, a Ralph Nader-organized student group, urged the Food and Drug Administration to reverse the sales.

Letter Bomb

BELFAST (UPI) — A letter bomb blew up in the face of a young secretary in a government office today and British soldiers warned the bomb might mark the start of a new wave of religious violence in Northern Ireland.

Police said the secretary was hospitalized with serious injuries to her face and hands.

Brief Strikes

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Communications, transport and postal workers staged brief strikes across Israel today to protest the government's tough economic austerity program that has sparked three nights of rioting in Tel Aviv slums.

Ground crews at all the nation's airports walked off their jobs this morning, halting all incoming and outgoing traffic for more than an hour, the national radio said.

Glamor Girls End Their Social Exile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Glamor girls Lee Radziwill and Barbara Howar made the social scene at the White House last night after years of exile.

At a dinner honoring Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, President Ford also brought back to the fold Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, whom Ford, as House Republican leader, had tried to impeach.

Asked later if he harbored any grude against Ford, Douglas said: "No, no, no."

Mrs. Howar, a Washington socialite and author, was once friendly with the Lyndon B. Johnsons, but had a falling out with them and had not been to the White House since.

"It's been eight years since Douglas and I were booted out of the social register," she said sipping a glass of champagne. She was the date of UPI White House reporter Richard Growald.

Princess Radziwill, sister of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, said she had "nostalgic memories" of the family quarters. Asked if she were surprised to have a White House invitation, (her date was architect Philip Johnson of New York), the princess replied: "I'm not surprised by anything."

Thin as a French model, she was wearing a pale pink backless gown with a beaded bodice.

When Secretary of State Henry Kissinger spotted Mrs. Howar, whom he once dated, he rolled his eyes heavenward and quipped: "What is this house coming to?"

And the beaming Ms. Howar asked Nancy Kissinger: "Are you pregnant?" "Absolutely not," replied Mrs. Kissinger, a former New York socialite.

Savings League Hears Loan Plea

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The board chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank yesterday urged the nation's top savings and loan executives to make more mortgage loans because "homebuyers need you more now than at any time in a generation."

"We encourage you to make all the mortgage loans you reasonably can, even if you have to take a little longer to rebuild your balance sheets," Thomas Bomar told the 82nd convention of the U.S. League of Savings Associations.

He said the board would work for less government regulation of the savings and loan industry and predicted a freer money market that would ease the nation's money ills.

Vulgarity Off The Books

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California has revised its law relating to disturbing the peace, replacing one that has been on the books since 1872.

The new law goes into effect on Jan. 1, 1975, and defines disturbing the peace as fighting or challenging to fight, maliciously and willfully disturbing another person and using in public offensive words likely to produce violence.

A provision in the old law which made it a crime to use vulgar, profane or indecent language in a loud and boisterous manner before women or children was eliminated.

Newspaper, Mail Strikes Hit France

PARIS (UPI) — Wildcat strikes shut down newspapers in France and crippled mail service again today, stepping up pressure on the government to modify its stringent austerity program.

The country's two major labor organizations called for a one-day general strike next Tuesday, saying the government refused to negotiate pay raises to keep up with an annual 16 per cent inflation rate.

The strikes threatened to turn into a crucial test of strength between the five-month-old regime of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and the powerful Communist party and left-wing trade unions.

The four-week-old postal strike continued and railroad unions met to decide whether to strike again as they did last week.

Organizers of the strikes, the Communist-dominated General Labor Confederation and the French Confederation of Democratic Labor, yesterday called for a general strike in all public and private industries.

The labor unions want to dramatize their demands for job guarantees, higher wages and pensions, lowering of the retirement age from 65 to 60, better protection of immigrant workers and broader trade union rights.

The strikes are expected to expand tomorrow to include the state-operated electric power and gas services.

2,000 Flee Fire In LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some 2,000 employees in a 15-story Century City office building fled to safety as a fire broke out on the eighth-floor, sending thick, choking smoke swirling through the building. Masked firemen hauled 100-pound hose packs up the stairs to fight the blaze while three fire department helicopters hovered overhead, searching for people initially believed trapped on upper floors.

Sonoma Activists Protest Rocky

In a scene reminiscent of the activist 1960s, several hundred Sonoma State College students yesterday gathered on a campus lawn to protest the proposed elevation of Nelson Rockefeller to the vice presidency.

Adding to the nostalgic air were a half-dozen students carrying placards and banners ranging from a prosaic "Smash U.S. Imperialism — Dump Rocky" to a more allegorical "Sink The U.S.S. Rockefeller."

The protest, apparently the first on the Rohnert Park campus since 1971, was sponsored by a student group called the Peoples Liberation Collective.

According to a flyer the organization intends to "unite all revolutionary antiimperialists on campus and in the community to support the struggles of oppressed peoples in the U.S. and oppressed nations (third world) around the world."

Despite the ardor of the rhetoric, things remained cool at the rally as students patiently conversed, munched vegetarian lunches or snoozed while awaiting the arrival of Leonard Weinglass, a lawyer who defended radical clients in the climactic days of the New Left.

Although the attorney was billed as the rally's featured speaker, he didn't show up and his place was taken by a guerrilla theater troupe which "convicted" the former New York governor of "murder and negligence" in a kangaroo court.

Rockefeller's main offense, the actors said, was failing to intervene in the Sept. 1971 Attica prison revolt in which 39 persons were killed.

Ramona Ripston, a member of the National Lawyers Guild, told the assembled Sonomans Rockefeller was unfit for high office because he habitually uses his money and influence to corrupt the political process.

Burton Suggests Forced Saving Plan For High-Income Persons

Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District, yesterday suggested the government consider requiring high-income persons to save a portion of their income.

Such a program would be an alternative to the Ford administration's proposed 5 per cent income tax surcharge, Burton told political science students at the College of Marin.

The mandatory savings program, perhaps starting with incomes $25,000 to $30,000, would do just as much as a surcharge in withdrawing money from circulation to cool inflation, Burton said. Unlike the surcharge, however, it would provide for return of the money to the taxpayer, he noted, adding "it's got to be a better deal for the people."

Acknowledging that so far he was only "talking about the concept," Burton said the program could require high-income persons to use 5 per cent of their income above a certain amount to buy government coupons that would be redeemable after some period of time. He said he had not studied the idea enough to know whether the coupons would bear interest.

Burton credited the suggestion to Terrence V. McGuire of San Rafael, who opposed him on the ballot in the June primary election, and to a San Francisco tax attorney. He said he will have it reviewed by economists when he returns to Washington next week.

The plan, Burton said, would be "forced savings as opposed to forced taxes."

Money collected under the plan, he said, could finance government programs, perhaps including housing.

On other issues, Burton said last week's Democratic victories across the nation were not because of strong voter support of the party, but instead was "a rejection of Nixon, Ford and, in this state, Reagan."

The congressman criticized President Ford for suggesting that one way to fight inflation was to eat all the food on one's plate. "There are people in this country who haven't got food to put on their plates," Burton protested.

The administration's approach to solving inflation "has been to cure inflation with a recession," he added. But he conceded he did not have an answer himself to the nation's economic plight. "If I did, I wouldn't be in Congress — I'd be in charge of a multimillion-dollar corporation," Burton quipped.

He predicted the economy has little chance of recovering unless a Democrat is elected president in 1976. The legislative and executive branches "have to work in concert," which is unlikely when opposing parties occupy the two branches of government, he said.

Burton observed that Ford's intellect "to date, seems less than mediocre," and that the President "never was enlightened in the Congress, and wasn't supposed to be very bright — and he hasn't disproved that yet."

Burton also predicted Congress's seniority system "soon will go out the window," but that most committee chairmen will retain their posts.

Asked to comment on speculation that Western industrial nations may seize oil-producing states in the Mideast, Burton denounced such an move as "a fantastic threat to the existence of humanity."

Two Teen-Agers Blamed For Fire

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — Two local teen-agers have been arrested on charges of setting a Nov. 9 fire which engulfed a whole city block, causing an estimated $2 million in damage and forcing the evacuation of 200 persons.

Assistant prosecutor Roger W. Breslin said one of the suspects, aged 13, admitted to two other, smaller fires.

"Apparently the kid likes fires," he said.

The Saturday blaze started at the warehouse of Krueger Brother Inc., a paper bag distributor. It was not until long after nightfall that 300 firemen brought it under control.

Breslin said a third juvenile told authorities he saw the 13-year-old suspect running into the warehouse Saturday.

The two suspects were released into the custody of their parents. They were charged with juvenile deliquency.

City Of Paris Demolition Delay Refused

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Board of Supervisors has refused to delay the demolition of the City of Paris department store on San Francisco's Union Square.

Supervisors declined yesterday to designate the structure as a city landmark — a move that would have barred demolition for 12 months.

Richard Marcus, Neiman Marcus Stores president, said his Texas firm plans to start tearing down the building in the spring and construct a new one on the site by the spring of 1977.

Refunds Pledged For Faulty Lids

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp. said yesterday it will make refunds to consumers for home canning lids that failed to seal, and will reimburse home canners for food losses.

The refunds will be on lids sold between November 1973 and August 1974.

"We have now concluded that a relatively small, but unknown quantity of lids, which were not of the quality either we or our customer expects, were inadvertently shipped to a few states," said William A. Kerr, president.

"Consistent with our history of standing behind the products that bear our name, we are preparing a program for payment direct to consumers for Kerr lids that failed to seal and for food lost as a result of such failure."

3 In Family Arrested In Drug Raid

State narcotics agents raided an apartment in San Rafael's canal area last night, arresting three members of a family on various drug counts.

Details of the arrest were unavailable today as agents of the State Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement failed to return telephone calls to their San Francisco office.

Arrested were Edward Charles Ames, 44, of 105 Canal Street, Apt. 2, said to be a recent prison parolee, and his wife, Elizabeth Mae Ames.

Ames was held in lieu of $10,000 bail on suspicion of two counts of selling heroin and one count of possessing the drug. Mrs. Ames was booked on suspicion of possessing heroin and held in lieu of $5,000. Both were scheduled to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Also arrested was the Ames's daughter, Adrienne Louise Ames, 19, on suspicion of obstructing officers. She was released on her own recognizance to appear in court Tuesday.

In a separate drug case yesterday, San Rafael police broke up what was described as "a drug ripoff" on Lincoln Avenue.

Booked on suspicion of conspiracy, assault with a deadly weapon and possessing marijuana was Manolo Antonio Gamero, 20, of 123 Canal Street, Apt. 304, San Rafael. Also arrested was Irving Frank Tompkins, 20, of 22 Park Street, San Rafael, on suspicion of conspiracy and possessing a concealed gun.

Armed with a search warrant, police said they went to Gamero's apartment last night, seized a quantity of heroin and arrested Sofia Y. Smith, also known as Sofia Vasquez, 20, on suspicion of possessing the drug.

All three were held in Marin County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear today in Municipal Court.

COAL

off and power companies and auto makers were preparing to deal with a severe coal shortage if the strike goes beyond two weeks.

Once the contract is accepted by the negotiators, it would have to be ratified by the rank-and-file miners, a process that would take between 10 days and two weeks.

Republic Steel in Cleveland also said there would be layoffs, and strike-related dismissals were announced at Norfolk and Western, Penn Central, and Cheseapeake and Ohio railroads, which haul coal.

The only report of violence yesterday came from Norton, Va., where shots were fired at UMW members picketing a nonunion mine. There were no injuries.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent ordered a close watch on soft-coal exports to make sure there is no unnoticed shipment of coal abroad.

Experts estimate a two-week strike would cost $3 billion nationwide in production losses and that a longer one could eventually put 1 million persons out of work. Unemployment now is at a three-year high of 6 per cent.

After the steel and rail industries, auto companies and public utilities would next feel the effects of the strike.

The Tennessee Valley Authority ordered voluntary cutbacks of electricity in seven Southern states: A 50 per cent cutback of street lighting, elimination of outdoor electric decorations and advertisements, reduction of commercial business hours to 60 hours a week at most and reduction of all thermostats to 65 degrees.

The New York power pool said it was planning emergency measures if a long strike deprived upstate coal-fired generators of power. Members of the pool said they had a 60-day coal reserve, but plans were made for power cutbacks to large energy users if conditions warrant.

Petaluma Transit Plan MovesAhead

Petaluma's plans for a municipal bus system became firmer last night as the city council directed staff to draw up tentative proposals for a three-vehicle system.

Vice Mayor John W. Cavangh Jr., who chaired a special council session in the absence of Mayor Helen Putnam, said the staff was directed to investigate the feasibility of a system using vehicles with capacities of 17 to 25 passengers each. Later, he said, the council will review the staff's proposals.

Cavanagh said the council has yet to make a firm decision on whether to use city-owned buses or to participate in a venture with private transit firms.

Petaluma anticipates revenue of about $130,000 a year for five years through a congressional act designed to aid local transit programs. The city has not yet decided how to spend the money.

San Rafael Man Robbed Of $6,000

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A San Rafael man, on his way to the bank, was relieved of a briefcase containing more than $6,000 yesterday by a well-dressed robber and his friend, police said today.

Mostafa Behzadpour of 740 Del Ganado Road told police he was on his way to a Chestnut Street bank with receipts from three service stations he owns. As he got out of his car on Pierce Street, he said a man wearing a dark suit and in his early 30s asked him for change.

As Behzadpour reached into his pocket, another man came up behind him with his hand inside his jacket, as if he was holding a weapon.

Behzadpour turned over the briefcase full of receipts.

Both men were described as black, with the second one in his late 20s. The first was six feet tall, Behzadpour said, and the second, six feet four inches.

Additional Boat Slips Approved

Sausalito planning commissioners last night approved the addition of 135 boat slips at the Sausalito Yacht Harbor, 65 less than requested by owner Herb Madden.

They said the 200 slips sought by Madden for the downtown marina, which presently contains 425 berths, would generate too much traffic along Bridgeway, which already is congested, according to assistant planner Jerry Cormack. Madden must provide 45 parking spaces for cars.

Plans by Madden call for the berths to be built by extending four short piers at the northeast corner of the harbor, in the area of Johnson and Dolphin streets.

Sausalito Officials Pondering Sickness

An outbreak of gastrointestinal problems in the Sausalito area has county health officials puzzled.

Health officer Carolyn Albrecht said the city's water supply has been tested "but we've found nothing to incriminate the water at this point."

Additionally, she said county sanitarians have interviewed those who have come down with the symptoms — which include diarrhea, nausea, loss of appetite and marked physical weakness. "We haven't been able to pick out any one place where they all ate or bought food or any one thing they ate," Dr. Albrecht said.

"We just can't put our finger on where it's coming from," she added.

In the last couple of months, one Sausalito physician reportedly treated 14 persons for the malady which may go away, then recur after several weeks.

"This is not an explosive outbreak," Dr. Albrecht said. "But I realize it's a heck of a nuisance for the people who have it."

The health officer said she has been in contact with state public health officials in Berkeley "to see if they have any ideas."

She said her office has learned of other cases in other areas of the county, but that it is impossible to estimate just how many people in Marin have been affected by the ailment.

Blackout Caused By Line Break

An electrical failure which left about 1,500 southern Petaluma homes without power nearly an hour Monday was caused by a fallen transmission line, according to power company officials.

A Pacific Gas and Electric Co. spokesman said a line on Lakeville Highway near Casa Grande Road burned and fell to the ground at about 3:02 p.m. The fire may have been caused by lightning, the spokesman said.

The power failure lasted until 3:55 p.m., when crews repaired the damage.

The failure, apparently preceded by a surge of power, tripped circuit breakers in many television sets, and local repair shops reported many have been brought in to have the breakers reset.

HOUSING

among the eligible areas under a complicated formula based on area population, poverty level (which will be double-weighted and hence militate against Marin, the two officials said) and housing overcrowding.

In addition, funds will be provided to continue existing programs in Marin, such as leased housing which mostly is under 10-year contract, and redevelopment and housing construction projects already in progress. This will be about $1.4 million over the next three years, Fitzhugh predicted.

The new law will encourage more landlords to open their units to low-income families, Fitzhugh predicted, because there no longer will be a maximum "line" rent, but rather a figure based on the market average in the county.

"We will issue invitations to builders to propose projects qualified for subsidy, and we'll give qualified families 'hunting licenses' that will tell the developers that they're qualified to have their rents guaranteed through the program," Fitzhugh said.

He said Marin County will learn in January how much money it will be entitled to apply for, if the cities decide "to pop out" and apply on their own for a lesser amount of so-called "discretionary funds" available under the new law.

PLO

arrival at the U.N.

"When we speak of our common hopes for the Palestine of the future," Arafat said, "we include in our aspirations all the Jews now living in Palestine and who accept to live with us in peace and without distinction or discrimination in the land of Palestine.

"In my capacity as chairman of the PLO and leader of the Palestinian revolution, I call upon on each and every Jew to reconsider the past where Zionism and Israeli leadership will lead them, namely to the abyss which ends up in continued bloodshed and continued war."

"We ask you to opt for the broad choice away from the attempts of your leadership to instill in you the spirit of Massada," said Arafat. "We offer you a most generous alternative: that we live together in a framework of a just peace in a democratic Palestine."

The moustachioed Arafat was cleanshaven today although he usually sports a five-day growth of whiskers. He is rarely seen without his dark glasses but he took them off today to read his speech in a strong, firm and calm voice.

In addition to the empty Israeli seats three seats of the South African delegation — expelled from the current U.N. session yesterday — were empty. The other three were occupied by blacks of the Somalia delegation wearing colorful tribal costumes.

"The Palestinian Revolution does not, under any circumstances, consider the Jews as enemies," Arafat said in a speech that ranged to such global problems as Cyprus and Indochina. "Our revolution is not predicated on any racial or religious basis.

TRIAL

questioned Kalmbach, who had broken into tears on the stand. Sirica said a higher court ruling gave him the right to question Kalmbach directly.

In the 1973 trial of the seven charged with the actual bugging, Sirica took over the questioning of witness Hugh Sloan. A federal Court of Appeals upheld his questioning in rejecting the appeal of G. Gordon Liddy.

"Judge Sirica's palpable search for truth in such a trial was not only permissible, it was in the highest tradition of his office as a federal judge," the decision said.

"I have a perfect right under the Liddy case to get all the facts out," Sirica said yesterday, "no matter whom it might help or hurt."

After prosecutor James F. Neal and defense lawyers finished questioning Kalmbach, Sirica excused the jury and asked Kalmbach why he did not become suspicious in the summer of 1972 when he raised $220,000, apparently for the original defendants and their legal fees.

"You knew, did you not, that this money was being used, didn't you, to hush up these people?" Sirica asked. "Didn't you hear that?"

"No, sir," said Kalmbach.

PG&E Reports Gas Cutbacks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In an effort to save the supply of natural gas, Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has curtailed the supply of gas to 236 interruptible customers in Northern and Central California.

The first cutback of the 1974-75 season began yesterday at 7 a.m., affecting industrial and commercial customers and some public institutions who were notified in advance. These customers pay a lower gas rate in return for remaining ready to switch to alternate fuels when natural gas service must be interrupted.

The curtailment will reduce PG&E natural gas deliveries by 100 million cubic feet to interruptible customers and to PG&E electric generating plants.

School Changes To Be Discussed

A meeting to discuss reorganization of schools in the Reed district will be held by district trustees today at 8 p.m. at Reedland Woods School.

Parents of students at Reedland Woods, Granada and Bel Aire schools have been invited to discuss the district's declining enrollment and what should be done about it.

A similar meeting will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Del Mar School for parents of students at Del Mar, Belvedere and Reed Schools.

Ford Is Urged To 'Seize Reins'

STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI) — President Ford must decide he is not just a member of Congress and begin performing like a President, his former news secretary said last night.

"He's going to have to seize the reins of government even though he has a natural inclination not to step forward and take charge," Jerald F. terHorst said.

"Congress is waiting to be led — despite all the rumblings — and is going to need to be, if problems facing this country are to be worked out."

Wife Claims Consummation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lady Carolyn Townshend Bronfman denied in court yesterday that her marriage to multimillionaire Edgar M. Bronfman was not consummated.

It was Lady Carolyn's first appearance at the annulment trial brought by her husband on the grounds that she failed to tell him before their marriage on Dec. 18, 1973, that she had a "hangup" about sex.

Lady Carolyn, wearing a green skirt, white blouse and tiny earrings, testified that their marriage was consummated during their honeymoon in Acapulco, Mexico, shortly after the marriage.

Shark Repeller Is Demonstrated

MIAMI (UPI) — An electronic device designed to protect swimmers against sharks and crocodiles and drive off unwanted fish species is being demonstrated at the Miami Seaquarium.

John Hicks, 37, a University of Miami-trained zoologist who invented the Hicks Electronic Shark Repeller, said the four-pound electronic device creates a 150-foot diameter shark-free "bubble" around a swimmer.

Using variable electronic frequencies, Hicks said, it has been successful in driving off crocodiles in South Africa, and in clearing Florida waterways of gar fish.

Hicks said the device is harmless to human beings, game fish and food fish.

ROCKY

back. He said it is difficult to attract investors to a project if word leaks out that the Rockefeller family is backing it.

Cannon said disclosure of Rockefeller's gifts and loans to associates had exploded what Rockefeller had called "the myth" of political power derived from his vast wealth.

But Rockefeller said the loans and gifts had gone to associates who had become close friends.

"Therefore, it was the most natural thing in the world for me to make loans when individual members of this group had personal or family problems, or serious concern as to their future ability to meet the needs of their family in their later years," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller acknowledged that his family fortune legitimately raised "the question of whether it is dangerous, too dangerous, to have a person of great personal wealth in the line of succession to the power of the presidency."

But he said he was not "the kind of man" who would use his wealth improperly.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., announced that Congress' Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation had found "no evidence of fraud or negligence" in reauditing Rockefeller's tax returns.

Rockefeller disclosed that he and his family spent $15.5 million of their own money on his four campaigns for governor and three tries for the GOP presidential nomination.

WILLIAM FLOWERS
Suffocated in grave

Hazing Rite At College Kills Youth

LONG BRANCH, N.J. (UPI) — The first black member of a college fraternity died during initiation hazing yesterday. Seven fraternity members have been charged with manslaughter.

William Flowers, 19, of Neptune, N.J., and four other pledges, were ordered to dig mock graves in sand, and had to lie down in their graves as part of the rite. Flowers suffocated when the walls of his six-foot-deep "grave" collapsed, police said.

Authorities said fraternity members tried to pull him out feet first. When that failed, they tried to dig him out with their hands, but that, too, was unsuccessful. He was dead on arrival at a hospital.

Flowers, a chemistry major, was the first black pledge of the 15-member Mormouth College chapter of Zeta Beta Tau, a national social fraternity.

Det. Capt. Michael A. Irene said the pledges were ordered to "dig their own graves" as "more or less a symbolic thing."

Five holes six feet long and six feet deep were dug on the beach near the two-story fraternity house. Police said the pledges were ordered to lie in the holes. Seven fraternity members ceremoniously sprinkled a few grains of sand over the holes.

When the walls collapsed, "someone grabbed him by his legs, leaving him head first in the hole," police said.

Jane Schonener, a spokeswoman for the college, said college policy permits initiations, but it prohibits "abusive physical or mental activities." She said it was probable that disciplinary action would be taken against the fraternity members.

College President Richard J. Stonesifer said he was concerned and called the initiation rite "nonsense."

Flowers was a transfer student from St. Peter's College in Jersey City, N.J., and entered Monmouth as a second semester chemistry major. He was a graduate of Christian Brothers Academy in Lincroft.

Those charged in Flowers' death were fraternity president Richard Pierce, 21, of Long Branch, N.J.; treasurer Howard Raff, 21, of New Brunswick, N.J.; Frank Yavarowe, 19, of Neptune, N.J.; Brian Seller, 19, of Paramus, N.J.; Cory Wilson, 19, of Oceanside, N.J.; Robert Caemerer, 19, of Allenwood, N.J., and Glen Hart, 19, of New Milford, N.J.

The seven were arraigned and ordered held in lieu of $2,500 bail. A hearing was set for Nov. 25.

54 Measles Cases Reported

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Outbreaks of measles in two Northern California communities indicate not enough youngsters are being immunized against the disease, a state health official says.

Dr. James Chin, chief of the state Health Department's Infectious Disease Section, yesterday said 54 cases of measles have been reported in Redding and a "possible similar outbreak" is being investigated in Eureka.

Chin said almost all the cases involve junior high school youth and children under five years old. He said they are being treated and the spread has been halted.

Owner Removes Store's Sugar

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — A grocery store owner is taking sugar off his shelves today in a protest of high prices.

Jack Urbaniak, owner of Jack's IGA, plans to keep his store sugarless until the prices either stabilize or drop.

"Somebody's got to do something about it. I've had it," said Urbaniak.

A MOVING PROTEST

The license plate on this auto caught the eye of a passing photographer in Portland, Ore., yesterday, and he stopped for a second look. Indeed, what he saw in the supermarket parking lot was correct. The license plate read "GASHOG." The photographer waited, but when the owner showed up, he said he didn't wish to be identified. He ordered the plates, he said, when he found out the auto used a lot of gasoline. (UPI Telephoto)

Four Answers To Energy Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Administration spelled out the policy choices for solving energy problems: produce more, consume less, do nothing, or act only in an emergency.

The FEA published yesterday a 1,000-page guide for planning "Project Independence," the drive for essential self-sufficiency in fuels by 1985.

The outgoing energy administrator, John C. Sawhill, said the report is not a plan to eliminate imports. "We do not think zero imports would be a desirable or achievable goal for United States energy policy," Sawhill said. "International considerations, domestic energy realities and economic common sense may all argue for a policy in which the United States continues to import some of its oil."

The chairman of the nation's new energy council, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton, said in a separate meeting, "The only short term tool we have in the immediate future is a cut in demand." He said it should be voluntary, through persuasion and some incentives, rather than requirements.

"There is no intent on the part of the President to implement rationing or a type of total control," Morton said.

The report assessed four major policy avenues, on the basis of world oil prices that stay high or that are cut:

Doing nothing. If oil stays at $11 a barrel, demand would increase only slightly, the FEA predicted. But it said it is more likely that oil prices will drop. If they got to around $7, demand would grow and the nation would probably need 12.4 million barrels of foreign oil every day. Half would be "insecure," so that a year-long embargo could cost the nation $205 billion.

Boosting production These include multiplying leasing, opening military reserves and speeding up nuclear licensing. "These actions, which are generally economic, could be viable at $11 world oil, but may require guarantees if oil were to be at lower prices," the report said.

Cutting demand. If oil prices stayed at $11 a barrel, conservation alone would fall short by more than 1 million barrels a day of getting free of imports, the report predicted. But if prices dropped, conservation could be expected to succeed even less and thus to require even more from the "supply side" to reach Project Independence goals.

Using only emergency measures. Because the FEA and Morton both discounted gasoline rationing this section spoke only of emergency reserves and curtailments. For example, the FEA said: "Emergency storage could be built to eliminate vulnerability to any level of insecure imports resulting from any other combination of supply and conservation actions at either price ($7 or $11.)"

Daley Is Again Quizzed On Plans

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley, who has been asked the same question time and again, was asked twice more during a news conference yesterday whether he will seek a sixth term.

The 76-year-old mayor, who underwent major surgery recently, said he is talking with doctors about it.

"Aside from the medical aspect, do you want to run for mayor again?"

"Well, I've been here 20 years and I've given the better part of my life to the people of this city," Daley said. "That's a long time to be mayor. Surely, I've never shirked my responsibility to the people of this city."

Does that mean Daley wishes to run again?

"The wish is not the involving factor," Daley said, "but sometimes the other factors and circumstances are such that you have no decision."

U.S. Economist: Eat Lean Beef, Beans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Agriculture Department economist recommends eating lean beef and beans. A supermarket chain spokesman says consumers should pray for better weather.

High food prices are attracting wide attention in Washington. The Council on Wage and Price Stability is holding a hearing today on another problem, the practice of sticking one price tag on top of another as prices go up. A major consumer group said, however, the hearing is a futile gesture that may even mislead the average shopper.

But Rhoda H. Karpatkin, executive director of Consumers Union, told the Council "You should focus instead on those causes of the price increases which can be remedied, and not on the symbols of the increases.

"You should be addressing such issues as planning, non-shelf food pricing policies, lack of competition in the market place, wasteful government regulations and wasteful advertising and packaging," she said.

If on-shelf re-pricing were banned, she said, the average shopper would probably save only pennies per week.

Clarence Adamy, president of the National Association of Food Chains, said cutting grocery store profits would not help. "Profits are a dry well," he said. "You're not going to bring down prices by cutting profits. Profits currently are only 56-100ths of a per cent — an increase of only $11 million over a year ago, in an industry bigger than coal, oil and steel."

His suggestion: "We must pray for rational crop weather next year — not good weather, just rational weather." He said changing price tags did not change things much and that costs had to be reduced.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said the best way shoppers can hold food bills down is to concentrate on a small list of products in good supply including lean beef and beans.

Yeutter said sugar prices, now at record levels, are up simply because of short supplies and very strong demand.

"The higher price level will attract additional production, but not immediately. It takes more than one year to bring in much additional production and considerably longer to provide additional processing facilities," he said.

Yeutter, like Adamy, predicted if farmers get good weather next year, they will produce record crops and shoppers will see a "real easing" of food prices. "In the first half of 1975, for example, we see good supplies of staple commodities — wheat, rice, dry beans and potatoes. Homemakers should make as much use of these items as possible.

"Processed tomato products will be in good supply and you might focus on those instead of food items which will be in short supply. For meat dishes, lean beef and turkey will probably be consistently good buys," Yeutter said.

Early Childhood Program Gains Declared Dramatic

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Students have shown dramatic improvement in achievement levels during the first year of California's early childhood education program, state schools chief Wilson Riles says.

Riles told a news conference yesterday that some students achieved as much as 14 months' gain for 10 months of instruction, according to the evaluation report on the program's first year.

Early childhood education, Riles' reform plan for the primary grades, requires parents, teachers and administrators to work together in determining the educational needs of children, ways of meeting those needs, and evaluating the results.

The program emphasizes individual instruction, with individualized earning plans for each child. It also encourages a 1 to 10 adult-pupil ratio.

In reading, children in the program typically achieved gains of 11 months for every 10 months of instruction.

In its initial year, early childhood education involved 172,073 children in 800 school districts. Eighty per cent of California's school districts participated, with just over 1,000 schools involved.

"Early childhood education is working in California and it's working better than we had dared dream it would," Riles said. "Thousands of mothers and fathers are going into classrooms to act as volunteer aides."

Under the program, designed for pupils in kindergarten through third grade, parents are involved in the planning and running of it in each school.

Vaccine May Replace The Pill

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — A contraceptive vaccine that stimulates the body to manufacture antibodies that kill sperm cells may eventually replace the pill, an American immunologist said yesterday.

Dr. Sidney Shulman of New York Medical College, who is participating in the International Congress on Human Reproduction, discussed his experiments on the effects which these antibodies have on human fertility.

According to Shulman, 15 per cent of all married couples in the United States experience fertility problems. In 20 per cent of these cases, it is the woman who creates the antibodies while in 10 per cent of the cases the antibodies are produced by the man.

He explained his experiments are being conducted on female rabbits and rats and that so far the results show a considerable decrease in the animals' fertility.

Board To Vote On Own Raises

Members of the Las Gallinas Sanitary District board will consider whether to pay themselves for attending committee meetings and give themselves raises for regular board meetings tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the district office, 300 Smith Ranch Road, San Rafael.

Board members get $40 per regular meeting now; a proposal by board member Gene H. Dyer would increase that to $50. It is also proposed that board members be paid for committee meetings, according to managing engineer Edward Tibbetts.

End To Stock Slaughter Asked By Farmer Group

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Farm Organization has asked farmers to stop the protest slaughtering of livestock until Congress acts on a $2 billion program to feed the world's hungry with surplus American food.

NFO President Oren Lee Staley, at a news conference yesterday, acknowledged that the slaughter and burial of calves in Wisconsin and Minnesota — to protest high production costs and low market prices — brought bad publicity to farmers.

"NFO agrees that this should not happen," Staley said. "Our members do not want to destroy food when people in the world are starving."

"Accordingly," he said "NFO has called on its members and all livestock raisers and feeders to end the destruction of their uneconomical, excess animals until Congress has an opportunity to authorize and direct the Commodity Credit Corp., to spend $2 billion buying excess and uneconomical calves and cows and other excess animal products and arranging for distribution of the meat and other products to the starving people of other lands."

Staley said the proposed food surplus program would include purchases of pork and dairy products.

Several congressmen indicated they may introduce legislation for the food surplus purchases when Congress reconvenes next week. The NFO will press for speedy congressional action, Staley said.

Staley said that the recent calf slaughters and burials had prompted some television networks, newspapers and magazines to display pictures of the slaughters with photos of starving people in other parts of the world.

In recognition of the paradox, he said, the NFO persuaded the Dubuque Packing Co. of Iowa to kill some excess calves at the firm's own expense to be shipped to hurricane victims in Honduras.

Staley warned that farmers "cannot grow and give their products away and remain on their farms. Neither can packers run Saturday and Sundays at their own expense slaughtering and freezing the meat for donation abroad," he said.

The obligation to feed the starving lies with everyone in every affluent country, he said.

"The fair and equitable way to end this waste of food in the world where people are dying of starvation is for our government, using funds paid in by all of us, to buy up excess production at a fair price, process and send them to people in need," Staley said.

YOU CAN ALWAYS DEPEND ON SAFEWAY

A NEW TEAM — John H. and Phyllis E. Myers of the College of Marin music department, who recently became man and wife, check a score as they prepare for the college's production of the Mozart opera, "Cosi fan tutte" in the Fine Arts Building theater on Nov. 22 and 23.

'Cosi Fan Tutte' An Ambitious Production For College Crew

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

The College of Marin Music Department will present its most ambitious undertaking to date on Nov. 22 and 23 when the curtain rises on a full-length English version of Mozart's comic opera, "Cosi Fan Tutte," in the college's Fine Arts Building theater.

For its two producers, it has turned out to be a wedding present.

When the production was being cast in late August, it was Phyllis Murphy, music director, and John E. Myers in charge of the orchestra. But on Nov. 8, the couple changed that with a quiet wedding in San Rafael.

Discussing the opera, which centers around the infidelity of young lovers, is no-nonsense business to Mrs. Myers. The busy musicologist estimated the cost at "about $3,000."

Production costs will be paid out of the college's community services budget since the opera workshop is associated with the school's adult education program and from ticket sales ($3 general admission and $1.50, students), Mrs. Myers said.

Biggest outlay is $1,200 for an intimate type stage set, which will become the property of the music department, $500 for special services of Anne McNaughton of the drama department who is serving as stage manager; $250 to Ron Krempetz, also of the drama department, who designed the set; about $500 for 10 professional musicians to round at the orchestra, and $300 to a Hollywood rental firm for 18th Century costumes.

Up to this point the opera workshop has had its share of minor successes in one-act operas, but nothing so grand as a complete opera, Mrs. Myers said. And she should know since she has been associated with workshop productions since 1968. She got this major assignment when another faculty member took a year's sabbatical.

"Cosi' is an ideal opera," she said, "full of lovely arias and excellent ensemble singing."

"Mozart (who wrote his operas in Italian) translates wonderfully into English," she said, casting a reference to the difficulty of presenting Puccini operas in English.

"Cosi" was first performed on Jan. 26, 1790, shortly before Mozart's death. And it has been hailed by critics for its lyricism and subtlety of mood and emotion.

"I think we have an excellent cast," she said, underscoring that this opera has only six principals and a small chorus.

She said all the leads, four of them living outside Marin, have excellent voices. All are registered in the college's education program, in this case the opera workshop. Nonstudents pay $6 per semester for such classes offered by the college.

Mrs. Myers has double-cast the opera in case of any last minute illnesses. The backup is made up mostly of full-time students, who will present a concert version of "Cosi" at 8:30 p.m., Dec. 5, in the Fine Arts Building choral room.

Myers, who came to the college in 1960, when the department was in its infancy and for many years was its chairman, said the orchestra is made up of 17 students and the 10 professional musicians hired to fill out instrumentation of the 28-member Mozart-Haydn-type ensemble.

Mrs. Myers will not be in the wings when her husband strikes the downbeat at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 22. She'll be at the harpsichord in the orchestra pit.

What's next for the couple after "Cosi?"

First of all, a month's vacation after the semester ends in December, Mrs. Myers said. And then it will be planning for the spring musical — Gilbert and Sullivan's "HMS Pinafore," a joint venture with the drama department.

Kreisky Says Terrorist Leaders Deserve Chance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky says the leaders of many terrorist organizations in this century have gone on to take responsible and moderate leadership of their nations, and for that reason the Palestine Liberation Organization should have the chance to prove itself.

Replying to questions after his meeting with President Ford yesterday, Kreisky said history has shown that revolutionary leaders can become statesmen.

He specifically referred to former Irish President Eamon De Valera and Jomo Kenyatta, who was the Mau Mau leader in Kenya. Both men, he said, had been tough leaders of terrorist organizations and had become the cornerstones in the development of their countries.

"There are plenty of examples of such attitudes," Kreisky said, adding, "I was a member of the Social Democratic underground in Austria."

GOP Senate Aide To Speak Tuesday

Larry McConnell, Republican State Senate aide, will speak at a public meeting of the Novato Republican Women's Club at noon Tuesday at Nave's Restaurant, Ignacio.

McConnell, a specialist in campaign financing law, is an alternate member of the Sacramento County Republican Central Committee. The cost of the luncheon is $3.50.

McGovern's Proposal To End Hunger

ROME (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern today asked the governments throughout the world to cut their military spending 10 per cent and use the proceeds to end hunger on this planet.

The South Dakota Democrat, an unsuccessful presidential candidate in 1972, also asked oil producing countries to set aside an additional 10 per cent of their billion-dollar income to avert mass global starvation.

"There is no question that we can and must end hunger and malnutrition for humanity," McGovern told newsmen at the U.N. World Food Conference.

"But this will not be done if the major military powers continue to waste their substance in military overkill. Nor will it be done if those who have oil beneath their feet continue to use it to accumulate riches beyond any reasonable use," he said.

McGovern, a member of the U.S. delegation, said he aired his idea here "to get some thought moving" but did not expect the conference to act on it.

"What I now propose is that the nations of the world all reduce their military budgets by 10 per cent, which would produce a worldwide set-aside of $20 billion annually," McGovern said.

"I propose also that simultaneously the oil-exporting nations earmark 10 per cent of their new oil income, or $7 billion.

"I then propose that these military and oil profit setasides of $27 billion be turned over annually to an international food authority to give us the means for ending hunger on this planet."

McGovern said the Soviet Union "might look favorably on such a proposal since Mikolai Rodinov, a member of the Soviet delegation to the World Food Conference, suggested last Friday that a 10 per cent cut in arms spending might be devoted to developing countries."

Zebra Case Is Delayed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The trial of four Black Muslims accused in three of the Zebra slayings has been delayed indifinitely because of a lawyer's scheduling conflict.

"We intend to put the matter over and trail the other trial on a day-to-day basis," San Francisco Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh said yesterday as he continued preliminary hearings in the mass murder case.

Karesh said he and Alameda County Superior Court Judge Harold Hove decided that attorney Clinton White, chief counsel for three of the four Zebra defendants, must keep a commitment in Hove's court because a capital offense was involved. About a three-week delay is expected.

Study Says Ag Department Is Too Involved In Politics

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly study indicates that the Department of Agriculture and its advisory board may be spending too much time in politics and not enough studying the high cost of food.

A preliminary summary of a year-long study cited several instances where the board and the department director appeared to be involved in politics.

The study said that in 1972 the state Board of Agriculture "deliberately" scheduled a meeting in Indio to coincide with a reelection fund-raiser for then President Richard Nixon.

It also cited a San Diego meeting in 1973, when Nixon was embroiled in Watergate, board members passed a resolution expressing "full confidence" in the President and then "adjourned to dine" at the Westgate Hotel with a top Nixon fund-raiser, C. Arnholt Smith.

"It seems to me the director and the board have better things to do than raise money for presidential candidates and then pass resolutions praising him for his handling of the most nefarious scandal in American political history," said March Fong, D-Oakland.

The accusations were contained in a seven-page summary sent to C. Brunel Christensen, director of the Department of Food and Agriculture, from Ms. Fong, head of the Select Committee on Agriculture, Food and Nutrition.

Board member Paul Ames told UPI it was a "coincidence" that the meeting and the fund-raiser were scheduled for the same day in the same town.

Donald A. Weinland, executive secretary for the board, said he was requested by Ames, who lives in Indio, to distribute a "brochure" announcing the fund-raiser Oct. 6, 1972 along with other official information concerning the board meeting.

Minutes of the meeting also showed that Ames announced the fund-raiser shortly before members adjourned the meeting to go to the luncheon as "honored guests."

"It was an unusual situation we got ourselves into," Ames said. "But we did our very best at the time to keep the record straight."

Christensen said the summary by the Fong committee was "entirely political." He said detailed answers to the charges were being prepared.

Ms. Fong said agricultural policy has been "politicized beyond belief in the past two years, politicized to such an extent that you (Christensen) are paralyzed to act in the pocketbook interest of the public even when you want to."

The summary also said that on May 3, 1973 the board passed a resolution which said "board members wish to express their full confidence in the president, fully convinced that actions of the President are always motivated to promote the best interests of the United States."

Asked about the luncheon hosted by Smith, Christensen said it was arranged by a member of the board and others went on a voluntary basis.

"Actually he (Smith) just came and visited shortly," Christensen recalled. "His brother took us to the luncheon."

Smith, a former San Diego bank president, reportedly raised $1 million for Nixon's reelection campaign and personally contributed $250,000.

Nixon Impoundment Of Funds Defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon's decision to impound $9 billion in water pollution treatment funds was defended before the Supreme Court yesterday as part of a president's power to deal with inflation.

Solicitor General Robert Bork said no constitutional issue was presented in the dispute, only a question of interpreting the 1972 law allocating water treatment funds.

He said Congress, through its amendments and floor discussion, indicated it wanted to give the president wide discretion in allocating the funds to control inflation.

Thirteen states filed petitions with the high court asking it to order the allocations released.

Under the law, states were to be told how much money they could expect to receive from the government if their project plans were approved. Nixon refused to promise more than half of the $18 billion Congress said it would give over three years.

Campaign Clean Water, a Virginia environmentalist group, agreed that the President did have authority to withhold funds, but not so that the will of Congress to clean up the nation's waterways was frustrated.

Lawyers for New York City, which also challenged the impoundment, took another position. They said a president's impoundment authority did not come until the point that specific projects would be approved.

But under questioning from the justices, lawyer John R. Thompson agreed that fiscal policy was a sufficient reason to withhold the money. Without the allocations, Thompson said, local authorities would not be able to get state and municipal funds to finance the projects. The federal government would pay 75 per cent of the cost of construction under the 1972 law.

Saxbe Would Accept Pot Law Softening

MIAMI (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe says he would welcome a softening of federal laws on marijuana, but adds he will enforce present regulations as long as they are on the books.

"I would welcome a change in the marijuana laws, but not for hard drugs," Saxbe said while appearing on a nationally syndicated television talk show originating from Miami this week. "If the state legislatures and Congress see fit, I'm not going to fight it."

Milk Storage Process Seen

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — A research lab claims to have developed a new process of sterilizing milk to permit indefinite storage at no loss to flavor but is fearful the public won't like the taste of fresh milk again.

Dr. Dennis C. Westhoff, a food scientist at the University of Maryland, said researchers plan to begin taste tests on the sterile milk against pasteurized milk. The taste tests are to be extended to the public later.

Police Cruisers Ambushed In Schoolbooks Violence

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Two State Police cruisers were ambushed by gunfire today in the tension-packed Campbell's Creek section of Kanawha County, scene of continued violence in a crusade against textbooks ordered back into schools despite objections from protesting parents.

The cruisers were part of a beefed-up patrol established to guard against violence after shots were fired at three school buses late Monday and early yesterday.

There were no injuries in today's shootings, which occurred in a rural area known as Five Mile, scene of previous violence in the county's anti-textbook dispute.

Sgt. D. L. Lemon said troopers riding in the cruisers could not tell if they were targets of rifle fire or shotgun blasts.

"They just know they were ambushed," he said.

"The troopers were shook," said Sheriff Kemp Melton. "We're looking for some people."

The incident broke hopes for a return to calm after school and police officials met and decided to place police patrols in potential trouble spots around the county.

Deputy Schools Superintendent John Hughes said the patrols were watching "strategic areas." He said there was not enough manpower to escort each of the county's school buses.

Lemon also reported there had been a shoving-match between pickets at Ruthlawn Elementary School and rocks were thrown at buses on U.S. 21 near Sistersville.

VITTORIO DE SICA
Pioneer in film realism

Top Italian Director, Actor Dies

PARIS (UPI) — Film director and actor Vittorio de Sica, whose films "The Bicycle Thief" and "Shoe Shine" pioneered the era of postwar realistic films, died today in Paris. He was 73.

The director's friend, producer Carlo Ponti, announced in Rome that de Sica died at 5 a.m. in a private hospital in the French capital.

The director, one of the pioneers along with director Robert Rossellini of the new era of realism in films, was to have attended the opening in Paris tonight of his latest film, "The Voyage", starring Sophia Loren and Richard Burton.

Friends of the director said Miss Loren, Ponti's wife, was with De Sica in his final hours.

Ponti did not give the cause of death.

The actor, director and producer became ill last year shortly before directing "The Voyage" and underwent surgery in Switzerland. However he was released and returned to complete the film version of the Luigi Pirandello novel.

De Sica, the actor, was a charming interpreter of witty drawing room comedy and was often called Italy's Cary Grant.

De Sica, the Oscar-winning director, showed that Hollywood had no monopoly on cinema creativity, and his work as a director outshone even his considerable talent before the cameras.

"The Bicycle Thief" won an Oscar in 1949 and "Shore Shine" in 1947. "Shoe Shine" was the first in a series of postwar films about which one critic remarked:

"De Sica is the poet of suffering, the spokesman for the poor and the humble of this earth."

As an actor, he co-starred with and helped make famous the bosomy Italian actresses Gina Lollobrigida and Miss Loren.

OAS Stand On Cuba Is Played Down

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — The United States today played down divisions arising from the Organization of American States' failure to lift the decade-old political and economic blockade of Cuba.

"We don't regard the effects of this conference as necessarily negative for the OAS," said William D. Rogers, assistant U.S. secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

But Colombia's foreign minister, Indalecio Lievano Aguire, said he was troubled that "the United States does not have a policy to deal with the new realities of Latin America."

The attempt to repeal the embargo imposed by the OAS in 1964 failed yesterday when only 12 nations lined up behind it, two short of the 14 needed. Three countries opposed repeal and six including the United States abstained.

"We haven't heard the last of Cuba," Rogers, the second-ranking member of the U.S. delegation, told newsmen after the five-day conference of OAS foreign ministers ended.

Some Latin American diplomats said the question of dealing with Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime could be raised when they meet again in Buenos Aires next March or in Washington next April.

"It's possible, but not likely that the Cuban issue may come up at either of those meetings," Rogers said. He said economic problems and trade relations are more important topics for discussion than lifting the embargo.

His view was understood to reflect the thinking of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was criticized by several foreign ministers for not attending the conference.

Open Space Taxing Agency Election Set On March 4

Marin County supervisors yesterday tentatively set an election for March 4 in which voters of the Indian Valley, Domingo Canyon and Marin Golf and Country Club areas of South Novato will be asked to form a special taxing agency to purchase open space.

Formation of the county service area has been pushed by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who said yesterday the voters also will be asked to approve a $600,000 open space bond measure and a 5-cent tax rate to maintain the open space.

He said the ballot measures will be withdrawn in January unless county supervisors, sitting as the county open space district board, agree to help finance open space purchases in the area.

Sought for open space are 585 acres near the Indian Valley Colleges campus and 700 acres adjacent to the Marin Golf and Country Club tract.

Originally more acreage was sought, Baptiste said, but the amount was reduced because matching funds will not be available from the City of Novato.

(Novato voters this month rejected a $3 million open space bond issue from which Baptiste hoped to get $400,000 for the proposed service area.)

The supervisor said he will ask the county open space district for about $400,000 to help with the purchases, which are already being negotiated with property owners.

$10 Annual Park Permits Approved By Supervisors

The sale of $10 annual parking permits for Marin County's three major parks was approved yesterday by the county board of supervisors.

Approval came on a 3 to 1 vote to limit sales to county residents. Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. opposed the action, said saying "it's good business" to sell the permits to out-of-county residents.

He said he doubted out-of-county residents would use the permits enough to equal their purchase price.

His colleagues differed, however, saying the bonus should be limited to local residents who paid for the parks.

The county parks department currently charges $1 a day to park at Stafford Lake, McNear's Beach and Paradise Park. That charge will continue for park users without annual permits.

The permits, which will go into effect Jan. 1, will be given free to senior citizens.

Supervisor Michael Wornum did not attend yesterday's session. He is on vacation.

Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

STREETS — Approved six road projects recommended by the federal aid urban committee to share in $3 million of federal road funds over the next three years. The action came after the committee refused to include $200,000 toward improvements at the Ignacio interchange. That project will be considered later if more funds are available.

REZONING — Rezoned about 350 acres in the Nicasio Valley to reduce the number of possible homesites. Most of the parcels were rezoned to allow one home for every five acres and one parcel was designated for one home for every 60 acres. About 133 parcels were rezoned.

GARBAGE — Approved a request from Larry's Sanitary Service for a rate increase for garbage collection in the San Geronimo Valley, Inverness and Point Reyes Station areas. Once-a-week pickup of a 30-gallon can will cost $3 per month, effective Dec. 1. The current charge is $1.95.

AUCTION — Sold three parcels of surplus land in the Kentfield and Corte Madera areas. The first parcel, about 12,500 square feet at the junction of Wolfe Grade and Upper Toyon Road in Kentfield, was sold to Martin Chase for $1,500. A 3,500 square-foot parcel at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and College Avenue in Kentfield was sold to Marilyn M. Smith for $3,500. A 9,000-square-foot parcel on Casa Buena Drive near Corte Madera was sold to John G. Luce for $3,500.

BUDGET — Approved a series of changes recommended by County Administrator John F. Barrows for improving the format of the county budget. Next year's budget will concentrate less on specific dollar figures and more on descriptions of work to be done and total costs.

Coral Sea Sailing Delayed 8 Days

ALAMEDA (UPI) — In order to make repairs, the sailing of the U.S.S. Coral Sea has been delayed for eight days, the Navy said yesterday.

Navy officers acknowledged that some complaints were valid concerning the safety and sanitary conditions aboard the 27-year-old attack carrier.

Complaints had been registered both by crewmen and their families.

As a result, the ship will not sail for the Far East until Dec. 5.

Policy Denies Private Use Of Schools

Kentfield School District trustees last night decided to prevent school facilities from being used by private teachers who charge fees.

The new policy adopts the wording of the state education code, allowing "public agencies, senior citizens organizations or other organizations, clubs and associations organized for cultural activities and general character building or welfare purposes" to use the facilities, according to Dr. Eugene C. Peters, superintendent.

Trustees decided the district's facilities policy was inadequate recently when they considered a request by Kent Skov of Kentfield to teach drama classes and charge tuition.

The new policy will have a formal reading at next Tuesday's board meeting and is expected to be adopted at the Dec. 3 meeting. Skov's request will be considered again next Tuesday.

Supervisors Approve Housing Project In Upper Lucas Valley

The master plan allowing up to 472 new dwellings on the Lutz and Grady ranches in Upper Lucas Valley was approved swiftly and unanimously yesterday by Marin County supervisors.

The board's action, with Supervisor Michael Wornum on vacation, ended nearly three years of effort by the Lucas Valley Homeowners' Association to insure preservation of the Big Rock Ridge above the community.

The master plan and related rezoning allows 40 single-family homes, 296 townhouse dwellings and 136 apartments. It generally limits development to the flatlands near Lucas Valley Road and calls for the ridgelands to remain undeveloped.

The hearing was attended by a large audience of Lucas Valley residents concerned over a recommendation from the public works department that Idylberry Road be made a through street into the new development.

That proved to be the only point of contention yesterday and quickly evaporated when Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere sided with area residents in urging the road not be extended.

He recommended instead that a bicycle-pedestrian path be built from the end of Idylberry into the new development. The path could also serve as access for police and fire vehicles in an emergency, he said. Other supervisors agreed.

Rezoning of the two ranches, located on the north side of Lucas Valley Road below Big Rock, was started in January 1972 at the request of the homeowners' group.

At that time, the 1,600 acres were zoned to allow up to 800 homes. The two property owners subsequently asked for time to develop a master plan with the assistance of the homeowners' association.

The current plan will limit development to 244 acres and provide for a village center, recreation club, fire station and bicycle-pedestrian paths.

AMC Reports Record Sales

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp., the smallest of the U.S. carmakers, said today its 1974 sales hit a record $2 billion but that profits were cut by a three-week strike by the United Auto Workers union.

The company said it sold 385,000 passenger cars, the highest figure in 10 years, while its share of the U.S. car market climbed to 4.7 per cent. That figure also was the highest in a decade.

AMC chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. and president William V. Luneburg said earnings totaled $27.5 million, or 94 cents a share, down from last year's earnings total of $44.5 million of $1.65 a share.

She Draws Line At Coffee Pot

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Ruth McNamee, newly elected to the Michigan House, met her Republican male colleagues for the first time yesterday at a GOP leadership caucus and was asked along with another woman newly elected to the statehouse, to count ballots in voting for new GOP leaders.

Mrs. McNamee, the former mayor of Birmingham, Mich., said she didn't mind counting votes because "they just needed honesty" in the tabulation.

"But I'm not going to make their coffee. I'll tell you that," she quipped.

Meeting Cancelled In Corte Madera

Tonight's meeting of the Corte Madera Town Council to discuss the introduction and wrap-up segments of the general plan has been called off because the updated material is not yet complete, Town Clerk Betty Behel announced today.

The meeting will be held Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in town hall instead.

Filings To Open For March Voting

Filing will begin tomorrow and continue until Jan. 5 for 44 seats on Marin school boards which will be up for election next March 4.

Elections are being held in March instead of April for the first time. School districts dominate the lean off-year ballot, but San Rafael municipal elections and at least one measure also will go before the voters.

Persons wishing to file for most school board seats should obtain papers from the county elections office, room 152, Civic Center. No fee is charged, and no signatures are required. The short filing form can be completed on the spot, elections officials said.

San Rafael, a charter city, operates under a different set of rules. Filing begins Dec. 5 and ends Dec. 26 for five municipal posts and three school board positions.

San Rafael papers may be obtained from the city clerk's office. No fee is charged, but 20 to 30 signatures of registered voters must be gathered.

Up for election in San Rafael are posts currently held by Mayor C. Paul Bettini, councilmen Fred E. Jensen and John A. Miskimen, city attorney Fred C. Robbins, city clerk Marion A. Grady, and school board members Marilyn Bolinger, Herman Childress and Francis X. Kelly.

The only measure on the ballot so far is the Marin County Transit District's proposed tax rate increase from 5 cents to 25 cents, dubbed measure A. Deadline for placing a measure on the ballot is Dec. 4.

The other 44 school board positions up for election include four on the county board of education — those currently held by William L. Sisk, Marilyn Crowell, James A. Carroll and Lee C. Richardson Jr.

Other districts, and the incumbents:

Turkey Buyers Will Find This Year's Prices Down

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Thanksgiving turkey shoppers will be able to purchase holiday birds at between 49-69 cents a pound, 10-30 cents lower than last year, the Pacific Egg and Poultry Association said today.

Last week, the Ralph Nader affiliated California Citizen Action Group said the turkey industry was artificaally inflating its price for the holiday season and asked consumers not to buy the birds if they sold for more than 49 cents a pound.

Robert Bernier, spokesman for the trade association, said, "Turkey producers, who have lost from $2 to $4 per bird in the past year, find the group's recommendation that housewives not pay more than 49 cents for hen turkeys or 45 cents (per pound) for toms particularly offensive."

Based on industry projections, a spokesman said, the retail price of turkey this Thanksgiving will probably average from 49 cents to 69 cents a pound.

The egg and poultry association advised consumers to stock up on turkeys this Thanksgiving because the industry has been cutting production "and reduced supplies and higher prices will be evident next year."

Academy's Growth Is Explained

With a total enrollment of 186 and a student-faculty ratio of nine to one, Marin Academy this year has added advanced courses and almost run out of classrooms.

"We are swamped with student inquiries," said headmaster William A. McCluskey, "but we would really like to hold the enrollment to slow growth to keep our student-faculty closeness."

Now in its third academic year, the private coeducational high school, a day school on the former San Rafael Military Academy campus, will hold an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. Nov. 24 to acquaint the community with its program and campus.

Teachers will be in their classrooms to explain the curriculum and teaching materials used and students will conduct tours of the campus during the reception hours.

The school, result of a dream of a handful of Marin and San Francisco parents, offers a full college preparatory curriculum coupled by short off-campus segments ranging from spelunking to marine biology. This year advanced courses in biology, languages, calculus and computer science have been added, with an additional series of literature classes.

Aside from their on-campus academic work, teachers lead students on optional weekend excursions that include snow survival, back-packing in Yosemite or Desolation Valley, boating and exploring in lava bed caves.

Though the school began two years ago with 60 per cent San Francisco enrollment and the remainder local, the ratio has shifted to half Marin students this year.

"The trend is clear. We are increasingly becoming a Marin school," McCluskey said of the student body.

Student Acting Albany Mayor

ALBANY (UPI) — A University of California undergraduate student is the acting mayor of this city of 14,600, just north of Berkeley.

Michael Gleason, 26, a member of the city council, automatically took over the post last night following the resignation of Richard O. Clark, who was elected to the board of directors of the Bay Area Rapid Transit district last week.

Under the city's charter, the council has 30 days to appoint a new council member to replace Clark, and then the council can choose a new permanent mayor.

School Spending Problems Viewed

San Rafael must ask for voter approval in March to increase school spending, or the district will have to make severe cutbacks in programs, a district finance committee told the San Rafael Board of Education last night.

The finance committee told board members that the district will incur almost a $1 million deficit next year unless more money is obtained or programs slashed.

The board took no action on the recommendation, but said it would consider it fully at a meeting Nov. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the district office.

At issue is the per-pupil spending limit imposed on school districts by Senate Bill 90. Voter approval is needed to increase that limit.

Supt. Donald E. Leisey said the board has until mid-December to decide whether it wants to put the spending increase on the March 4 ballot.

A lengthy report by the finance committee also recommended that the district back efforts in the state legislature to remedy the "gross inequities" of SB 90's limitations.

The report also called for a professional survey among community members to find out what programs are least needed, and asked Leisey to develop budget plans for 1975-76 in the event that a spending increase is not approved by voters.

School Board Names Asst. Superintendent

John H. Scoggin, business manager of the Pajaro Valley Unified School District, last night was appointed assistant superintendent of administrative services by the San Rafael Board of Education.

Scoggin, 39, has been with the Santa Cruz County district for four years. He was previously assistant superintendent of Butte Community College, and business manager for El Dorado and Placerville School districts.

His appointment will become effective Dec. 9, according to Dist. Supt. Donald E. Leisey.

The board set his salary at $27,500 per year, Leisey said.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

ADULT EDUCATION — Approves a wide variety of courses including needlepoint, computers, hunting safety, child psychology, and earth resources for the winter adult education quarter.

BUSES — Agreed to spend $1,200 as the district share in a $25,000 transportation study by consultants JHK and Associates, to investigate the feasibility of combining school busing with the Marin Transit District.

SALARIES — Formally approved previously negotiated salary settlements with teachers, including a 6 per cent pay hike retroactive to July 1, with an additional 1 per cent increase beginning Jan. 1, 1975.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Gave summer school teachers a pay raise, from $8 to $9 per hour.

MILEAGE — Gave district employees an increase in their gas mileage allotment, from 10 to 14 cents per mile.

SEMINAR — Agreed to pay up to $4,780 for a preschool education seminar at Terra Linda High School.

PERSONNEL — Approved a variety of staff changes, including hiring several aides, custodians and teachers. The board also accepted the resignations of two maintenance employees and a teacher aide.

ADJOURMENT — Adjourned to a special meeting Nov. 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the district office, to meet with the citizens advisory committee to determine what problems the group will investigate in the coming year.

Nelson Wins Personnel Board Nod

The Marin County Board of Education last night decided to recommend that Gary D. Nelson of San Anselmo remain on the Marin County School personnel commission.

Nelson, whose present term expires Dec. 1, now needs only the formal appointment by the executive director of the state personnel board in order to serve a new three-year term.

The Marin County Board of Education also:

PERSONNEL — Hired five teachers aides, granted 18 temporary certificates allowing teachers to teach until their pending credentials are granted; granted three life diplomas.

STUDY — Allocated $5,000 as its share of the $25,000 study of busing requirements in the county.

CONSULTANTS — Employed Marsha Allen as a consultant for special education for nine hours work for $200; hired 11 consultants for the Winter Arts Festival at $450.

AGREEMENTS — Approved five interdistrict and nine intercounty attendance agreements for students.

ENVIRONMENTAL — Set its next meeting, Nov. 26 at 8 p.m., as the time for a public hearing on the environmental impact of its proposal to move a portable classroom to the children's treatment center of Loma Alta.

OCCUPATIONAL — Allocated money in the following amounts for regional occupational programs: park and landscape aide, $9,654; nursing, $5,109; restaurant in a school, $54,499; welding, $2,500.

CLAIM — Denied permission to file a late claim for damages stemming from an injury to Mark Garaventa at Oak View School on March 16.

RECOGNITION — Recognized the Marin County Federation of Teachers, as representing three county employees.

PLACEMENT — Learned that 25 students were hired for clerk-typist positions as the result of its occupational training program.

TRAINING — Learned that 23 students were trained in janitorial skills and 49 in clerical skills under the Manpower Development Training Act projects.

CLOSED — Emerged from closed session to grant James and Linda Dentoni permission to attend school outside the districts where they reside.

Season Open But Crab Boats Idle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Crab season opened yesterday but San Francisco Bay's dwindling fleet of crab boats remained idle today at Fisherman's Wharf and in Sausalito because of a price dispute.

We've got all our traps on board, the weather is good and we're just trying to settle something on the price," said crab fisherman Frank Damato.

Damato said the fleet of crab boats in San Francisco, Eureka and Crescent City was anxious to begin hauling in shellfish as soon as a price is fixed with the buyers.

A spokesman for Ocean Traders in Sausalito said the fishing firm has six boats equipped and ready to go. "I think the price will be set soon, probably before the weekend," he said.

In recent years, the city's gastronomical delight, the dungeness crab, has become scarer, and the crab hunters are anxious to see if the trend will reverse itself.

"We don't know what's down on the bottom of that ocean until we throw a good amount of traps out," said Damato.

Damato said dealers paid $1 per pound for crabs last season but he had no idea what fishermen would get this year.

Petaluma Girl Hurt In Crash

A 14-year old Petaluma girl was hurt yesterday when the car in which she was a passenger collided with two other autos on East Washington Street near Vallejo Street in Petaluma.

Susan K. Veeninga was listed in good condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with neck injuries suffered at about 3 p.m. when a car driven by her sister, Cisa C. Venninga, 17, was involved in a three-car crash.

Police said the cars were traveling in congested traffic when they collided, causing minor to moderate damage to all three.

The other cars were driven by Mary E. Rutherford, 43, and Barbara J. Noriel, 28, both of Petaluma.

Ordinance On Signs Introduced

Ordinances setting 15-day abatement periods for illegal signs and improper land uses were introduced last night by the Cotati City Council.

The ordinances update city zoning regulations, according to Clerk Donna Olson, by giving violators a period in which to comply before the city begins corrective action on its own.

Under the new procedure, when city officials notify landowners that their signs or uses do not conform with regulations, they will have time to either correct the problem or else to begin an appeal to the city for approval of the nonconforming aspects.

The council also tentatively agreed to purchase a new police car and give a six per cent salary increase to Police Chief Thomas Gray.

That Robber Was No Lady

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Bill Arkhaty told police he was puzzled when the two female hitchhikers he picked up tried to rob him and then forced him from his car yesterday.

Police solved the mystery when they told him: "That was no lady. That was Leroy Townsend," a man.

Arkhaty said he struggled with the two until he was struck in the face with a flashlight.

A passing police cruiser spotted the suspects running from the car and captured one, Leroy Townsend, 21, of McKeesport, who was wearing a miniskirt.

Trustees To Plan Windfall Allocation

Novato Unified School District trustees will hold a special meeting Tuesday to determine how to allocate a $360,000 windfall.

The district's income is $600,000 higher than estimated in August because of increased enrollment and increased federal funds for students connected with Hamilton Air Force Base, according to publications director Annette Conklin.

A portion of the additional funds already has been set aside for various purposes and $360,000 remains, she said.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

BUS STUDY — Agreed to reconsider on Tuesday its rejection of a request from the Marin County Superintendent of Schools office to join in a study of integrating school bus operations with public transit at a cost of $1,200 to the district.

SCHOOL BUSES — Received a request from parents in the Domingo Canyon area to review bus scheduling so service can be provided students in that area. Trustees asked Eugene De Brecht, director of business services, to meet with parents.

LITTLE LEAGUE — Continued until Tuesday action on a request from Little League to build a baseball diamond on an unused school site adjacent to Novato High School grounds. About 10 neighbors protested that a field there would create traffic problems.

ELECTION — Passed a resolution setting the election for board members on March 4, 1975. The terms of William T. Eckhoff, Jan Murray, Elizabeth Mertel and Ronald D. Schenck will expire.

GRANT — Applied for a $20,000 federal grant to develop a speech and language program.

MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Tuesday at Novato High School lecture hall. The next regular meeting will be Nov. 26.

Flood Project

The Ross Town Council will discuss the Upper Ross Valley flood control project and the possibility of growth controls for the Upper Ross Valley when it meets tomorrow at 8 p.m. at town hall.

Alcoholics' Home Denied By Planners

A divided San Rafael Planning Commission last night turned thumbs down on an alcoholic recovery home proposed by the Alcohol Community Foundation for 34 Grove Street.

On a 4-2 vote (Commissioners Alan M. Kay and Ben C. Albritton in opposition, and Donn E. Nissen absent) the commission told the foundation that a recovery home for 25 alcoholics is inconsistent with the resident apartment area in which the house is located and turned down a permit for the dwelling.

According to senior planner Dwight A. Winther, a group of several area residents appeared before the commission to point out that fire protection and traffic safety would be impaired if the residence were approved.

Residents also asserted that water pressure — already low in the area at times — would be further decreased for residents living down the block from the recovery home.

Approximately 100 persons attended the 45-minute hearing, Winther said.

What's in store..
HOW'S YOUR SHOPPING I.Q.?
Smart food shopping is a skill which is built upon knowledge of nutrition and the value of foods. Menu planning is the art of using all kinds of food products in creative ways. This art makes dining more interesting and food shopping more fun and economical. A wise shopper probably has been fighting inflation effectively for some time, but here are some questions to test your shopping I.Q.
1. Do you make sure leftovers are used in meal planning to avoid waste?
2. Do you plan your meals around what you already have and make up a grocery list before going to the market?
3. Do you plan meals with an eye to appetite appeal and an awareness of nutritional needs?
4. Do you read the food ads before making up your shopping list to take advantage of specials?
5. Do you use less expensive proteins such as eggs, milk, beans and pastas in planning "meatless" meals?
6. Do you try new products occasionally to have variety in your meal planning?
7. Do you eat before shopping and shop by yourself so you can avoid impulse buying?
8. Do you figure "cost per serving" when selecting foods and buy budget-priced meat cuts that can be used for more than one meal?
9. Have you considered the savings in dry non-fat milk (for cooking purposes especially) or budget burger which has high nutritional value at a low price?
10. Do you buy only what you can use or store for a reasonable period of time?
If you can answer yes to all these, you deserve a WIN button.

Redevelop Unit Will Meet Again

Stating questions about San Rafael's redevelopment sketch plans remained to be answered after a 3.5-hour meeting last night, the citizens advisory committee on redevelopment decided to schedule another meeting on the matter.

The next meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the redevelopment agency office, 901 Irwin Street.

"We feel we still have a lot of questions to ask," committee member Jerry R. Rusom said. "We need more information to make a recommendation to the agency board."

More than 50 people met last night as the committee to hear from the consulting firm that prepared the plans, Russom said.

Questions from the committee and the public ranged over the whole spectrum of the plans, he said.

The committee will make recommendations to the agency board when the board meets next Wednesday at 8 p.m. at city hall. The board must decide which of four submitted plans — or what combinations of the four plans — it wants incorporated in a final sketch plan for the city facelifting.

Dr. Finch Will Resume Practice

ELDORADO SPRINGS, Mo. (UPI) — Dr. R. Bernard Finch, a model prisoner during 12 years confinement in California for the murder of his estranged wife, will resume his practice of medicine in this Southwest Missouri town.

The Missouri Supreme Court granted Finch a medical license yesterday, rejecting an appeal of the Missouri Board of Healing Arts against the Cole County Circuit Court's ruling that Finch was entitled to a license.

Finch, 56, said he will practice in the Cedar County Memorial Hospital. The community took him in three years ago after he was paroled. He was given a job as an X-ray technician, pending the granting of a license to renew medical practice.

GM Is Closing Small Car Plants

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp., the giant of the troubled auto industry, said today it will close three small car assembly plants next week and idle another 7,175 workers temporarily.

The layoffs will halt production at Tarrytown, N.Y.; VanNuys, Calif., and Willow Run, Mich., and raise to 42,475 the overall number of GM permament and temporary layoffs.

The industry figure for temporary and permanent layoffs will increase to 76,450 next Monday with the shutdowns by GM.

A GM spokesman said the plant closings were not related to the nationwide coal strike but were in reaction to lagging sales of small cars.

New car sales are off to their poorest start in a decade, leaving GM, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. with thousands of unsold compact and subcompact cars turned out in anticipation of an upturn in sales.

GM already had cut back from two shifts to one shift effective Monday at its assembly plants in Van Nuys, Tarryton and Leeds, Mo., thus idling 5,300 workers indefinitely.

Other plants closed this week include Chrysler's assembly facilities in Hamtramck, Mich., and Newark, Del., and the Ford plant at Metuchen, N.J.

Madera Del Presidio Subject Of Protests

After hearing several residents voice concern about the proposed Madera del Presidio development, the Corte Madera planning commission put off further consideration of the proposal until its next meeting Dec. 9.

W.A. Warneck Jr., president of the developer, Cal-West Communities Inc., was told to have various proposals ready to deal with objections raised by residents.

The development calls for 60 to 65 single-family houses and 250 to 300 condominiums on 96 acres east of U.S. 101.

The most controversial aspect was the three and four-story height proposed for the tightly-clustered buildings, according to Clifford E. Temps, public works director.

Having tall buildings would permit more land to be kept as open space, the developer said.

Warneck was directed to come up with alternatives showing how much ground would be covered if the height were limited to two stories, Temps said.

Launch Postponed

LOMPOC, Calif. (UPI) — Scheduled launching of a three stage weather satellite from Vandenberg AFB today was postponed until Friday, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

Test Shows Soft Bumpers Better

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors tested its new, soft-face automobile bumpers on one of the most fearsome providing grounds known to man — the taxicabs of New York City.

The cab drivers gave GM's innovative plastic bumpers a resounding trial run with more than 1,100 smash-ups — and the automakers concluded the soft bumpers emerged victorious in the battle with the traditional metal variety.

GM outfitted 100 taxis with the soft face front and rear bumpers while 90 cabs used the regular 1973 model bumper systems.

After analyzing the results — 1,107 damaged soft face bumpers and 1,262 scarred metal bumpers — GM said the soft models accumulated a lower overall repair cost than did the metals.

Casa Grande Contract Is Awarded

A $1,708,000 contract for construction of a major addition at Casa Grande High School in East Petaluma was awarded last night to the Todd Construction Co. of Santa Rosa.

The Petaluma Board of Education gave the job to the lowest of seven bidders, according to Supt. Lesly H. Meyer, and if county and state education officials approve the project promptly the addition could open as early as December of next year.

The project includes classrooms for home economics, science, business education and music and additional locker room, cafeteria and counseling space.

Meyer said it will expand the school's capacity from about 1,300 students to about 1,700.

The board also agreed to meet with trustees of the Cotati-Rohnert Park Elementary District at 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday to discuss possible unification of the northern district.

Presently all secondary schools in Cotati and Rohnert Park are operated by the Petaluma High School District and a number of residents of the adjoining cities are pressing for local control of the schools. The meeting is scheduled for the Petaluma Education Center.

Delaware Loses Its Air Service

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — The last major airline flight in Delaware was scheduled to depart the Greater Wilmington Airport at 10:31 p.m. tonight — leaving Delaware the only state in the union without major commercial airline service.

The last scheduled departure was Eastern Airlines flight 566 for Newark, N.J.

New Castle County has fought for some time to keep Eastern and Allegheny Airlines service, but the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington agreed with the airlines that no profits could be had from serving the state.

FTC'S Role In Inflation Battle

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Tougher enforcement of the antitrust laws and less federal government sheltering of regulated industries can "help significantly" in the fight against inflation, according to Lewis A. Engman, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC).

"The classic anti-inflationary weapons of tight money and fiscal restraint can't do the job alone," the official declared in an interview here.

"Both have costly social consequences and fail to deal with anticompetitive business practices that drive up prices." Often government regulatory policies build in extra costs and inefficiencies, he adds, doing more harm than good to regulated industries such as airlines, trucking, and agriculture.

Public concern over inflation, in Engman's view, gives the agency a fresh opportunity to exercise its broad antitrust powers "to return the U.S. economy to a more competitive footing."

During his 17-month tenure as FTC chief, the former White House staffer has rasied the agency's visibility in the antitrust field, where it shares enforcement responsibility with the Justice Department.

While continuing to attack misleading advertising and deceptive business practices, Engman has strengthened the agency's commitment to vigorous antitrust enforcement. Since early in 1973, the FTC has filed more than a dozen antitrust complaints against companies ranging from Xerox to Boise Cascade.

LEWIS A. ENGMAN
Regulation harmful

The oil, office copier, and breakfast cereal industries have been targets of alleged monopolistic business practices.

The agency's biggest case — one likely to require more than two years of pretrial work — charges the nation's major oil companies with monopolizing the production, distribution, and marketing of petroleum products.

A proposed antitrust settlement with Xerox — now before the commission for final review — would pry open the office copier company's closely guarded xerography patents. For more than a decade Xerox has dominated the $2-billion copier business with its plain paper technology and, in the FTC's view, inhibited competition by refusing to license its patents.

Reflecting public concern over energy and food prices, the agency is conducting broad investigations into the structure and corporate interrelationships of these two key industries.

Oil company acquisition of alternative fuel sources such as uranium and coal "raises the possibility of abuses of market power," Engman says.

The middleman's role in meat distribution is also of major interest to FTC probers.

Although it is difficult to measure how much restrictive business practices cost consumers, Engman is convinced the amounts involved run into the millions of dollars annually.

Businessmen pay lip service to free enterprise, he told a group of advertising industry leaders at a luncheon here sponsored by Playboy magazine; but too many of them seek "immunity from competition" by such actions as allocating markets, fighting repeal of fair-trade laws, and in ending government subsidies.

Further, he says, "excessive government regulation" of such industries as airlines and trucking often inadvertently contributes to inflationary pressure on the economy.

In a recent Detroit speech that attracted national attention, the former Michigan lawyer described regulated industries as "federal protectorates, living in a cozy world of cost-plus protected from the ugly specter of the competition, efficiency, and innovation."

The FTC head favors President Ford's proposal to re-examine the role of regulatory agencies with an eye to reducing hidden subsidies and government-sanctioned price fixing. Engman plans to testify in behalf of legislation to set up a national commission on regulatory reform when Congress reconvenes after the election.

But he has no illusions that the commission's job would be easy. "Regulation is a hard habit to kick, no less for government than for the regulated industry," he says.

Meanwhile, the FTC intends to make greater use of its power to challenge anticompetitive arrangements in which other government agencies may be involved. Along with the Justice Department, the FTC this month filed a petition with the Federal Communications Commission seeking to block International Business Machines Corporation's bid to enter the domestic satellite business.

"There will be more such petitions in the future," Engman promises.

Another avenue for stimulating competition is through broader corporate disclosure of earnings by line of business. After more than a year of heated debate, the FTC recently received a congressional go-ahead to obtain detailed breakdowns of sales, earnings, and profit margins from some 345 diversified companies.

By publishing the results in aggregate form, the agency, among other things, hopes to spotlight high-profit product lines. This is expected to guide potential competitors toward new investment opportunities as well as aid investors in deciding which industries yield the best returns.

A second goal — one that has aroused many business objections — is to put the agency's antitrust investigations on a less hit-or-miss basis. Armed with financial data that are now often not available short of subpoenaing company records, the FTC staff would presumably avoid "false starts" in investigating competitively performing industries.

Containers Ruled Taxable

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Supreme Court ruled yesterday that counties can impose personal property taxes on shipping containers even if they are used in foreign and interstate commerce.

The court handed down its ruling in the case of Sea-Land Service, Inc., which was taxed by Alameda County and appealed contending the county had no authority to impose local taxes on containers in foreign and interstate commerce.

"We conclude that these contentions are without merit and that the containers are subject to apportioned local property tax," the high court said in a unanimous decision.

Decision Due On Closing Of San Anselmo Schools

San Anselmo school district trustees will decide what schools they want closed to save money — after two weeks of boisterous public hearings — when they meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Isabel Cook School's multi-purpose room.

Dist. Supt. Frank R. Elliott has recommended the board close Isabel Cook School and establish two middle schools, one at Red Hill and the other at Hidden Valley.

This view — tentatively endorsed last week by three of five trustees — has the vocal support of a 35-member parents group, Sound Options for Schools.

However, representatives of the district master plan survey committee have recommended that Isabel Cook and Yolansdale Schools be closed, and that one junior high school at Hidden Valley be established. Under that plan, Red Hill would become an elementary school.

Dog Club's Cookbook Is Mainly For People

By PAT BALMES

Recipes to feed large groups are some of those featured in a new cookbook compiled by members of Marin County Dog Training Club.

"We had a couple of potluck dinners and found we had some superb cooks. So we decided to do a cookbook," said editor Cynthia Jernigan who will mail the $3.00 loose-leaf "The Obedient Dog's Best Friend's Cookbook" from her home at 25 North Terrace, Tiburon.

Proceeds will benefit the American Dog Owners Association, an organization which promotes dog welfare by investigating abuse and formulating preventative legislation.

The only Marin County club licensed by the American Kennel Club to conduct obedience classes, MCDTC holds classes at the Italian-American Club in Larkspur and the Humane Society in Novato.

The club members' cookbook includes a variety of recipes from hors d'oeuvres to desserts and ends with a few dishes for dogs.

Designed to please dog fanciers, the book's illustrations are of dogs drawn by Frank Hayward of Ross. Recipes are arranged according to their degree of difficulty, under obedience trial terms.

Mrs. Jernigan, who with her husband Rupert and son Russell show two St. Bernards, suggests these recipes are suitable for multiplication.

DOG FRIEND'S COOKBOOK — Editor Cynthia Jernigan of Tiburon checks cookbook compiled (for humans) by members of Marin County Dog Training Club to raise funds to prevent dog abuse. Her St. Bernard, Amie, takes an interest; the book ends with a few dog recipes.

SUPER-EASY CRAB DIP
Contributed by Mirja Muncy of Tiburon

3 large packages of cream cheese
3 cans crab (or shrimp)
1 or 2 small bottle seafood cocktail sauce.

Soften and stir cheese. Place in a serving dish. Top with crab or shrimp, drained and broken up just a little bit. Pour enough cocktail sauce to cover. Stick a knife in and serve with crackers. Serves 30.

CHICKEN CORDON BLEU
Contributed by Cynthia Jernigan of Tiburon

35 chicken half-breasts, skin and bones removed
18 slices Swiss or Monterey Jack cheese
18 slices cooked ham (or boiled)
Parsley flakes (or chives)
Garlic powder (optional)
4 cups fine bread crumbs
12 tablespoons salad oil
Salt and pepper
Prepared chicken gravy

Allow one to one-and-a-half chicken half-breasts per serving. Cut each chicken half-breast into two slices. Cut ham and cheese slices in half, figuring a half of each per serving.

Place breast pieces cut side up and season with garlic powder and a dash of salt and pepper.

Sandwich fashion, lay one chicken slice down, then cheese and ham on it and top with a second chicken slide.

Roll each "sandwich" in a mixture of bread crumbs and salad oil. Place on ungreased cookie sheet and bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 40 minutes.

Garnish with parsley or chives. Serve with prepared chicken gravy mix or white sauce laced with sherry. Served 30.

THREE-LAYER DEMON CAKE
Contributed by Cynthia Jernigan

4 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 cup butter or margarine
2¼ cups sugar
1½ cups buttermilk (or add 1½ tablespoons vinegar to fresh milk and allow to stand one hour.)
3 cups cake flour, sifted
1 tsp baking soda
½ tsp baking powder
½ tsp salt
5 eggs, separated
1 tsp vanilla

This cake is so rich that it serves 12. Recipe may be doubled, but not tripled. Three cakes will serve 36 people.

Melt cooking chocolate over simmering water. Remove to bowl. Blend butter and sugar at No. 8 speed on an electric mixer. Add to chocolate.

Beat five egg yolks well and add to chocolate mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff and add, with vanilla, to chocolate mixture.

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and baking soda together.

Pour into three well-greased and floured nine-inch cake pans. Bake in 350 degree oven for 35 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched in center. Do not overbake.

Allow to cool a few minutes, then remove from pans and cool on wire racks. When cool, frost with Demon Frosting.

Demon Frosting

2 packages frosting sugar
½ pound butter or margarine
⅓ cup cream, evaporated milk or homogenized milk
1½ tesp vanilla
3 squares melted unsweetened chocolate (or three envelopes of prepared semi-liquid chocolate, warmed until pliable)

Add all ingredients at once and beat until smooth. Add more cream if too thick to spread. Use liberally between and on top of cake. Fill layers first, then spread frosting on sides and finally on top.

FOR DOGS

Boil up all wastes and less desirable parts of several chickens: skin, fat, backs, necks, wing tips, innards, etc. Boil for three hours and put through sieve. Remove all but the very softest bones. Serve over kibble.

Consumption Of Vegetables Shows A Marked Increase

Could be that parents who urge their children to eat more vegetables are now taking their own advice.

Over the past five years, the average American has increased his vegetable eating by a whopping 13 pounds. Last year's per capita consumption — including both fresh and processed varieties — was pegged at 223 pounds.

Use of tomatoes and tomato products, which account for half of all canned vegetables, gained five pounds per person between 1967 and 1973. Canned peas also enjoyed a bigger demand last year, after some lagging previously.

Frozen vegetable use — not including potatoes — perked up in 1973 after holding steady since 1970.

Turkey Is A Good Buy Now, Sonoma County Farmers Say

Turkey is a very good buy, especially right now. That's the word from Sonoma County turkey farmers who added that prices have dropped about 10 cents a pound from last year.

At Willie Bird Turkeys in Petaluma, hens under 14 pounds are going for 69 cents a pound, hens over 14 pounds are selling for 72 cents, and all toms are priced at 67 cents. Smoked fresh turkeys are selling for $1.29 a pound.

"Prices are a lot lower than last year," said a spokesman at the farm, adding that the "turkey industry almost went broke last year."

At Cader Farms in Petaluma (which specializes in fresh eggs and chickens) turkey prices will range from 77 to 79 cents a pound for both toms and hens.

Prices are low for frozen turkeys too, said the growers, but these are from "five to six months old."

At Willie Bird, the turkeys are slaughtered within a week of the order. The farm is open only during November and December filling over 2,000 Thanksgiving orders each year.

At Cader, a spokesman discounts a consumer group study that turkeys should be priced at 45 cents a pound. "It costs 54 cents a pound just to produce a turkey. It still has to be processed . . .," she said.

She also added that turkey distributors are holding back so they won't be "stuck after Thanksgiving" with unsold birds. "They just don't know what the market will be."

Turkey orders should be made at least a week before you plan to pick them up. The farms are open all day, usually seven days a week. Cader is located at 1315 Ely Road; Willie Bird is at 1555 Stage Gulch Road. Other turkey farms in Sonoma County include the Eggery in Petaluma, Roads End Ranch in Santa Rosa which also features turkey sausage and fresh lamb, and Gobbler's Roostaurant and Smoke House in Sebastopol.

One final word from the growers: "if you buy more poultry, meat prices will go down."

Once the turkey is purchased, there are a number of tips for keeping them safe from bacteria.

Turkeys should be refrigerated or placed in the freezer as soon as you get home, according to the Department of Agriculture. Unless your turkey is going to be used within a few days, put it in the freezer.

Prepackaged poultry should be placed as-is in the refrigerator. Raw turkey should be placed on a platter, covered and refrigerated. Store the giblets separately. For freezing, wrap the turkey tightly in aluminum foil or freezer paper. Whole turkey may be stored up to 12 months at 0 degrees; cut up turkey for six months.

Thaw your turkey in the refrigerator if possible.

Avoid having the outer layer of the turkey become very warm during thawing; this warm outer layer could foster the growth of bacteria over prolonged thawing. Thawing under cold running water is discouraged because the exterior of the turkey reaches the temperature of the water (70 to 85°) very quickly and could support bacteria growth.

An evenly thawed turkey may be held in the refrigerator for up to two days before roasting. When preparing the turkey for roasting, remove the neck and giblets from the body cavity. Turkey should be stuffed just before roasting.

The USDA suggests that the safest way is to cook stuffing separate from the turkey. Never stuff raw poultry before refrigeration.

Turkey processors recommend an over temperature of 325° for uncovered pan roasting. After the turkey has reached a golden brown, place a piece of aluminum foil loosely over it. For covered roasting, cover the turkey with heavy duty aluminum foil crimped tightly to the edges of the pan or use a roaster lid. Roast in a 350 degree oven and remove the cover during the last half hour of roasting for browning.

Note: If turkey is roasted unstuffed, allow approximately 30 minutes less cooking time.

Cooking times may vary as much as 30 minutes due to differences in equipment and turkeys.

When turkey is done, the thickest part of the drumstick will feel soft. If a meat thermometer is used, an internal thigh temperature of 180 to 185 degrees indicates the bird is done. The turkey will slice with greater ease and servings will be more attractive if the turkey is allowed to stand 15 minutes before carving.

Pork Guide Gives Tips On Cooking

The Pork Industry Group has come out with a handy guide to pork cuts complete with cooking instruction and a chart for determining cost per serving.

To use the "slide rule" fashioned guide, locate the specific cut of meat and then move the inside chart to the price per pound. The guide will quickly show the shopper, for instance that a boneless smoked ham at $2.09 per pound will yield five servings at 42 cents per serving while a bone-in smoked ham at 1.49 per pound will yield three-and-a-half servings at 43 cents.

Dietitians Aren't In Favor Of Quick Loss Beauty Diet

(Tenth in a series of 12 articles on dieting compiled by the Dairy Council of California from research by the California Dietetic Association.)

Dr. Stillman's Quick Weight Loss Beauty Diet is lacking in every nutrient except protein and vitamin C, say professional dietitians.

And dietitians of the California Dietetic Association in their pamphlet "A Dozen Diets For Better Or For Worse" advise the overweight to stay away from the diet plan.

According to the pamphlet's nutritional analysis of the diet, "only small amounts of a narrow variety of foods are to be consumed" and "because of these limitations all nutrients are inadequately supplied except protein and vitamin C."

An evaluation of the diet shows deficiencies in iron (66 per cent of need), carbohydrates (60 per cent), vitamin A (78 per cent), niacin (91 per cent), riboflavin (83 per cent), thiamin (60 per cent), calcium (57 per cent) and calories (26 per cent).

The pamphlet concedes that weight loss would be likely for "anyone who could tolerate the diet for a three week period," but warns those who persist they'll be risking ketosis.

Ketosis, a dangerous metabolic state, occurs when the body's carbohydrate stores are depleted. Possible side effects of ketosis include dehydration, weakness, nausea, kidney trouble, and gout in susceptible persons, the pamphlet says.

"This diet is not recommended because of its obvious nutritional inadequacies and its failure to teach users how to select the variety of foods that assure adequate nutrition, the pamphlet warns.

"Effective and sustained weight reduction must be achieved in a regular, orderly fashion on a diet which although nutritious and sound may not be either glamorous or spectacular," the pamphlet warns.

This Avocado Salad Is A Real Treat

Avocado salad mousse is a superb combination of dairy sour cream and avocado — both favorite ingredients with California cooks. Whirred to satiny smoothness in the blender, it's a breeze to put together. The ingredient list is nominal and the seasonings basic — strong points with the cook when it comes to the final decision of what goes on the menu.

The salad is a delight with skewered beef strips, French bread and butter and a glass of red wine.

Pick your own choice of hot vegetable. It might be a baked potato with chives and butter or zucchini and fresh tomatoes sauteed in butter with bits of green onion and a dash of Italian seasoning. Or, how about corn on the cob or off the cob. When cut off the cob, it's delicious sauteed in a little butter with green pepper and a touch of chili powder.

ELEGANT AVOCADO SALAD MOUSSE

1 envelope plain gelatin
1 cup water
1 large or 2 small avocados
¾ cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon grated onion
¾ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Few dashes white pepper

Soften gelatin in one-half cup water. Heat, stirring, over low heat until dissolved. Halve avocado lengthwise. Discard seed and skin. Cube. Combine with remaining one-half cup water in electric blender. Whir until pureed. Add sour cream, mayonnaise, onion, salt, lemon juice and pepper. Whir to combine. Add gelatin mixture. Whir to blend. Turn into three or four-cup salad mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish as desired. Makes four servings.

Holes In Poultry Skin A Good Idea

For best results in roasting fatty poultry such as ducks and geese, prick the skin well with a small-tined fork so fat can drain as the bird cooks.

If you add a sweetened glaze, do so during the last 15 to 20 minutes cooking time to prevent burning.

Goose Traditional Bird In Europe

Thrifty cooks there save the fat that renders out and use it for cooking. It is an appetizing off-white and bland in flavor.

By PAT BALMES

The launch puts you ashore on an uninhabited isle in the Indian Ocean. You explore empty beaches, hunt shells, skin dive and sun bathe. At sunset the launch returns to ferry you back to a nearby island where a dinner of fresh fish awaits at your hotel.

This Robinson Crusoe day is a sample of what lies in store on out-of-the-way island vacations. Costs are low once you get there and the few, shoeless tourists are there to enjoy the sea.

WENDY CORN, mother of five children, is putting her island knowledge to work at Sunventure, Inc., a Sausalito travel agency where she is a consultant on unique islands.

"I would prefer to send people to out-of-the-way islands. They are more interesting than Europe or Acapulco," said Mrs. Corn who made her first trip to Europe at 16 and since has been on safari in Africa and traveled around the world.

She believes that the most unusual islands are in Micronesia where she and her husband vacationed last winter. Each one is different, "so native and so beautiful," she said.

You island hop among the lonely islands that made history during World War II. On Majuro you can walk for miles along a reef collecting shells (and sometimes find spent bullets). A golden cowrie shell sells for $500 in Guam, according to Mrs. Corn.

ON PONAPE you sleep in primitive straw huts for $15 a day. You visit Ponape's mid-river cultural island by outrigger where you are greeted with leis for your hair, a cocoanut oil rubdown and kava, a tongue-numbing narcotic drink.

You are seated next to the chief to watch beautiful Micronesian boys and girls do ceremonial dances. On Ponape the native women still wear grass skirts and go topless.

On Saipan you visit the "suicide cliffs" where Japanese soldiers jumped rather than surrender.

On the lush isle of Yap Japanese airplane wrecks still lie beside the runway. There islanders chew betel nuts and use stone currency.

In Palau you can scuba dive over shipwrecks and swim down to Japanese airplanes below the surface of truck's lagoon. There glassbottom boats take tourists into the lagoon to look down on sunken warships.

THE COST of a 15-day tour of Micronesia for one is approximately $1,350. The tour includes round trip air fare from San Francisco to Honolulu enroute, plus inner island air fares, accommodations and food in Micronesia.

Mrs. Corn first fell in love with little-known islands when she stayed at the Caribbean's Petite St. Vincent in the Grenadines, "an island not for everyone. But we loved it," she said.

Yachts can be chartered in the Grenadines, Virgin Islands and Greece, according to Mrs. Corn who crews her family's yacht moored off Belvedere Island.

THE CORNS next adventure was Seychelles Islands in the Indian Ocean, then three days by freighter from Mombasa, Africa. Now planes can fly in, but like at many out-of-the-way islands, pigs have to be cleared off the runway first.

"It is like Tahatti was 100 years ago, lush, beautiful, clear water, few tourists and four small hotels. Our room was $18 a day including meals," said Mrs. Corn.

An island near Belize, British Honduras was a skin diving adventure. They enjoyed the general conversation at dinner about the day's fishing and skin diving; "everyone was up at the crack of dawn," said Mrs. Corn.

For a bargain vacation Mrs. Corn would choose Club Mediterranee, which offers Tahaiti and Bora Bora for seven days at $170 per person, including food and lodging. Air fare is $592.

THE CORNS have also visited New Zealand, Australia and the Virgin Islands.

They plan a winter vacation in New Caledonia, New Hebrides and the Fiji Islands.

Mrs. Corn also wants to investigate several floating vacations offered by the Oceanic Society:

"We are always watching for mentions of little known islands in publications. We either go to see what it's like or ask them to send information," said the new president of Sunventure, Inc.

AMAZING MYSTIQUE

Betty Freidan Is Now Girl Scout

NEW YORK (UPI) — "I was sort of amazed when I was asked," said Betty Friedan, mother of the women's liberation movement.

What she was asked that amazed her — "Will you serve on the board of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.?"

SHE ACCEPTED. There is some amazement still among observers. After all, Ms. Friedan, with her women's revolution, rocked and continues to rock many boats in the establishment. And the Girl Scouts — well, that's a pretty establishment organization.

In an interview, Ms. Friedan discussed some of the reasons she said "yes" when Dr. Cecily C. Selby, national director of the Girl Scouts, invited her.

"I was amazed because it is an establishment organization, or thought of that way," Ms. Friedan said.

"BUT THE MORE I thought of it, the more interesting it became. The modern women's movement believes in restructuring institutions.

"So I see a lot of vitality in the Girl Scouts as an institution.

"I was a Girl Scout back in Peoria and got to just below the top rank. I liked hiking and camping badges but passed up the ones for cooking and sewing."

Ms. Friedan said she is not interested so much in radical chic as she is in the mainstream of American society.

THE GIRL SCOUTS of the U.S.A. with 2.9 million members — one out of every seven girls, 6 to 17 — is awfully mainstream, according to Ms. Friedan.

It is the largest voluntary organization for girls in the world and provides opportunities for girls to experience, to discover, to share girl-planned activities meeting their own needs and interests.

As a strictly girl-centered organization, however, isn't the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. involved in sex-role stereotyping?

THERE ARE MEN on the board at the national and at many local levels but the membership is strictly girls.

Even the Boy Scouts of America, once an all-male organization, now admits girls to its explorer posts.

Ms. Friedan said the question of opening up the membership to boys undoubtedly will come before the board and will be debated as it has in the past.

Should there, in fact, be a merger between the Boy Scouts of America and the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.? If the organizations are to get away from sexrole stereotyping, perhaps what is called for is a Human Scout Movement, according to Ms. Friedan.

WITH HER BOOK, "The Feminine Mystique," back in the 60s, Ms. Friedan got the women's movement to the launching pad. Later, she was a founder and first president of the National Organization for Women.

BETTY FRIEDAN
Newest Girl Scout

Ms. Friedan and the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., as it changes with the times, may in fact be on tracks headed in the same direction.

"The second stage of the women's revolution," she said, "is to restructure institutions based on polarization — male only, female only."

Women Increase Strength In The State Legislatures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women increased their ranks in state legislatures by 26 per cent in last week's elections but still will comprise only a fraction of the total membership.

Many women won key races, however, against opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment which must be ratified by five more states before becoming part of the constitution.

With a dozen races undecided, women have won 125 new seats in legislatures. This brings their total to 591, increasing their percentage from six to eight of the over-all legislative strength.

Nearly one-sixth of the women were elected from one of the nation's smallest states, however, and for the first time in years one state will be without any women in its legislature.

New Hampshire, which has a 424-member legislature, will have 103 women in its House, up from 89, and will retain its two women senators.

Nebraska and Alabama in the past had one woman legislator each.

In statewide races, a woman, Ella Grasso, won election as governor of Connecticut and in New York, Mary Ann Krupsak was elected lieutenant governor.

The Women's Election Central, a joint project of the National Women's Political Caucus, the national Women's Education Fund and the Women's Campaign Fund, compiled the figures on state legislatures.

In addition to New Hampshire the group said particular noteworthy gains were made in Arizona, which had 13 women and will have 18; Florida, from 7 to 12; Georgia, from 2 to 9; and North Carolina from 9 to 14.

Many women were members of the caucus of the League of Women Voters or other organizations which have been vocal in pushing for ratification of the amendment on equal rights for women.

Women also gained 36 per cent more statewide jobs, such as treasurer, auditor, superintendent of public schools and secretary of states.

Of the 51 women who were major party candidates for statewide offices, 31 won, including Joan Growe, elected secretary of state in Minnesota, to become that state's first woman elected to a statewide office. March Fong, the first Asian-American woman to win a statewide office, was chosen secretary of state in California.

Counting the women holding statewide offices not up for reelection, there now are 45 women in these positions.

Montana elected Geraldine Travis as the first black ever to sit in its legislature and South Carolina elected its first black woman, Juanita Groggins, to its legislature.

Open House At Belvedere Honors The Traveling Halls

By MOLLY MARIN

Back in Belvedere to stay are Wallace and Betty Hall, who have maintained their Marin home despite activities which have kept the pair traveling around the state. Dr. Hall, a prominent educator, was Marin county superintendent of schools from 1951-1958, and left for Sacramento in 1958 to become associate state superintendent of schools and chief of the state division of higher education. He had been vice president of the College of Marin from 1944-1946. The Halls lived most recently in the San Jose area, where Hall was superintendent-president of West Valley College in Campbell.

David and Betty Allen honored the Halls at an open house at their home in Belvedere Sunday, which was attended by 50 friends.

PLANNED PARENTHOOD'S "Flyaway Party" brought in nearly $5,000 to help run the clinic in San Rafael.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bhrendt of Ross won the grand prize of a trip to Mexico, which included round trip airfare on Mexicana Airlines to Mexico City and five nights at the luxurious Hotel Alameda. Kathy Nitz of Palo Alto won $500 cash. Mr. and Mrs. David Guggenheim of Belvedere were the delighted winners of a weekend in San Francisco, and left right after the party for the Hyatt House on Union Square.

A Renaissance theme livened the proceedings for 140 guests gathered at the Sausalito Woman's Club. Madrigal singers serenaded and a belly dancer entertained during the cocktail hour. Dinner was served by waiters in turbans and gowns who passed apples on long sticks studded with hot hors d'ouevres, heralded the salmon course with a serpentine dance with a giant paper fish, and dished up vegetables from enormous hollow pumpkins.

MAKING THEIR first home in Novato are Mr. and Mrs. David Ortez Jr., who were married in late October in the Victorian Church in Carson City, Nev.

Jeanette Magliulo and Paul Irvine of San Rafael were attendants at the wedding ceremony. A reception followed at Ormsby House in Carson City. The young couple then took a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ortez of San Anselmo.

LORI ALLEN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen of Mill Valley, has become a pledge of Delta Delta Delta sorority at the University of California at Los Angeles, where she is a freshman student.

LILLIAN OROSCO of San Anselmo was honored with a surprise party Saturday on the occasion of her 85th birthday at the home of her daughter and son and law Mr. and Mrs. Dolph Squeri of San Anselmo.

Guests included old friends from Millbrae, San Francisco and Occidental, as well as her son Donald Orosco and her granddaughters Olivia Squeri and Sylvia Paletta of San Anselmo.

Olive (Mrs. Dolph) Squeri was hostess again last night for a surprise farewell party for her daughter Sylvia Paletta and new husband John, who departed today for a year's honeymoon tour by car of Morocco, Israel, Greece and Italy.

Volunteers Sought For County Regional Occupational Program

Trying to prepare oneself for today's highly competitive job market is not easy, and students in training need all the help they can get.

A call is out this week for volunteers who can assist in the classes of the Regional Occupational Program of the Marin County Schools Office, which conducts a number of job training programs in locations throughout Marin.

"We are looking for people who can give one half day a week or more," said Ann Rivo, coordinator of volunteers in the Regional Occupational Program.

Many enrollees in the ROP need held in basic English and math, Mrs. Rivo said. Others need help with the specific skills involved in their job training classes, particularly auto brake and alignment, auto technology, food service, nursing home (geriatric) aide, office occupations and welding technology.

"Any adult with time to give on a regular basis is urged to call Carolyn Horan at the county schools office in Corte Madera or the Volunteer Bureau of Marin in San Rafael," said Mrs. Rivo.

Mrs. Rivo said many of the persons enrolled in the job training programs are high school dropouts, new divorcees, welfare mothers, single heads of families who "are trying to become skilled or to get out of a situation that's tough."

She said 20 to 25 dedicated volunteers to give one-to-one help to hese students would give many the boost they need toward success. The volunteers would supplement the work of the trained teahcers who instruct each of the programs.

Six volunters are already on the job.

All volunteers would receive extensive training for their roles, Mrs. Rivo said. "I see the volunteer's job as providng a supportive, tutorial relationship with people who can use all the help they can get."

Ornament Instruction To Be Given

Instruction in making Christmas ornaments and gifts will be given by Susan Basho of Mill Valley as a highlight of the luncheon program to be given by the Marin County Dental Auxiliary at the home of Judy Dawson in Ross at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday (Nov. 19).

An informal hobby show where handiwork of members will be displayed is also being arranged. Exhibits will include painting, stitchery, dress designing, quilting and jewelry making.

A gourmet luncheon will be prepared by members who are hobby cooks. Susan Taylor is hospitality chairman.

Attending the luncheon and the board meeting which will precede it at 9:30 a.m. will be Mary Low of Piedmont, Northern Regional Council president of the Women's Auxiliary of the California Dental Association. Nancy McCray of Tiburon is Marin president.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

She Washes, Cooks And Cleans, But He's Gone All Night Long

DEAR HELEN:

Since my divorce I've dated many men, but found only one I really cared for. So I left my kids with their grandparents and just lived for him three weeks: cooked, cleaned, washed his clothes, idolized him. I didn't think it was my place to complain when he stayed out all night, occasionally, but those everyday phone calls finally got to me. I learned they were from a woman who had left her husband for Gerry, but was now "back home" and anxious to light the fire again on a safe basis.

This greedy chick wants her husband and my man too, and he's not one to say "No!" I iron his clothes so he can take her out.

Should I wait for him to get over her, or date a fellow at work who treats me super, but when I'm with him all I think about is Gerry? — D.M.

DEAR D.M.:

(For Doormat?)

Tell me, was your first husband like Gerry?

If you're turned off by considerate men and turned on only by selfish takers you'll be a loser all your life. Give the nice guy a chance and let Gerry take care of his own affairs. — H.

P.S. Maybe you can learn a little from the next letter:

DEAR HELEN:

Here's a reminder for all those "Fools in Love" who write to you. Wake up! For five years I loved a Mr. Cheap. I endured his drinking, gambling and selfishness.

He never bought me gifts, "Because I don't buy a woman's love," but he never refused the gifts I have HIM. He lived at home, and Mama did his clothes, fed him, etc. while I struggled to make ends meet in my little apartment with never a dime of help from him (though we were all but married).

Finally even Mama got fed up, and asked Mr. Cheap, at 27, to live elsewhere. So he moved in with me, but only after I insisted on marriage.

The wedding was planned — all at my expense. I'd bought my dress, paid for invitations, etc., but three weeks before the ceremony, he called it off. He "wasn't ready to accept the responsibility of wife and family," but was only too happy to live together — with me paying half (which usually turned into three-fourths).

That was finally what made me say "Goodbye, Mr. Cheap." I now live alone in an apartment I'm finally decorating. (He would never allow more than the bare necessities.)

I guess the concept of being 27 and having no more than when I was 22 made me jump off the not-so-merry-go-round.

Here's my warning. Don't idolize a "charmer" who is basicly cheap and selfish. — FIVE YEARS WASTED.

DEAR HELEN:

"Doubtful" asked what kind of husbands Irishmen make. One word: Miserable! An Irishman's mother teaches him that his wife is a slave — to wait on him, get his breakfast after he has been out all night at the pub, spending his pay on other people. She says his wife should work out after she has had eight children, then have supper ready even if he doesn't come home to it. And he's always comparing her to his "sainted mother and angel sister" (who are jealous harpies).

I say — don't marry an Irishman! — I DID

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Marin Woman Is Dancing In Capitals Of Europe

A Marin dancer who began her career with a local studio at the age of 4 is now, at 21, dancing in the capitals of Europe as a member of the Netherlands Dance Theater with headquarters in The Hague.

Sheri Gaia, a graduate of San Rafael High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otella Gaia of San Rafael, went to the Netherlands at age 18, when she was offered a scholarship to train with the Royal Conservatory. The director of the national dance theater, a professional troupe with dancers from many countries, saw her dance two years ago and offered her a contract. She has been dancing with the company ever since.

Her career has taken her to performances in France, Norway, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland and Hungary, as well as regular concerts in the leading cities of Holland. She dances 11 months of the year, returning for one month to her home in San Rafael. She last visited Marin in August.

Miss Gaia began her dance career with tap lessons at the Belrose Studio Theater in San Rafael. At age 11 she took up jazz dancing. In 1970, while taking a course in dance at Berkeley, she was spotted by a director of the Royal Conservatory and received the offer of a scholarship there. At the end of her first year there, in 1972, she was tapped by the Netherland s Dance Theater.

For the next few months, there are concerts in London and Brussels, but her ultimate goal, according to her mother, is to become a choreographer herself.

Young Children Have More Colds

Young children have more colds than any other groups or individuals, according to pediatricians. The common cold is highly contagious and spreads easily in classrooms from child to child and from children to teacher. Brought home from school, it may spread from sibling to sibling — and to mother or nurse who cares for them.

According to child specialists, children with colds should be encouraged to play quietly — away from other children. They should be taught to cover coughs and sneezes and to use disposable tissues for wiping the nose and to wash hands after touching nose or mouth.

Infant Seats Are Modified

General Motors is developing a means of modifying the two openings on the love seat infant carrier to prevent the risk of injury to infants, according to Gerald F. Stofflet, manager of product safety on the G. M. environmental activities staff.

Stofflet is urging parents to be sure the restraint straps are fastened properly when the baby is in carriers produced since July of 1973.

The possible hazard, according to Stofflet, is when the carrier is used outside motor vehicles for carrying infants or as a reclined seat.

A modification kit, which will include parts, and a revised instruction label emphasizing proper use of the restraint straps will be provided to owners at no charge. They can be obtained by writing G. M. Love Seats, Box 1973, North End Station, Detroit, Mich., 48202.

The carriers produced before July, 1973, have a different opening and are not affected because the design was modified to accommodate the integrated lap should belt system required by federal auto safety standards on 1974 automobiles.

Women Widen Mortality Gap

Women in this country have a lower mortality rate than men from birth through old age, and the gap continues to widen, according to a study reported in the Metropolitan Life Statistical Bulletin.

In 1910, the death rates among women were about 10 percent lower than those among men; by 1970, the age-adjusted death rate for women was only 57 percent of that for men at all ages.

The greater longevity of women has been attributed by some to social conditions and/or biological factors. In only a few countries in Asia and Africa do women have a lower life expectancy than men. The Statistical Bulletin points out that this may be due to the low social position and poor health care of women in these countries.

Keeping Grandparents Informed

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

When children are little, it is up to parents to keep grandparents informed about special events.

The 10-year-old who plays with the school band or the 11-year-old who has a piano recital really is not responsible for calling these events to the grandparents' attention. Yet grandparents want to know about such things. And grandchildren love to hear from these special friends on special occasions.

An expensive cross-country phone call isn't usually necessary. A card or note generally is sufficient.

Yet, as youngsters get older, and especially when grandchildren are young adults, they become responsible themselves for keeping in touch.

Grandparents are just as interested in the activities of grandchildren who are in their first jobs or in college as they are in toddlers. They want to be as helpful as possible. And they want to know what their grandchildren are thinking and doing.

OFTEN GRANDPARENTS have to make special efforts themselves to keep lines open. This is especially true when parents are separated or divorced.

Picture the following (a growing occurrence in the United States): One set of grandparents, parents of the father in a family, are especially close to the three young children. The little ones love their grandparents and like to share times with them.

Then there is a divorce. Father marries someone else. Suddenly all ties with the favorite grandparents are threatened. Some children may have to wait until they are young adults before then can easily reestablish a relationship with these grandparents.

Or, it may be necessary for the grandparents to keep in touch. Thoughtful grandparents can do so without interrupting the new home pattern or causing any "personality friction."

I know of one grandmother who learned that her son and daughter-in-law were separating for a year prior to completing divorce arrangements. She offered to have the children live with her. At first, both parents were reluctant. But the children, when consulted, were more than enthusiastic.

It was the beginning of a grand new relationship for that grandmother and for the two teen-agers.

Generally, grandparents are good listeners. They like to talk, too. But they also like to hear all about what happened behind the scenes on dress rehearsal night for the eighth-grade play.

AND THEY are marvelous sounding boards for problems young adults have choosing a career. Often grandparents, by their gentle questioning, can help to bring scattered thoughts into focus.

Grandparents, from their broad perspective, can be especially helpful when a young adult is deciding on whether or not to marry someone.

Parents sometimes are too close to the situation. They jump in too fast with an opinion. They may momentarily be put off (or impressed) by physical externals. But a grandmother or grandfather may be able to probe (without rancor) and find out what the real attraction may be and how well the relationship is thought out.

Grandparents 50 years ago did not have to work at being informed. They were a part of the home circle. Today, they are outside that close circle. But they need not be "out of sight; out of mind."

They can be included. Certainly they are interested.

Ad Men Throwing A Few Less Curves

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — Woman used in advertising are gaining a few wrinkles and losing a few curves.

"There's been a change in commercials, no doubt about it," said Dr. Rex Bennett, assistant professor of marketing at the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs. "There appears to be less emphasis on the young, and women as sex objects or decoration protrayal."

He said glamour gals gradually are being replaced by older women who would rather work in an office than a kitchen.

Bennett and Dr. James D. Culley of the University of Delaware have completed a study on "Women in Mass Media Advertising." Bennett said the study revealed that women found in television and magazine advertisements are showing less sex appeal, a few extra years of age and often can be found working at a job outside the home.

"That isn't to say that women aren't being used as sex objects in some of the ads," Bennett said. "They are. But it's not nearly as prevalent as it once was."

Bennett said he, Culley and a few students watched national television commercials on CBS for two weeks in January, monitoring WCAU in Philadelphia during prime evening hours.

The researchers also studied advertisements in a number of periodical and compared them with similar studies in 1970 and 1971.

"The earlier study showed that about one-third of the women were shown either as a sex object or mere decoration in the advertisement," Bennett said. "Our study showed that only about 5 per cent of the women were portrayed in such a role now."

Bennett said the advertising media now are "portraying a more typical type of woman in their advrtising. There's not as much emphasis on the young sex kind of object. They're using the more average, typical person."

He said his study that will be released tomorrow at a meeting of the Southern Marketing Association in Atlanta.

A 'Feminist' With Savoir Faire

By JO ANN LEVINE

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Meeting the tallest woman in France is a surprise: She is short.

But no wonder she is expected to be tall. Francoise Giroud is the highest woman in the French government. She accepted the position of Minister for the Condition of Women only after being assured by President Valery Giscard d'Estaing that she would have enough power so that she would not end up making coffee for the cabinet.

Never one to be deluded about men, she thinks her position at this time is important not because the women of France think it is, but because the men of France think it is. President Giscard d'Estaing did not establish her position as a "gadget," she says.

PRIOR TO the appointment, her life spoke for itself: Working since the age of 14, first as a stenographer, then as a script writer and assistant director for film director Jean Renoir, Mrs. Giroud helped launch the women's magazine, Elle, and then became co-founder and editor-in-chief of L'Express, which has grown to be the largest weekly news magazine in France.

Now she must speak for women.

Her views on the future role of women and especially the future of men have been written in part in her autogiographical book, which, though completed two years ago and a best-seller in France, has just been published in English: "I Give You My Rod."

IN IT she writes:

". . . the present evolution of women and the way it will turn out is to my mind the most profound revolution that highly developed societies will have to contend with — that and the highly charged question of sharing the power of decision."

When asked during her recent visit to New York, "Do any men in power really believe that?" she answered, "Yes, certainly. The President of France really believes that . . . He thinks the major changes in the world will pass through women."

Speaking in a full tone, so round it is almost as though she were harmonizing with someone, her answers usually began with "Yes, certainly," and only occasionally with "I wonder . . ."

SHE AGREED that she could have been asked to fill many roles in the government. Was it stereotyping then that put her in charge of women's affairs?

"I wonder . . . It was a pleasant feeling to have something to do that nobody else could do. And you could have a lot of good ministers. I was in a very special position because my name is known in France as a journalist, as the chief editor of a magazine, and I often appeared on the television. People knew me, and they knew I was not a fighter against men."

She has said that she is not a feminist in the sense of feeling that there has been a plot through the centuries making women slaves of men. ("That would prove that women have been stupid.")

Mrs. Giroud said, "If every girl had a trade, it would change the condition of women. You know, everybody walks on two legs. A man walks on two legs — his private life and his professional life. If a leg is broken, he has another one. If you don't work, you have only your private life, and if your leg is broken you fall down. That is the difference between women's life and men's life. One needs a trade, a professional life, to walk on your two legs."

During her life, does Mrs. Giroud think she has taken men's values or that they have taken hers?

"IN THE FIRST part of my life I took their values," she replied, "and not in the second . . . I stopped with the war, because I hate war, and I thought that men were stupid, and maybe they could have avoided war."

Does she regret giving up the power she had as editor-in-chief of L'Express?

"It is not the same kind of power," she replied. "I am very confident in newspapers' great power, and Watergate is agood example, but it is not the same kind of power. Journalists put the things on the stage, under the spotlight, but when something has to be changed, then someone else has to do it."

EQUALITY IN JOBS, nonsexist advertising, and obtaining allowances to permit working mothers to stay home with their children for two years are some of her goals. She didn't speak about it, but in her book she tells how her son came to be born out of wedlock during the war, and thus she was not able to get proper food and care for him from the Government.

Mrs. Giroud later married and had a daughter, who is now married. Her son was killed in a skiing accident in 1972.

"Family makes sense," she has said, "but marriage is a convention, unless you consider it a sacrament in the religious sense. It had a profound sense when it was held to be a sacrament."

SHE NOTED that salary differences between men and women are less in France than in the United States, and France also has more women professionals (doctors, lawyers, judges, architects, and engineers).

"It is not that America is behind or ahead. It is just that we are different," she said.

While she doesn't like the missionary aspect of the American feminist movement, she said that the reason the feminist movement caught on her and not in France is "because American women felt cheated."

Married Women Now Having More Abortions Than Coeds

NEW YORK (UPI) — The pattern may or may not show up nationally but one study shows sexually active college-coeds these days are having fewer abortions than are working and married womeh.

At PARKMED, the largest outpatient abortion facility in New York City, it is known that two years ago four out of 10 patients were either college or graduate students.

Today the percentage has declined to 30 per cent with a corresponding increase among non-college patients.

Probing into reasons behind the change, Ms. Ardis Danon, PARKMED Specialist in Human Sexuality, Marriage and Family Life Education, conducted two surveys to evaluate similarities with respect to birth control use, method and attitude between the college coed and abortion patients.

In both samplings, the majority of women were white, single, Catholic and between the ages of 20 and 24. Since 1971, this age grouping has represented the largest highest percentage of abortion patients at the facility.

The surveyed groups included 201 coeds from New York and New Jersey colleges and 175 PARKMED patients. All respondents were selected at random.

Ms. Danon said she found striking similarities relating to the type of birth control method preferred. Both groups ranked the pill as first choice, followed by the diaphragm and the IUD.

With experts viewing these methods as most reliable, why weren't the college coeds becoming pregnant, too?

It is Ms. Danon's opinion that the coeds more often were using the most effective contraceptive, the pill. They also were pretty good about taking it when indicated.

One sexually active coed told Ms. Danon:

"I'd sooner flunk chemistry than forget to take my pill."

Ms. Danon said that coed expressed the typical coed's comment about the pill.

By contrast, PARKMED patients, many in the survey, had misgivings about the pill. Said a statistician with a government agency:

"Pollution I can't control, but sometimes I just feel that the pill is poisoning me and then I stop taking it for a day or so, even though I know that missing just one makes me vulnerable."

Another factor leading to unwanted pregnancies in Ms. Danon's judgment may arise because twice as many abortion patients (35.9 per cent) were realying on unsatisfactory birth control methods — including the rhythm method.

Hide Scratch

Nut meats or linseed oil may provide enough coloring to hid a minor scratch on your wood furniture. Break the nut meat of a Brazil nut, black walnut or butternut in half and rub well into the blemish. Linseed oil on a clean cloth may also help.

Children Said Pressured, Too

Adults trying to "make it" in today's society aren't the only ones who suffer from the pressures of our times. Today's complex and fast-changing environment also affects the mental and physical well-being of children, according to a report on the Eighth International Congress of the International Association for Child Psychiatry and Allied Professions.

The gathering produced encouraging evidence that psycho-physiologic disorders not only can be recognized in infancy, but also can be successfully treated in some cases. This evidence is coupled with a growing awareness that the developing child must be viewed in his relation to at least four major areas: family, school, community and his self-awareness.

On the discouraging side, it was reported there is little solid evidence of any decline in the divorce rate or incidence of violence, child abuse and other factors that contribute to a child's emotional vulnerability.

State PTA Defines Its Purposes

A "statement of mission" of the California State PTA was formulated by the Board of Managers meeting last week in Los Angeles.

Designed to give guidance to 1.5 million PTA members in this state, the statement was written in response to changing social and economic conditions.

Here is the statement:

"The mission of the PTAs in California is to represent children and youth by identifying their needs; by advocating their needs to schools and other agencies and organizations that affect youth; and by seeking to effect the action necessary to meet these needs; and holding the PTA and these agencies accountable."

Goals in the fields of education, health and public welfare, based on this statement, will be established by the board of managers in subsequent meetings this year.

Oakland Woman Held In Slaying

OAKLAND (UPI) — A young woman who once used a bank teller's job to stage a $8,000 holdup was held yesterday for the execution-style murder of a 19-year-old massage parlor employee that netted $5.

Curtricia Miles, 23, was charged with forcing the girl to strip in a remote parking lot before killing her with several shots from a .38-caliber revolver, police said.

Geraldine Bonnifield and her sister Renee, 22, had been asked for a ride outside a restaurant by the suspect, who then pulled a gun and ordered them to drive along Interstate 80.

Renee was shot when she tried to flee at an offramp and was left for dead, police said. They said Geraldine was driven to the parking lot of Providence Hospital, ordered to strip and then killed.

Police said the shootings netted only $5.

Renee Bonnifield identified Mrs. Miles as the attacker after she was arrested with the aid of a composite drawing.

A Feminist Is 'Out-Persoded'

OAKLAND (UPI) — Connie Hosemann, leader of a group of feminists, found herself referred to yesterday as "Connie Hoseperson" by the Alameda County Board of Supervisors' chairman.

Chairman Joseph Bort used the changed name when 150 women appeared before the board to demand establishment of a permanent commission on the status of women.

Ms. Hosemann accepted the jocular designation in good humor.

Rush Begins Duties In France

PARIS (UPI) — Kenneth Rush, former deputy U.S. Secretary of State, flew into Paris today to assume his post as new U.S. ambassador to France. He promised to work for "cooperation and understanding."

Inflation Aids State Tax Funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Inflation, which has taken a heavy toll on household budgets, has provided an unexpected $100 million for the state treasury.

State Finance Director Verne Orr yesterday said the $100 million in extra revenue received during the first four months of the current fiscal year was the result of soaring prices.

The $100 million is in addition to the previously reported $400 million budget surplus expected at the end of this fiscal year.

Orr said added sales tax revenues accounted for about $40 million of the unexpected treasury income, and business and corporation taxes produced another $40 million. The remainder came from a variety of other tax sources.

The finance chief cautioned that because revenues are up for the July through October period, there should be no attempt to project a four-month $100 million figure into an annual $300 million expectation.

"There can be a lot of changes between now and the end of the year," Orr warned, "but we think we will probably keep the $100 million through the end of the year."

Another Bug

'Superstar' In S. Africa

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — A record company, Gallo Africa ltd., has won an appeal in the supreme court against a government ban on "Jesus Christ Superstar."

The court ruled the words and music of the album were neither blasphemous nor insulting to the religious convictions or feelings of any section of the population.

California Eggmen Hold Back Surplus

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California egg producers are withholding part of their weekly production from the consumer market in a move to increase prices to meet rising production costs.

State Food and Agriculture Director C.B. Christensen yesterday said producers established a surplus egg pool last Sunday and will divert five per cent of their production into it until next March 1.

He said the plan was proposed by the 15-member California Egg Advisory Board, composed of egg producers. The pool will be used for export to foreign countries, with profits distributed back to producers.

California producers currently are turning out 420,000 cases of eggs, with 30 dozen to a case, each week. A spokesman for the board said the producers are handling too many eggs to cover production costs.

By withdrawing the eggs from the market, the shortened supply should boost the price paid to the producer. That, in turn, will probably push up the consumer price.

Board spokesman Doug Banion said California producers have been losing an average of from 1.5 to 3.5 cents on each dozen eggs produced.

Christensen said the pool also would prevent a reduction in the size of flocks and "keep consumer prices from skyrocketing early next year as a result of greatly decreased production."

The state has authorized the producers to create the pool twice previously, once beginning in November 1972 and running through the middle of July 1973 and again from May to the end of August of this year.

Circus Audience Is Part Of Show

By ELIZABETH POND
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

(Christian Science Monitor sketch by Gene Langley)

DUSHANBE, Russia — It was exactly what a circus should be: one round sawdust pit with nine rows of benches surrounding it, one balcony with an enthusiastic brass band overlooking the pit. One small purple carpet, an authentic touch in this homeland of Central Asian rugs, lay at the front of the ring.

Tadzhiks apologized for its smallness and told visitors they should come back when the grand new circus building is ready. But it was a delight the way it was.

The booted, skullcapped Tadzhik men leaning forward in the front row, the children squatting on the middle benches, and the Russian border troops in the back row could all whiff the animals and see the strongmen's muscles ripple. Here — where itinerant tightrope troupes began entertaining for village weddings and fairs and harvest festivals two or three thousand years ago — the audience were participants, not just spectators.

The show began with stagehands hoisting a silver ball to the top of the central dome — and with the petals of the ball opening to reveal a harem-type girl inside. Her suitors remained earthbound at first, wildly playing their Tadzhik tambourines.

Then they scrambled up a pole to reach the girl, first by using hands and feet, last by pumping hands alone — with the rest of the body upside down and rigid, defying gravity. None could reach the girl, however, until she jumped from her height — into the small purple rug, now held by her suitors.

Next there were somersaults and backflips and shouts and huge flags waved under the acrobats as they soared in the air. The sawdust flew with the exuberance of it all, and the audience clapped in time to the music.

Then came the clowns, the first one with a typical Tadzhik moustache and many-colored striped robe, riding a donkey. His steed bore the license plate "TU-104": TU for "Transport Universal," he explained, and 104 because 100 kilometers takes four hours.

A spangled girl magician produced doves and puppies out of scarves. Camels, familiar rather than exotic beasts in this part of the world, paraded around the ring and displayed their ungainliness by jumping over a long-suffering donkey. One galloping camel chased a clown out of the ring into one (planted) spectator's lap, then put his nose into the lap of another spectator (the director of the circus).

After intermission came the act for which Tadzhikistan is famous — tightrope walking. "Darbos" it is called here, after the village where a legendary boy first used a rope to visit his girl across the ravine.

A boy and girl re-enacted the scene, with walking, running, dancing, and hoop walking. They used a steel cable this time, not jute rope, but the setup was as unpretentious as it was millennia ago, with two posts stretching the cable taut a few yards above the ground.

The trapeze spectacular, high in the center, was performed by a blond Russian artist. She hung by one knee, by her toes, and finally only by her teeth. The music got more and more excited; a stage hand swung her around violently with a rope; the tension grew. Then in a final triumph of control, still hanging on by her teeth, she executed a perfect split.

The audience applauded this in rhythm, too.

Only one act could top the trapeze exhibition: the finale of Tadzhik horsemanship inherited from nomad ancesters. A curly-headed, silver jacketed Errol Flynn type on a chestnut horse and a high-coiffed woman on a white horse danced their mounts to music.

Then various riders raced their horses importunately around the ring in a cloud of sawdust. They lay upside down over the necks of their horses, stood in the saddles, let themselves be dragged upside down with their arms on the ground and only their feet hanging on to the saddles, rode underneath the belly of the horse, going down on the left, coming up on the right of the animal.

The women threw red scarves on the ground, then retrieved them at full speed with only one knee clinging to the saddle. Horse and rider were a dynamic unity.

At last the performance ended, and the acrobats, clowns, and riders took their bows and withdrew. The magic of the Tadzhik circus was over — until the next show.

Aspin Says Railroads Are Victims Of Bias

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., charged yesterday that government travel regulations favor airlines over railroads.

Aspin, who last week said his staff's survey showed that less than one-half of 1 per cent of government travel was by rail, yesterday listed a series of government regulations which he said discriminate against railroads.

"If the federal government is serious about its commitment to continue rail passenger service in this country, then a fair share of government travel should be by rail," Aspin said. "If there is a bias against rail travel, it should be eliminated."

As examples of "built-in biases" Aspin listed:

The requirement that government travel shall be by the "most expeditious means of transportation practicable," which he said had been interpreted to be the fastest means.

A "built-in bonus" on meal allowances which allows airline travelers to collect meal money even when the meal is provided by the airline, while the rail traveler must pay for his meals.

In evaluating the cheapest form of transportation for long-distance trips, the cost of a bedroom on the train is counted as part of the transportation cost. But when an employe flies to another city and must stay overnight after he arrives, the hotel bill is accounted for separately.

Bite Brings A Conviction

TORRANCE (UPI) — Walter E. Marx, 32, was sentenced yesterday to one to 15 years in prison for manslaughter because his teethmarks were found on the victim's nose.

Marx was convicted of killing Lovey Benovsky, mainly on the testimony of Dr. Reider Sognaes, dean of the UCLA school of dentistry, that the teethmarks in the tip of the dead woman's nose matched Marx's dental pattern.

She died of strangulation and stab wounds.

ENOUGH FOR PIES AND PIES AND PIES

Novato Referendum Petition Slated

A group of Novato residents is planning to circulate a referendum petition for a vote next March on the location of a new civic center in Novato.

Mildred Wallace, cochairman of the Novato Federated Women's Club, told the Novato City Council last night that there is a "strong likelihood that a properly worded referendum would receive support."

The referendum would be to direct the city council to consider sites, other than the present site, for a civic center.

Her comment came just before the council voted 4-1 with Councilman Fred F. Ruegg dissenting to acquire another parcel in the city hall area, for expansion at the present site.

The council voted 3-2 last week to proceed with expansion of the civic center after an appeal from residents to consider other sites, an appeal that garnered 433 signatures on a petition last month.

The council voted to acquire the Rosa Souza property at 908 Sherman Avenue, opposite city hall, at a cost of $36,000 including moving costs for the family.

Ruegg, in opposing the purchase, said he would be consistent in his opposition to the site. "I think it is in the wrong place," he said.

Councilman Dorothy P. Young, who had opposed the site last week, voted last night for the land purchase. She said she believes it is a mistake to proceed at the site, but will go along with the decision reached by the majority of the council.

Commenting on last week's election Councilman Gail M. Wilhelm said the city should consider in its deliberations that 57 per cent of the city voters approved acquiring open space. (The $3 million measure however failed to gain the necessary two-thirds favorable vote.)

Ruegg added that the council also should consider that 68.3 per cent of Novato voters opposed Proposition 15 that would have eliminated the need for a referendum before public housing could be built.

The Novato City Council also:

Research Sociologist Named To Sausalito Planning Board

Tom Lonner, a research sociologist at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco, yesterday was named to the Sausalito Planning Commission, succeeding Thomas H. Gildersleeve, who resigned.

After a closed session during an afternoon meeting, councilmen announced the appointment of Lonner, 32, and the reappointment of Paul B. Meserve, both to three-year terms.

A third commissioner, George Hutchins, has resigned his post but will serve until the council decides on his successor, said Mayor Evert H. Heynneman.

Lonner, a resident of the city three and a half years, writes a regular column on Sausalito political affairs for a local weekly newspaper. He told the Independent-Journal that he is undecided on whether to continue the column during his tenure on the commission.

He is a member of Sausalito Environmental Action, a local conservationist group, and the Sierra Club.

A native of San Francisco, Lonner holds a bachelor's degree in sociology and a master's degree in communications, both from San Francisco State University.

He and his wife, Elizabeth, live at 511 Johnson Street.

The Sausalito City Council Also:

BONNETT — Officially seated newly elected Councilman Wayne Bonnett. He also was named the city's representative to the county residential growth control board.

PERMIT — Postponed until Tuesday consideration of a planning commission recommendation that work be stopped on remodeling central school into a new civic center until the city obtains a conditional use permit for the work.

CLOSED — Met in closed session with Atty. Alvin H. Goldstein to discuss possible legal action to gain control of a lease of downtown ferry terminal property obtained by the Golden Gate Bridge District through condemnation. No action resulted.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers on Bridgeway.

2 Nominated For Youth Posts

Two Marin County high school seniors, Guy Williams from Tamalpais High and Chris Morrison from Marin Catholic, have been nominated for posts in the statewide Youth in Government program of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Morrison is the Northern California nominee for governor and Williams for speaker pro tem. They were nominated last weekend at a meeting of Northern California members of the program.

The election will be held at a statewide conference in San Luis Obispo in January.

San Anselmo Council Will Seek To Shorten Hours For Market

San Anselmo's controversial Stop 'n Go Market last night was branded "a pig sty" by Mayor Martin G. Blinder.

The city council, heeding neighbor's repeated complaints over nightlong disturbances from the store's customers and the litter and rundown appearance of the parking lot, ordered City Attorney Hadden W. Roth to draft an ordinance reducing the market's 24-hour operation by closing it between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 1.)

"I think your store is a disgrace and I'm ashamed to have you in San Anselmo," Blinder told Judd McKee, a spokesman for the corporation that owns the market at 807 San Anselmo Avenue. "And it's the first store you come to as you enter" the downtown area, the mayor added.

McKee said the store crew began landscaping shortly after the first complaints were raised in June by neighbors on San Rafael Avenue and adjoining streets. But, he said, trucks working on the city sewer renovation had ruined the plants; landscaping will be resumed as soon as possible, he said.

Several neighbors complained that store customers repeatedly drag race late at night, that the lot is strewn with trash and the debris box swarms with flies.

Councilmen agreed, based on their own observations.

Roth said an ordinance halting the 24-hour operation could be based on the public welfare and tranquility, rather than go through the red tape of abating the market as a nuisance. He said he will have the draft ordinance ready for the council to consider at its Nov. 26 meeting.

The attorney added that the proposed city compulsory cleanup ordinance on which he also is working could help solve the appearance and fly problems at the market.

The San Anselmo City Council also:

SKYLINE ROAD — In response to residents' complaints that their homes are being damaged by storm runoff from improperly built city drainage, voted to contribute $3,500 toward the estimated $10,000 needed for corrective work. Neighborhood spokesman Andy Klapak of 27 Camino de Herrera vowed that instead of chipping in the $500 the council asked each homeowner to contribute, he'll use it to hire an attorney to sue the city.

SIGN — Despite a neighbor's declaration that the Center Market's nonconforming, projecting neon sign "is a funky piece of art," the council turned down an appeal by the store's new operator, Faud J. Balat, against refusal of a variance by the city design review board. Balat was given 60 days to eliminate the sign.

NOISE — Debated for more than an hour, provisions of a draft noise control ordinance before sending it to the city planning commission to set a public hearing. Most concern was expressed over whether some sections might not unconstitutionally gag political rallies.

CABLE TV — After a half-hour debate, voted a $251 donation to the Marin Community Video, which taped a portion of the city-sponsored drug abuse seminar Saturday, for broadcast tomorrow at 8 p.m. to cable subscribers in central and southern Marin. Capurro voted no.

GARBAGE AUDIT — Confirmed a previously expressed intent to freeze garbage collection rates until completion of an aduit by Lindquist, von Husen and Joyce of the garbage firm's books.

CREEK PARK — Unanimously approved spending $3,275 for completion of Creek Park, including a drinking fountain, historical placque, trash containers, a small debris storage building and sidewalks. Public Works Director Charles R. Leitzell reported that juveniles vandalized the new park last weekend, kicking in lattice screens and damaging light fixtures.

FIRE ALARM — Accepted Bruce's recommendation that the city accept $6,000 insurance payment toward replacement of fire alarm circuits damaged by construction on Kientz Lane. Awarded a $6,711 contract to L. H. Leonardi Electric Construction Co. to do the replacement work.

DOGS — Decided against further amending the animal control ordinance at this time, although Councilman John H. Colteaux argued that the best way to solve the city's dog problem is to outlaw more than one animal for any one family, and scrap the leash law to let dogs run free. Mayor Martin G. Blinder retorted that the problems lie with enforcement of the city leash law, not limiting the number of dogs although he personally regards them as a health and safety problem.

VACANCIES — Asked for nominations at the Nov. 26 meeting for a replacement for Planning Commissioner John A. Levo Jr., who has resigned, and Mosquito Abatement District Director Paul H. Brand, whose term will expire Dec. 31. Brand wants reappointment, the council was told. Decision on the appointments will be made Dec. 10.

CORPORATION YARD — Postponed a review of policy on rebuilding the city corporation yard, to Nov. 26.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Nov. 26.

Tiburon Orders Trim Of Belveron Landscaping

The scope of landscaping for the Belveron minipark in Tiburon has to be scaled down drastically to cut costs, the Tiburon City Council decided last night.

The council referred the park plan to the parks and recreation commission for more study after reviewing landscaping bids ranging from $33,553 to $44,623.

The lowest bid, from Trinity Landscaping of Novato, was almost four times higher than the amount budgeted for the project.

The two-acre park, about half of which already has been developed with a tot lot, lies just off Tiburon Boulevard in the Belveron West subdivision.

"It's inconceivable that we would ever spend 10 per cent of the city budget on a project like this," said Councilman Allan N. Littman.

He and other councilmen agreed that the ultimate cost of the park's development should total about $15,000.

City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert suggested that as a first step the city could fence off the park and put in a better path and access road. Landscaping could wait for future years, he said.

The Tiburon City Council Also:

STEPS — Agreed that the Deak Development firm should remove some deteriorating steps it installed on a pathway between Hacienda and Geldert drives and provide $12,000 worth of drainage improvements along the easement there. The developer also would pay the city $2,500 to be used towards either restoring the steps or laying a sidewalk on Geldert Drive.

TENNIS — Agreed to let nonresident staff use the city owned Del Mar tennis courts, but only on nonholiday weekdays. Currently, the courts are restricted to resident play only.

PARK HOURS — Asked the parks and recreation commission to propose an ordinance for setting rules and closing hours for city parks.

ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT — Outlined terms of an agreement to be signed with Madrone Associates, consulting firm of San Rafael, which will prepare the final environmental impact report for the Sequoia Pacific Development for downtown Tiburon. The council asked that the final report include an analysis of a parks and recreation commission recommendation for more open space in the development plan.

REED SCHOOLS — Appointed Councilman Littman and George Ellman to discuss with Reed School trustees the possibility of the city's buying Reed School for use as a civic center. The school board has been considering closing a school to help with its financial problems.

MEETING — Set next Wednesday at 8 p.m. at city hall for a joint meeting of the council and parks and recreation and planning commissions to discuss city policies on recreation, park development, open space purchases, consolidation and Belvedere and annexation.

CLOSED MEETING — Held a closed session to discuss possible litigation involving open space purchases.

Judge Rules Class Action Suit Is Out

A Marin Judge has decided that a $4.2 million suit which claims a West Marin developer cannot provide adequate water to an Inverness Ridge subdivision cannot proceed as a class action.

Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court ruled that, under a recent state supreme court decision, the suit against David S. Adams and Sons, Inc., cannot be argued on behalf of the owners of all 87 developed lots in the Adamses' Paradise Ranch Estates.

But the suit may proceed on behalf of Marin County, which has joined in the action, and the six plaintiffs who filed it, McGuire ruled.

The plaintiffs won a preliminary injunction in June 1973 which forbids Adams from building on any of the 214 existing lots in the subdivision on the ridge.

McGuire's ruling was based on an October supreme court decision which held that a class action, to be proper, must involve plaintiffs who have suffered similar damages.

But too many diverse groups or classes, exist in the Adams case for them to combine in one legal action, McGuire ruled.

The plaintiffs claim there isn't enough water for the existing homes and that the water often is unfit to drink.

An attorney for Adams, Jamie Harris of San Francisco, said the Adamses have installed $57,000 in improvements to their privately-owned Paradise Estates Water Co. since the suit was filed.

But Gary J. Near, A San Francisco lawyer and Paradise Estates landowner, said there is barely enough water to supply the existing homes and not nearly enough — despite the drilling of new wells — for the undeveloped lots.

A Marin County Health Department order has forbidden any construction in the subdivision since June 1972, Near said, because of inadequate water.

Fuchs To Give Land To Novato

Dr. Jerome Fuchs of Beverly Hills has offered to give a 7.5-acre parcel along Novato Boulevard, west of O'Hair Park, to the City of Novato.

A headline in yesterday's Independent-Journal erroneously said city planners had urged purchasing the land.

Travelers Checks Suit Is Begun

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A public interest group has gone to court seeking to end a policy of Controller Houston L. Flournoy which allows travelers check issuers to deduct large service charges on unclaimed items.

The Superior Court suit filed yesterday by Public Advocates, Inc., of San Francisco, named Flournoy, the Bank of America, American Express and three other issuers of travelers checks as defendants.

The suit contended the state has lost $10 million because service charges had been deducted from the checks before they were turned over to the controller as unclaimed property.

But Lawrence Gercovich, administrative assistant to Flournoy, said the $10 million figure "is way high" and he estimated it closer to $500,000.

Under state law, issuers of the checks are required to remit them to the state if the purchaser has not been heard from for 15 years and the checks are still outstanding.

The suit, filed on behalf of Janet Farley, alleged Flournoy's action was illegal and estimated that California taxpayers have been "unlawfully deprived of $10 million."

Records on file with the state showed that in 1973 the Bank of America deducted $23,940 for handling charges on $53,200 worth of the checks.

On the 1,063 travelers checks remitted, the bank took a straight $22.50 for each of its $100 and $50 checks sent to the state.

$3.5 Million Bond Studied In Suit To Block Casinos

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 9th U.S. Court of Appeals took under submission today the question of whether California must post a $3.5 million bond in its efforts to halt construction of two hotel-casinos at South Lake Tahoe.

The court also delayed for 10 days a further hearing on whether the developers were in contempt of court for proceeding with construction in violation of an injunction halting work.

The hotels in question are the $40 million Tahoe Palace to be built by Ted Jennings and the $45 million Hotel Oliver to be built by Oliver Kahle, both on sites near Stateline, Nev.

California's suit now in the Appeals Court claims the buildings would damage the scenic area's environment and questions the legality of the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency's approval of the plans.

Jennings' attorney told the three-judge appeals panel that his client had continued grading for five days after the Aug. 22 injunction, but argued that the injunction was invalid because the state of California had failed to post the required bond.

Kahle's attorney denied charges by Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger that his client had continued construction, arguing that the only work done on the site since the injunction was court-ordered "winterizing."

Presiding Judge Ben Dunniway said the state would have 10 days to respond to these arguments, after which the court would decide whether to hold further hearings.

On the bond issue, Deputy Atty. Gen. Zan Henson argued that requiring California to post the $3.5 million bond would have "a severe chilling effect" on attempts by states to intervene in such cases.

Attorneys for the developers said the state should be treated like any other party that filed a suit which could entail costly delays to builders.

The court also took under submission a request by Douglas County, where the casinos would be located, to intervene in the suit.

Two Are Indicted In Judge's Death

PATERSON, N.J. (UPI) — Two 19-year old Wanaque youths, charged in the sniper death of a 71-year-old night court judge shot while presiding over night court, were indicted Tuesday on murder charges.

A Passaic county grand jury returned the indictments charging David Vervaet and Robert Carroll with the Nov. 4 slaying of Municipal Court Judge Joseph J. Cresente.

Vervaet was arrested Nov. 5, the day after a single .22- caliber shot was fired through a second floor courtroom window, fatally wounding Cresente.

Carroll was arrested two days later.

Ford Declares Remarks About Jews 'Ill-Timed'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford strongly believes that a statement by Chairman George S. Brown of the Joint Chiefs of Staff about an overly strong Jewish influence in the United States was "ill advised and poorly handled," a White House spokesman said today.

Both Ford and the Pentagon disavowed the statement which Brown made in a question and answer session with students at Duke University Oct. 10.

Brown said that "the Jewish influence in this country ... is so strong you wouldn't believe it" and added that Jews own many of the nation's banks and newspapers.

The Pentagon said Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger thought the statement was "a very unfortunate mis-expression of the general's opinion."

Brown himself said he knew the remark could be interpreted as anti-Semitic, but he did not intend it that way.

At the White House, Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters that Ford "considers Gen. Brown's remarks ill-advised and poorly handled" and "feels very strongly" about.

"The remarks of Gen. Brown in no way represent his views or the views of any other senior official of his administration," Nessen said.

Brown today apologized in a telegram to the national commander of the Jewish War Veterans saying, "I deeply regret that my poorly articulated statements have offended a segment of the American population."

Double up, America.

MARRIED FOR 74 YEARS

He Remembers Red-Headed Girl

HOOD RIVER, Ore. (UPI) — Edward and Gertrude Dunham reminisced yesterday about their 74 years of married life, and his memories came up about outlaws and a "little, redheaded, curly-headed girl."

Dunham remembered feeding outlaws Cole Younger and Frank James at the lunch counter and bakery he owned in Booliver, Mo., where he and Gertrude were married Nov. 12, 1900.

"I served them a good steak, a nice sized rib steak," he said. "Two bits, the meal cost.

"Frank didn't have much to say, but Cole would laugh and talk. Everybody 'round that region worshipped those fellows."

The Dunhams were married at age 18 because her father sold his store and was planning to move the family 200 miles away.

"I'd known her ever since she was a little, red-headed, curly-headed girl," he said. "That red curly hair got me, I guess. I don't know what else it could have been."

Mrs. Dunham moved with her husband across country in an emigrant train in 1906 and they began a homestead in the Moses Lake country of Washington, where they raised wheat and mules. They moved to the Spokane area in the 1920s and here two years ago.

"I started out as boss and I'm still boss," said Mrs. Dunham with a smile. "He's always telling me, 'I wish you'd quit saying that.' "

The Dunhams have one son, Wilbern, who lives in Spokane. They also raised a nephew, Jim Quimby, who is 59 now and lives in Portland.

Democrats In Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — All except five of Arkansas's elective governors have been Democrats.

Henry M. Rector ran as an "Independent Democrat" when he was elected in 1860, while Harris Flannagin was listed as a "Confederate" in 1862. Issac Murphy was elected as a "Federal" in 1864.

Powell Clayton, who was elected in 1868; Elisha Baxter, elected in 1872, and Winthrop Rockefeller, elected in 1966, were the state's only Republican governors.

As Inflation Rises, So Does Suicide Rate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rapidly escalating inflation in the U.S. is boosting the suicide rate, reports the National Enquirer.

"There's no doubt inflation's a factor in the increasing number of suicides," said Dr. Joseph Pribyl, director of the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Intervention Service at Chicago's Read Mental Health Center.

Another Argentine Officer Slain

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A guerrilla assassination squad, bent on avenging the deaths of 16 comrades, shot and killed the eighth army officer in Argentina in less than two months, police said today.

Six men firing automatic weapons ambushed Army Lt. Roberto Carbajo, 31, as he stepped out of his car near his mother-in-law's house last night in San Nicholas, 120 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

Carbajo, who was carrying his pistol but did not have a chance to use it, died almost at once from four bullet wounds.

President Maria Estela Isabel Peron declared a nationwide state of siege one week ago at the height of the terrorist campaign.

She ordered soldiers to guard Buenos Aires schools today after children were threatened by guerrillas.

Education Undersecretary Carlos Frattini said the troops would remain outside the schools until the start of summer vacation Dec. 7.

Two months ago the Marxist Peoples Revolutionary Army vowed to kill 16 army officers in retaliation for the 16 guerrillas who died in northern Catamarca Province last August in an aborted commando operation.

Eight officers have been murdered in ambushes in the last 56 days.

U.S. Steel Banks Its Fires; 13,700 Employees Are Laid Off

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — U.S. Steel Corp. became the first major casualty of the nationwide coal strike yesterday, announcing cutbacks that would result in the layoff of 13,700 employees.

Other steel companies held firm yesterday, though they probably will face similar cutbacks if a coal miners strike lasts more than two or three weeks.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest producer; Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., National Steel Corp. and two smaller steelmakers — Kaiser Steel and Georgetown Steel — reported no immediate hardships conditions.

"There are no cutbacks as yet," said a Bethlehem spokesman. "This is a day-to-day thing and we try not to project."

A J&L spokesman said his firm would "start cutting back production next week and we will be cutting back production increasingly. If the strike should go into the fourth week, we'll begin laying off people."

U.S. Steel banked nine blast furnaces yesterday, and Speer said eight more would be shut down at the end of this week. Banking is a process of reducing the heat in the furnace.

"Customers of the steel industry have been confronted with a short steel supply for some time now," Speer said, "and crippling the industry's production capacity at this time of exhausted raw material supplies would further compound steel users' problems and would be extremely harmful to the nation's economy," he said.

Reagan Says Link With Wallace Out

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Retiring Gov. Ronald Reagan ruled out any chance yesterday that he might join with Gov. George Wallace in a third party presidential-vice presidential ticket in 1976.

Reagan was asked at a Capitol news conference if such an alliance between himself and the Alabama governor was totally inconceivable.

"Yes, he's a Democrat and I'm a Republican," Reagan replied without hesitation. "And, I think we have philosophical differences."

But the 63-year-old Reagan seemed momentarily at a loss for words when asked what the specific differences were. After a pause, he answered: "I think he is more of a populist and I think he has a greater willingness to employ government, where I am looking for more solutions to the problems at the private level and through the private sector."

Reagan, who leaves office this year after two terms as California's anti-government governor, has walked an exceedingly narrow path over mounting discussion of him leading a third-party drive.

A one-time Democrat turned conservative Republican, Reagan has made clear he would bolt the GOP for a third party if he believed voters were interested. But he also said he is not seeking to drum up support for the idea.

Reagan was a leading contender in public opinion polls for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination before Gerald Ford ascended to the White House.

At his regularly scheduled news conference, the governor was asked if he was swayed by a reported statement of support for a Reagan-Wallace third party ticket from conservative columnist William F. Buckley.

"No, I'm very fond of Bill Buckley, but I'm not influenced by that kind of thinking," Reagan replied.

Reagan also is "very pleased" with an official portrait of him as the state's 33rd chief executive, an administration aide said yesterday.

The oil on canvas portrait of Reagan, which departs from the formal paintings of previous governors, was presented to the governor last week by Oakland artist Robert Rishell, 57.

"The artist has been able to blend in some of the features of Capitol Park and the Capitol dome with an outstanding portrait of the governor," said aide Pat McKelvy.

The portrait has not been shown publicly and will probably not be hung in the Capitol until after Reagan has left office in January, McKelvy said.

Films On Indians Slated At College

Two films on Canadian Indians will be shown at 8 p.m., Saturday at Olney Hall at the College of Marin, Kentfield, for the benefit of the Center for Folk Art and Contemporary Crafts in San Francisco.

"In the Land of the War Canoes," filmed by Edward F. Curtis in 1914 shows Kwakiutl Indian life on Vancouver Island and the other film is on Canadian Indians, made by the Canadian Government.

There is a $2 charge for adults and $1.50 for students.

Thanksgiving Sugar Boycott Proposed

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston City Councilor Louise Day Hicks has proposed consumers boycott sugar Thanksgiving Week to protest high prices.

Mrs. Hicks said Tuesday such a boycott, beginning Nov. 25 and lasting for the rest of the week, would "demonstrate our deep concern for an immediate end to the spiraling sugar price increases."

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, Nov. 13, the 317th day of 1974 with 48 to follow.

the moon is new. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

Scottish author Robert Louis Stevenson was born Nov. 13, 1850.

On this day in history:

In 1927, the Holland Tunnel under the Hudson River between New York City and New Jersey was opened. It had been under construction seven years.

In 1933, the first recorded "sit-down" strike in the United States was staged by workers at the Hormel Packing Company in Austin, Minn.

In 1956, the United States Supreme Court ruled segregation of the races on public buses was unconstitutional.

In 1973, the U.S. Senate approved a bill authorizing construction of an oil pipeline from Alaska.

A thought for the day: U.S. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "The life of the law has not been logic; it has been experience."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It Takes A Cunning Player To Break Rules At Right Time

Every experienced bridge player knows enough to play third hand high. It takes cunning rather than experience to break this rule at the right time.

WEST OPENS

West opened the deuce of hearts, and declarer studied the dummy. This gave East the chance to do some thinking, too.

When declarer, after a few seconds, played the four of hearts from dummy, East innocently played the six of hearts.

South looked at the trick with some suspicion and was tempted to win with the nine of hearts but decided to win with the ace in order to keep a heart entry in dummy for the long diamonds.

West watched South's hesitation with close attention. It wasn't hard to deduce that East had done something peculiar, and it didn't take West long to work out what had happened.

SETS UP DIAMONDS

South proceeded to set up the diamonds according to plan. East took the third diamond and returned the four of clubs. The finesse went to West's king, and back came a club to South's ace.

Now South led the five of hearts, and West shrewdly played the eight. Declarer wavered since he had expected West to put up the king, but he nevertheless played the ten of hearts from dummy.

It was for just this reason that East had withheld the jack of hearts at the first trick. He was able to win the jack of hearts at this moment, and South was down two instead of making the contract with ease.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - Q 9 8 6
♥ - K 8 7 2
♦ - 5 4
♣ - K 8 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades. The positive response is justified since you not only hold good trump support and a side doubleton but also two kings in side suits. If partner is interested in a slam, as he should be, you will not hold back.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Understanding Of Warts Could Be Help In Cancer Treatment

Ordinary warts often disappear spontaneously, even without treatment. Recent studies show that their "disappearing act" might be related to cell-mediated, immune responses, which, if understood, could be of importance to oncologists (tumor specialists).

Warts evoke a different type of response at different points during their life cycle. If scientists can determine what triggers these changes, they might be able to apply it to the treatment of cancrs.

A WART is a viral infection of the outer layer of the skin. While there appears to be a relationship between certain cancers and viruses, there is a critical difference. Ordinary warts appear to be contagious and transmissible from one person to another, but they are not harmful. We cannot say this about cancers.

These lesions can be removed by burning, freezing, dessication or using chemicals. And even though the procedures are minor, they require an anesthetic.

Warts occur on any part of the skin, but they are easiest to remove when on the hands and fingers — often through suggestion. For example, if a person has one wart on his thumb and another on the middle finger, the physician tells him that treating the wart on the middle finger will also take care of the lesion on the thumb. Oddly, the one on the thumb often falls off for no apparent reason.

WARTS ON the bottom of the feet (plantar warts) are highly resistant to treatment. When these warts (some are pinhead-size; others, an inch or two in diameter) occur on pressure points of the foot, they are exceedingly painful. The disabling distress has been likened to walking with a pebble in the shoe. These kinds of warts require medical treatment.

Regardless of the type of wart you have, don't be too optimistic when dealing with it. Even though they are removed completely, a high percentage return again and again.

ASTHMA PROPHYLAXIS

W. writes: Can a person prevent attacks of asthma?

REPLY

Possibly, if he avoids the causative dusts, dander, foods, drugs, cosmetics and the hundreds of other possible offenders. But this is easier said than done since asthma results from a variety of causes. Although the emotional causes of asthma are well known, they are much more difficult to eliminate. Professional advice is always recommended when the person has asthma.

ARTHRITIS VARIANTS

T.R. writes: Is it possible for the doctor to predict the outcome of osteoarthritis?

REPLY

Not always. This unpredictable disease may remain the same, subside or grow worse, and there is not necessarily any correlation between the X-ray findings and the symptoms.

OBESITY, HEART

O.P. writes: What does overeating do to the heart?

REPLY

Every extra pound of blubber requires hundreds of miles of blood vessels, which adds to the workload of the heart.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Ford Switches Vacation Homes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Because of Secret Service apprehensions, President Ford is going to trade vacation homes with Dick Bass, president of a Dallas oil company, for the family's Christmas vacation in Vail, Colo.

Although arrangements are not yet complete, Bass was expected to take over Ford's three-bedroom condominium, purchased for $50,000 some years ago, and Ford will stay in Bass' more spacious mountain home. The President will pay Bass the difference in rent, a White House spokesman said.

Mort Sahl Being Sued By Sinatras

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The lineup in a suit filed yesterday in Superior Court would make an attractive bill on any Las Vegas marquee — Frank and Nancy Sinatra and Mort Sahl.

The Sinatras filed suit against the satirist, charging he had failed to pay a 12-year-old debt.

Joining in the suit was the City National Bank of Beverly Hills. The suit said the bank and the Sinatras had loaned Sahl $20,000 in 1962, and that Sahl still owes the bank $1,500, Sinatra $8,000, and Sinatra's daughter $500.

Falklands Attract Few Tourists

By A. D. BRUCE JR.
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

On world maps the Falkland Islands are a pair of isolated, midget footprints treading the south Atlantic ocean off the southernmost tip of South America.

Since 1883, they have been occupied as a British crown colony, but Argentina disputes England's claim to the land, while citizens proclaim their sentiments on bumper stickers saying, "Let's keep the Falkland Islands British."

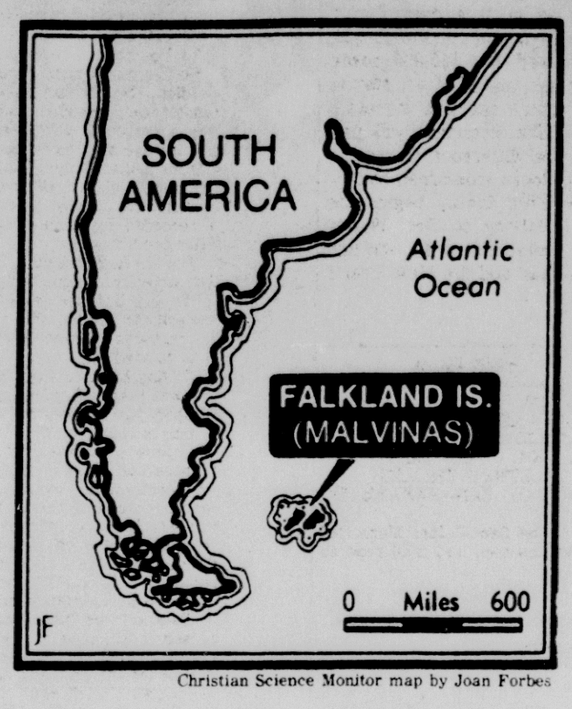
Tales of the area as a bleak, rainy, windswept, never-never land undoubtedly came out of the mouths of whaler-sailors. But even the natives make sport of exaggerating the weather here.

Nevertheless, these islands (East and West Falkland, plus several smaller ones) are home to 2,000 Falklanders, 650,000 sheep, and more penguins, sea birds and seals than any other island outside Antarctica.

Because of their remoteness, the Falklands (slightly larger than Jamaica; slightly smaller than Connecticut) have been a repair and reprovision haven for ships which have limped into its protected harbors after sailing round-the-Horn and across the tempestuous Drake Passage.

As a matter of fact, sheep left by Whalers, to be retrieved on a following trip, became the islands' main industry. Today, the wool crop runs close to five million pounds annually.

Reversal of the seasons brings a smattering of adventuresome tourists and a bit of income to the Falklands (lying between 51 degrees and 52 degrees 30 minutes S. latitude — roughly equivalent in the northern bemisphere to the Aleutian Islands or southern Canada) in the December-February summer.



Christian Science Monitor map by Joan Forbes

A giant step, tourism-wise, was taken with the 1972 completion of the Port Stanley airstrip — constructed largely through Argentine efforts. This has enabled tourists to fly from Buenos Aires to Comodoro Rivadavia, Argentina, and from there to the Falklands, 600 miles away. Before that, the chief means of reaching these islands was the monthly supply ship from Montevideo, Uruguay.

Most visitors, being naturalists or nature lovers, spend little time in Port Stanley (the capital and major town); they quickly seek the smaller outer islands such as West Point, owned by Rod Napier, a conservationist who has protected the penguins breeding in the Falklands.

It takes a tiptoe through the tussock (bunches of tall grass which many birds prefer for nesting) to reach an enormous Rockhopper penguin rookery (population is possibly 250,000 birds). Strangely, these gentlemen-in-dinner-jackets like to share their home with the black-browed albatross. They get along peacefully enough and share a common enemy, the egg-stealing Falklands skua, a bird which will attack a man if he gets too close to its nest.

Not far distant, Magellanic penguins, quite distinctive with stripes across their faces and bibs, burrow in the ground to nest. Locally, they have earned the name "jackass penguin" because of their loud "bray," and for the ludicrous twisting of their heads when their curiosity is aroused.

Zodiaks (rubber-pontooned boats powered by outboard motors which frequently get tangled in the kelp) zip passengers across to outlying rock islands enabling them to watch water ballets by southern sea lions (about 50 in the chorus line) and by Peale's dolphins (smaller chorus of five, while Dominican and Dolphin Gulls wheel overhead.

In the past, life on the Falklands has not been a bed of roses for bird or beast. Bounties were paid for the beaks of birds that ate too much of the sheep's grass. Whales, seals, and penguins were once slaughtered ruthlessly.

Today, a chief attraction of New Island is the remains of the Falkland's only whaling station, which flourished from 1913 to 1916. All that's left of this ecology-sabotaging industry are rusting boilers and tanks, dilapidated lathes, the slip where boats and whales were winched ashore, piles of coal, bleached whale bones, and a dull harpoon head.

Church Keeps Beer Flowing

Power and beer were restored when officials of the church next door allowed engineers to hook the pub's power lines into the church's supply.

Jorge Morel To Perform In Petaluma

Guitarist Jorge Morel of Argentina will perform at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Petaluma Concert Association's second concert of the season. The event will be held in the veterans memorial building in Petaluma.

Morel will focus on works by modern South American composers, including himself, according to spokesman Alberta Jacobsen. But he also will play classical guitar pieces.

Morel came to the United States in 1961. He made his debut at Carnegie Hall, then went on national tour. He records with RCA Victor.

Season memberships in the concert association — at $9 for adults and $4.50 for students — may be obtained by writing P.O. Box 2068, Petaluma, 94952.

The group plans five concerts this season.

Terra Linda Session Set

You can make it, America! Singer will help.

Think of it. Any look you want. For less than you'd spend on dinner out. All it takes is a good sewing machine. A Singer* sewing machine. Because we make them to make things easier. Our Touch & Sew* machine for example. It sews everything from knits to whatnots with 15 different stitches. It has a built-in buttonholer so you can pick button-up patterns without a second thought. And it's got all-dial controls. Does all its tricks at the touch of your fingertips. And would you believe a push-button front drop-in bobbin? Fabulous! And exclusive. Because we invented it.

With this sophisticated machine you can turn out even the most complicated designer number. And keep smiling, all the way. And it's on sale to save you $70 before you even sew a stitch. Free instructions come with it. In fact you get hours of free instruction with any machine you buy at Singer. Including our great zig-zag machine, on sale at $88. Really efficient. Among other good things, it's got an exclusive front drop-in bobbin. And a blind-hem stitch you can barely see on the right side. Now —if you haven't turned your old machine into a planter, just bring it to Singer. You'll get a surprisingly generous trade-in allowance.

Postal Service Costs Will Climb

By DAVID T. COOK
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Postal costs in the United States are going to climb either directly or indirectly, congressional sources say.

The Postal Service's operating costs are rising and its deficit is growing. As a result, either stamp prices will have to climb, mail service will have to be curtailed, or Congress will have to vote continued and increasing subsidies from tax revenues for an agency it designed to be largely self-supporting.

Since further service cuts or stamp price increases are politically unpalatable, many here expect the next Congress to vote a larger permanent subsidy for the Postal Service.

A recent study by the Senate Committee on Post Office and Civil Service suggested that "more serious consideration be given to increased subsidization." The current annual subsidy is $1.55 billion.

Congressional committee sources say there was strong adverse voter reaction to the last postal rate increase on March 2, when first-class rates rose 25 per cent to 10 cents an ounce.

Since the congressionally controlled post office was reorganized as the independent Postal Service in 1971, the service's operating deficit has grown from $175.4 million to an anticipated deficit this year "in excess of $500 million," says postal spokesman Howard Lewis.

Between July, 1971, and June, 1974, postal costs rose at a 7.5 per cent yearly rate. Costs for fiscal year 1975 are expected to climb 8.5 per cent.

There is considerable debate about the service level the Postal Service now offers. The service says its delivery is improving and claims that 99 per cent of all first-class mail is delivered by the fourth day.

A different assessment of current mail delivery standards comes from congressional offices. "The vast majority of the population does not expect overnight delivery," one staff member notes, "but they do expect consistency." Congressional offices report numerous citizen complaints about erratic postal performance.

Nevertheless, some congressional critics acknowledge some improvement. "It is now better than the Christmas of 1972 by far," a Senate committee staff member adds wryly.

A recently issued House report on how the Postal Service affects small firms claims that "private firms have established that they can provide postal service at less cost and more dependably than the present postal system."

There is not "any chance" that Congress would allow private firms to compete with the Postal Service on first-class deliveries, legislative sources say. Such a setup is "fraught with problems," a Senate Post Office Committee staffer notes.

Chief among these problems is the possibility private firms would offer lower delivery costs in densely populated areas. Unequal rates would not appeal to congressmen from sparsely populated areas, where deliveries could cost more.

But some postal reform is expected in the next session of Congress.

Plutonium's Safety Argued

By DAVID F. SALISBURY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

New controversy in the U.S. is bubbling up over fuel used in commercial nuclear reactors.

Some are saying that the proposed use of the manmade element — plutonium — is a dangerous health hazard.

On the other side, the move is seen as an effort to provide a cheap fuel source for electric-power generation. Proponents also content that plutonium's use could cut health hazards in the industry.

Within the next year, the former U.S. Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), now the lion's share of the new Energy Research and Development Agency, wants to commit the nation to adding plutonium to the fuel burned in reactors.

In a draft environmental impact statement, the commission concludes that this step will provide cheaper, nuclear-generated electricity and actually reduce the over-all health risk of the atomic industry.

Yet, so great are the fears of some about plutonium that this proposal has met strong opposition from arms-control advocates, biologists, and environmentalists.

Plutonium was discovered in 1940, and visible amounts were created in the core of nuclear reactors shortly thereafter. In 1945, the first plutonium bomb was exploded, and by 1946 the first plutonium-fueled test reactor was started. Each sample of this artificial element will exist for thousands of years.

Experiments performed 25 years ago quickly established that tiny internal doses of plutonium were potent health hazards in animals. Since then much has been learned about the effects of this strange material on animals, but its long-term effects on human workers exposed to it remain problematical, admit rdiological health experts.

Thus far no evidence of plutonium-caused cancer has been found in humans. However, the adverse effects of a somewhat similar radioactive substance, radium, do not appear for decades. Physical scientists, therefore, feel it is too early to be sure about plutonium effects.

Because of its flammability and adverse health potential, plutonium is treated with elaborate precautions. Workers handling it must dress in cocoons — "contamination suits." Whenever possible, it is manipulated by remote control.

Checking into the safety record of plants handling plutonium, Robert Gillette of Science magazine reports that a disproportionately high number of exposures occur in private companies. Similar privately owned facilities would process the ever-increasing amounts of plutonium created in commercial reactors when plutonium recycling begins.

At three of these companies more than 130 persons were accidentally exposed to plutonium radiation, and athe AEC recently fined one facility $12,000 for willfully violating safety regulations.

Another plant was closed in part because of disagreement over safety measures between the commission and plant management.

AEC officials, however, maintain that exposures have been "minor" and are being guarded against. But scientists Arthur Tamplin and Thomas Cochran, working for the Natural Resources Defense Council, claim that present plutonium safety standards are not broad enough. They do not cover certain sizes of radioactive particles which the two scientists maintain are hazardous to health.

Radiation health experts at the AEC and other researchers say that recent tests contradict this theory. The National Committee for Radiological Protection and a panel of the National Academy of Sciences is now reviewing the evidence.

Using plutonium would save an estimated 130,000 tons of uranium by 1995, thus cutting down uranium mining and its possibly harmful exposures to uranium miners concludes the AEC.

Ex-Prisoner Raps 'Careless' U.S. Attitudes

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI) — Former prisoner of war Lt. Col. Paul A. Kari, saying Americans take freedom too much for granted, retired Tuesday from the Air Force.

Kari, a prisoner in North Vietnam for seven years, said since being freed in February, 1973, and returning home, he noticed "the apparent careless attitude toward freedoms that we hold so dear. We seem to have a nonchalant attitude."

He said there were too many people who believed of freedom "We've had it all of our lives and we'll always continue to have it and that the enemy is soft. That's not true."

Jewish Refugees Go Many Places

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A third of all Jews now leaving the Soviet Union for Israel end up in other countries, Israel immigration officials said yesterday.

In recent weeks, 27 per cent of the emigrants reaching Vienna en route to Israel have chosen to stay in Austria or go on to North America, Western Europe or Australia, according to statistics compiled by the Jewish Agency, Israel's clearinghouse for immigrant services.

About 5 per cent of those who reached Israel in the last two years have since left, agency sources said.

New Trial After Guilty Plea Is Ruled Possible

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Supreme Court ruled yesterday that a criminal defendant who pleads guilty is entitled to a new trial if the courts later rule out certain evidence against him.

The decision came in the case of Charles Edwin Hill Jr. and Gerald Schnabel, who pleaded guilty in San Bernardino Superior Court to second degree murder after the court denied several motions to suppress evidence.

They later appealed, claiming the search and seizure rulings were in error. The Supreme Court, in a 58-page opinion, said most of the evidence was admissible, but that four tape recordings, two paper bags of drugstore receipts and a motel receipt were seized only on the basis of police speculation and should not have been admitted.

The court then held that the guilty pleas must be set aside since an appellate court would have no basis for determining if the error was "harmless" since there is no record after a guilty plea. Had there been a trial, the court held, the appeals court could determine from the record whether or not the error was harmless.

A dissenting opinion by Justice William P. Clark Jr., concurred in by Justice Marshall McComb agreed on reversing the conviction in this case but objected to holding the harmless error doctrine inapplicable in all such cases.

Firewoman Loses Job

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Sharon Devlin, 21, the city's first firewoman, has been fired for failure to meet physical strength standards.

Acting City Manager Clifford Rusch, in a letter delivered Tuesday to Miss Devlin, said to give the woman "special consideration ... would carry serious implications with respect to the laws of equal opportunity."

Rusch fired her on the basis of an evaluation by training school officials that she failed to meet strength and standard requirements. He decided against an earlier plan to give Miss Devlin a second, newly devised physical fitness test.

The roles of obesity and exercise in diabetes will be discussed by Dr. Richard I. Bernstein, an endocrinologist, at the monthly meeting Monday at the Marin County Diabetes Association in the library at Redwood High School, Larkspur. The doctor will speak at 8 p.m., following a business session at 7:30.

Athletic Beauty On Cow Palace Floor

SAN FRANCISCO — It was beauty, grace, precision and strength. It was an athletic event without competition. It was ballet in sports.

Few, if any, of the 13,139 spectators at the Cow Place last night couldn't feel they were treated to one of the best sports performances imaginable when the USSR national gymnastics team put on one whale of a show.

It was one of seven stops on the U.S. tour which stretches from coast to coast. Tickets for the San Francisco stop were sold out almost before they went on sale.

As throngs of people tried to push toward the entrances a group of placard carrying demonstrators quietly walked around a circle with the message, "free the Jews in Russia."

AS THE TIGHTLY packed crowd moved as an ocean's wave toward the entrance, one guy in the midst of the crush said, "Now I know why they call this place the Cow Palace."

Because it took so long for the mass of humanity to get into the place and find their seats, the start was delayed a half an hour. There was some sporadic clapping, the early arrivals getting impatient.

Then the gymnasts were introduced. Most had names that sounded strange and almost impossible to pronounce. But not the last of the 16 men and women introduced. It was Olga Korbut. The same Olga Korbut who had a magical effect on the millions around the world who watched on television when she stole the show during the gymnastics events at the Munich Olympics.

At least 12,000 of the more than 13,000 spectators must have brought cameras and flash bulbs with them. When Olga was introduced the inside of the Cow Palace looked like a massive fireworks display. Bulbs were popping all over the place.

THEN CAME the Soviet national anthem, the spotlights focusing on the red flag high in the Cow Palace, followed by the U.S. national anthem. Unlike its playing before baseball or football games, this time the anthem seemed like it really meant something. And there they were, next to each other, the U.S. and Soviet flags.

For beauty there were the floor exercise and dance routines called, "modern gymnastics," where objects were used to add a new dimension to the dance. Lydmela Yevtushenko did one dance with a ball, another with a ribbon. Galina Shafrova used a hoop. They all made it seem the object was part of them.

THE VETERAN of the cast was Yuri Saveliev, 41, who with his 31-year-old wife, Galina, drew a long and loud ovation for their acrobatic dance routine. Most of the Soviet athletes were in their 20s but there were teen-agers Nina Dronova, 16, and Nelli Kim, 17. And Olga, who looks more like 13, is still a teen at 19.

The one Soviet star missing was Ludmila Turischeva, the Olympic gold medalist who stayed home because of injury. She's the one who had so much talent but always found it difficult to smile. Instead, Olga Korbut did the smiling and won the hearts of millions. Last night Olga recaptured the hearts of those who attended. She was marvelous on the balance beam and uneven parallel bars.

Last night there was no competition between individuals or teams. This is the way I believe gymnastics can best be appreciated. Without being able to use a stopwatch or tape measure it is too hard to judge the difference between first and second in such an event.

Barry Issues Warning To Warriors

OAKLAND (AP) — Forward Rick Barry couldn't have been happier about the Golden State Warriors' come-from-behind basketball victory over the Atlanta Hawks, but he also couldn't help issuing a warning.

"We can't hope every game to start slowly and then turn it around," said Barry, who sparked the second-quarter surge that brought the Warriors from behind to win 128-111 last night.

"We could get down by 20 points and the other team will blow us out," he said. "We should make them play catch-up, not the other way around."

The Warriors trailed by up to 11 points until Barry sank eight points in under two minutes to tie Atlanta 40-40 midway through the second quarter. A basket by Butch Beard and another by Barry put the Warriors ahead to stay 48-46, although the Hawks pulled to within one point, 72-71, in the third period.

Barry, who took game honors within 33 points, said the Warriors turned the game around because "we forced their forwards, Lou Hudson and John Wetzel, to shoot farther out. And we started running."

The Hawks sank 13 of 22 shots during the first period to the Warriors' seven of 21, but Golden State was shooting 50 per cent by the end of the game compared to Atlanta's 46.2 per cent.

"I thought one key was their offensive rebounding," said Atlanta coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "We couldn't get second shots inside."

Fitzsimmons was ejected from the game in the final period, although he denied ever giving the officials what for.

"I didn't use any profanity," said Fitzsimmons, who strode to center court to plead his case with the referees. "All I said was to ask if the officials can't call an offensive foul on Rick Barry. For that I got ejected."

Coach Al Attles called it an especially satisfying win in that he felt the team did not play that good a game. "We played hard and the defense never let down," he said. "Our two centers played well."

The Warriors, who have won nine of their last 10 games, now lead the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division by two games over Los Angeles. They will host the Philadelphia 76ers next on Saturday.

Terra Linda Wins Crown

Terra Linda High School yesterday clinched its fifth Marin County Athletic League water polo championship in the last six years.

The Trojans, who relinquished their stranglehold on the league to Redwood last year, regained the crown with a 25-1 win over San Marin. The victory gave Chuck Metz' team a final league record of 9-1.

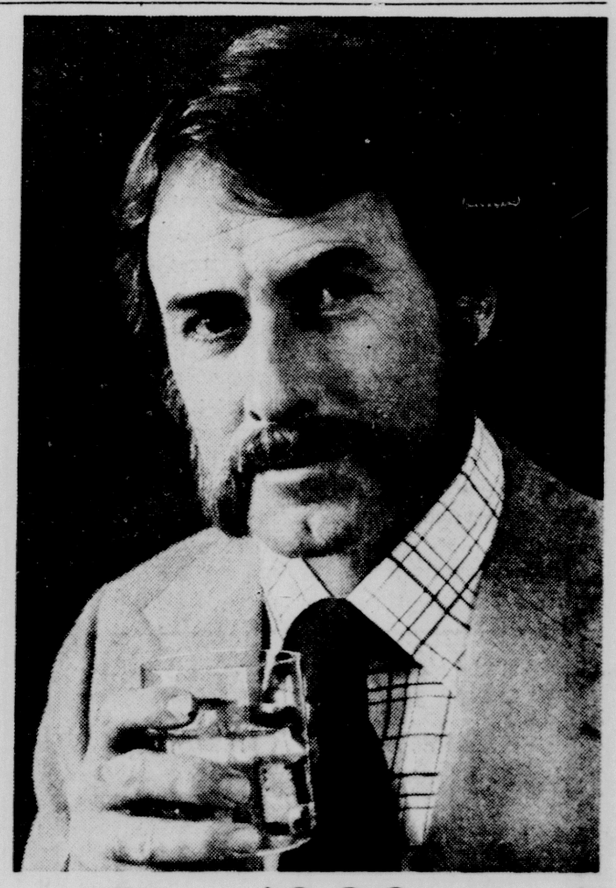
"The kids did a good job this year, and I think it was not just my starters who did it," said Metz. "It was the fact that we had more depth than the other strong teams. Our seventh through 12th players were much stronger than theirs."

Terra Linda will represent the MCAL Friday and Saturday in the North Coast Invitational meet at Acalance High in Lafayette.

Standings — Terra Linda, 9-1; San Rafael, 7-2; Redwood, 5-3; Drake 4-5; San Marin, 1-7; Tamalpais, 0-8.



Garvey Proves Point With Bat

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steve Garvey, the Los Angeles Dodgers' "nice guy" first baseman and the only major leaguer this year to collect at least 200 hits and 100 runs-batted-in, today proved the "big stick" is more valuable than the "quick steal" by winning the 1974 National League most valuable player award in a runaway over Lou Brock.

Garvey, who drove in 111 runs for the pennant winning Dodgers, accumulated 270 total points from the Baseball Writers of America (BBWAA) — including 13 first place votes — to outdistance Brock, baseball's all-time stolen base king, by 37 points.

Brock, the St. Louis Cardinals' early favorite for the award after setting an all-time one-season stolen base mark with 118 steals, wound up with eight first place votes and 233 total votes.

The champion Dodgers, not surprisingly, placed three players in the top five with Cy Young Award-winning relief ace Mike Marshall third with 146 points and centerfielder Jimmy Wynn fifth with 137 points. Catcher Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds, the NL runs-batted-in leader with 129, was fourth with 141 points.

Typically, Garvey, considered by many observers as one of baseball's truly "nice guys," shunned most of the credit for the award.

"Any success I've had is directly or indirectly due to other players on the team," the 25 year old Garvey said at a Los Angeles news conference. "The whole season is a culmination of (Dodger manager) Walter Alston's confidence in me. The key to my success is my wife."

Asked as to why he never seemed to lose his temper or criticize others, Garvey, who batted .312 with 200 hits and 21 homers in '74, gave three reasons.

"First," he said, "I have a beautiful life and family, plus I'm blessed with a good organi-

Volatile Hayes Told To Control Outbursts

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes had a reprimand and warning today to avoid any action in the future which might be construed as unsportsmanlike conduct.

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke issued both the reprimand and the warning yesterday for Hayes' public criticism of officiating and play in Ohio State's 16-13 defeat by Michigan State Saturday.

The reprimand was imposed under a clause in a newly approved sportsmanlike conduct code adopted by the conference which provides that unsportsmanlike conduct shall include "any person who publicly is unduly critical of any game official, conference personnel, another member institution or its personnel."

"Such person shall be subject to a public reprimand for the first offense and to a one-game suspension for an additional offense," the code rules.

Duke said he had talked to Hayes personally to inform him of the reprimand and that there would be no other penalty "at this time."

However, he said "I have informed Coach Hayes . . . that repetition of his unsportsmanlike conduct would result in referral to the conference compliance committee for imposition of increased penalties."

The penalty was levied because Hayes criticized Michigan State players for not unpiling quickly enough as time ran out in their game Saturday and also game officials for not stopping the clock because of what he believed undue delay in unpiling by the Spartans.

Hayes also was accused of punching at least one Michigan State fan after the game, but Duke inferred that the fans should not have been near enough to Hayes to get punched, and said crowd control "is a problem."

The sportsmanlike conduct code was prepared by a special committee including a faculty representative, athletic director, football coach, basketball coach, sports information director and Duke. It was approved by the conference faculty group and directors last July and reviewed at a special meeting of athletic directors and football coaches in August with the understanding it would be effective with the start of the football season.

Hayes, while not at the review meeting, had a representative present and the code was reviewed for him, Duke said.

"Coach Hayes himself expressed publicly his support for these efforts," Duke said.

The penalty on Hayes was the first issued under the new code. Duke last year unofficially ordered Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler to cease criticism of the conference decision to send Ohio State to the Rose Bowl after the two teams tied for the conference championship.

San Rafael Ends Season Unbeaten In Volleyball

San Rafael High School won the girls volleyball championship of the Marin County Athletic League yesterday, staving off a final game challenge by visiting Tamalpais.

After dropping the first game, 8-15, San Rafael came back to take the next two, 15-10, and 13-10 as time ran out. San Rafael finished the season undefeated with 12 wins, and handed Tam its only two against 10 wins.

Nickey Drejes of Tam led all servers with 13 points, Donna Casassa of San Rafael had 11.

In another game yesterday, Redwood beat Marin Catholic, 6-15, 15-7, 15-4 behind 10 points by Cres Van Keulen.

Volleyball Title To Marin Academy

Marin Academy won the Bay Counties League girls volleyball championship, defeating College Prep of Oakland, 15-7, 10-15, 15-4 in San Rafael.

The victory, in the next-to-last game of the season, gives Marin a 7-0 conference record and an 11-3 overall mark. Jo Berg led the way with eight service points.

Golden Seals Getting Younger

OAKLAND (UPI) — The young California Golden Seals keep getting younger.

The Seals, who host Chicago tonight, last weekend traded Stan Gilbertson and Craig Patrick to St. Louis for Dave Gardener and Butch Williams in a swap of linemen.

PREP STATISTICS

Roche Takes Rushing Lead

San Marin High School tailback Wayne Roche has taken over in his bid to win a second straight Marin County Athletic League rushing title.

Statistics through last weekend show the speedy senior has replaced teammate Bob Bennett as the leading runner with one game left to play. Roche, who rushed for 535 yards last year, upped his 1974 total to 333 with an 87-yard performance last Saturday against Drake.

Novato's devastating pass combination of quarterback Mike Moroski and wide receiver Steve Hoog have locked up the passing and receiving titles, and Hoog appears also to have won the scoring crown. Last Saturday against Terra Linda, Moroski threw for 233 yards and two touchdowns, giving him a final total of 834 and eight.

Hoog caught four for 64 and scored twice to finish with 466 yards on 29 catches and seven touchdowns, five on passes and two on runs.

MVP Garvey Wields A 'Big Stick'

Despite not even being listed on the All Star ballot this season and thus making the team as a "write-in," Garvey rapidly proved himself as one of the most dangerous hitters in the National League. As it was, his two hits, one run scored, one run-batted-in and two outstanding defensive plays earned him MVP of the All Star Game.

The NL MVP award also culminated a true "rags to riches" saga inasmuch as Garvey almost had no future in the game as recently as two years ago when his fielding lapses at third base made him a "man without a position" with the Dodgers.

But the switch to first proved to be the finishing touch in Garvey's boyhood dream back in Tampa, Fla. of someday playing with the Dodgers. In those days, he would ride the Dodgers' team bus (driven by his father) around to the various spring training sites.

Brock, who broke Maury Wills' seemingly unbreakable stolen base mark of 104, was generally considered a shoo-in for the MVP after coupling the record steals with a .306 average and 105 runs scored. The Cardinal speedster evidentally felt so too after abruptly calling and then cancelling a press conference yesterday.

Marshall, the Dodgers' "direct contrast" to Garvey as far as press relations are concerned, received one first place vote after his Cy Young award season that included a record 106 appearences and 21 saves with a 15-12 won-lost mark.

Bench, a two-time MVP winner, had 33 homers along with his league-leading 129 rbis, while Wynn, one of baseball's biggest comeback stories of '74, was the only NL outfielder to hit 30 homers (32) and drive in more than 100 runs (108).

Speedy Branch Greatly Improved

OAKLAND (UPI) — Cliff Branch, who started the Oakland Raiders season at second string is still second — second in the American Football League in receptions, that is.

He has caught 39 passes, four less than Baltimore workhorse Lydell Mitchell. But Branch's catches have been good for 730 yards and eight touchdowns, while Mitchell, a running back, has gained 318 yards with no touchdowns.

Branch was drafted high in 1972 but dropped a touchdown pass in his opening National Football League game. Mike Siani replaced him, caught two touchdown passes, and put Branch on the bench.

This situation continued through 1973 as Fred Biletnikoff had 48 catches, Siani 45 and Branch, playing only occasionally, had 19. But Siani got hurt this season and Branch grabbed his chance as firmly as he has grabbed just about every pass thrown his way this season.

Branch holds the world indoor best of 9.3 seconds for 100 yards and has beaten Bob Hayes in head-to-head matches at exhibition meets.

PRO BASKETBALL

'Good Laugh' For Celtics

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Tom Heinsohn said the Boston Celtics got a "good laugh" out of their first-half performance last night.

But there wasn't anybody laughing over in the Milwaukee Bucks' dressing room.

The Bucks blew a 19-point lead and dropped their ninth consecutive game 91-83 to the Celtics.

The Celtics had scored only seven points in the first quarter —going without a point for the first 5½ minutes. They scored only 36 in the half but still trailed only 43-36 when they went into the locker room after the Bucks had led 38-19 midway through the period.

"I was beginning to wonder if we would ever score a basket," Heinsohn said. "But we had a good laugh during the half and came out and won the game."

It wasn't easy but the Celtics outscored Milwaukee 33-20 in the third period to take a 69-63 lead. The Bucks came back and took a 78-75 lead with just 7:34 left.

But then it happened. What is becoming known as the "Veer that made Milwaukee Famous."

The Bucks, who had been playing well though they are still without star center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, suddenly began going in the opposite direction. They began missing good shots and taking bad shots and missing those.

The Celtics scored seven points in a row and outscored Milwaukee 16-5 the rest of the way to coast in to victory.

In other National Basketball Association games, Buffalo beat Cleveland 112-94, Chicago downed New Orleans 88-79, Houston topped Kansas City-Omaha 103-99, Golden State whipped Atlanta 128-111 and Portland edged the New York Knicks 105-103. In American Basketball Association play, San Antonio stopped Virginia 109-92 and San Diego defeated Memphis 113-104.

Braves 112, Cavaliers 94

Bob McAdoo, the NBA's leading scorer, collected 32 points and 23 rebounds to lead Buffalo past Cleveland. Austin Carr scored 28 for the Cavaliers.

Bulls 88, Jazz 79

Chet Walker's 30 points helped Chicago overcome a sloppy first half and hand the Jazz its 12th loss in 13 games. Pete Maravich led New Orleans with 27.

Rockets 103, Kings 99

Rudy Tomjanovich's two free throws and Calvin Murphy's basket put the game out of reach for Houston. Mike Newlin led the Rockets with 25 points while Nate Archibald had 27 for the Kings.

Blazers 105, Knicks 103

Sidney Wicks and John Johnson combined for 30 points in the fourth quarter to lead Portland over New York.

Spurs 109, Squires 92

Q's 113, Sounds 104

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Life Preservers Do Save Lives

Boating fatalities this year appear to be running behind last year's figures, probably due to the fuel shortage which reduced boating activity early in the summer. This is good news because 1973 set a record. There were 1,754 fatalities.

In looking over the available statistics of fatalities, I find that life jackets figure in the accidents only in one way — nobody seems to be wearing one in an emergency.

It appears that life preservers are things boaters buy, because the law requires that there must be one aboard for each passenger. But seldom does anyone think very seriously about them.

A life jacket is like a parachute. You may go through your entire life and never need one. But if you ever do, you need it very, very badly. Here are some excerpts from letters received on this and related safety topics.

Q. What does the Coast Guard approval on a life preserver or buoyant vest really signify?

A. The whole idea is to set up standards upon whichthe public can rely. An approved life preserver is one you can depend on if you treat it right. If you are stopped and inspected, only "approved" life preservers are counted.

Q. In buying a life preserver, what's the most important consideration?

A. I would say proper fit . . . and the best way to get this is with a try-out. Remember the thing which a life preserver must do above all . . . it must keep the wearer's nose and mouth out of water if the wearer becomes unconscious. Even in warm waters, it's not difficult to lose consciousness due to exposure. In northern latitudes, this transcends all other considerations.

Q. Safety experts say "stay with the boat" if you are swamped. But how do you hang on to one of these smooth, slick plastic boats if they are floating upside down?

A. It's difficult. You might be able to clasp hands over the top. A lot of such boats have spray rails or rubbing strips to provide hand holds for emergency. Since I was dumped the first time, I have always carried a six-foot length of rope just casually tied somewhere in the boat. It can be reached in an emergency and there's alwasy some way to use it to stay fastened to the boat.

Q. My boat was damaged on account of high water. Can I sue somebody?

A. Since this happened on the Great Lakes, you can sue the U.S. government, the Canadian government, or both. Since a treaty of 1909, they are the two bodies who have tampered with the water supply into and out of the Great Lakes, or have given permission for others to tamper with it. From the past performance of others who have tried, however, I'd say you won't get anywhere.

49ers Are Favorites In Chicago

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Despite a seven game losing streak, the San Francisco 49ers are favored to win in odds posted yesterday by the Harrah's Tahoe Racebook.

In key National Football League games, Miami is a 12-point choice to defeat Buffalo in their battle for first place in the American Football Conference East, and Washington is a two-point pick over Dallas in the National Football Conference East.

In games involving Bay Area college teams, California is a 14-point choice over Washington State, and Stanford is 10 over Oregon.

Olga Wows Crowd At Cow Palace

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Olga Korbut wowed a capacity Cow Palace crowd of 13,139 last night as she led the Russian gymnasts through an exhibition performance.

About two dozen pickets outside protested Soviet treatment of Jews but there were only cheers for the Russian gymnasts inside.

Another highlight of the show was the performance of husband-wife team Yuri and Galina Saveliev, who performed in the mixed acrobatics event they introduced at the recent World Games.

NEW AAU PRESIDENT SAYS

U.S. Athletes Should Be Given Salaries

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — The new president of the Amateur Athletic Union said yesterday U.S. athletes should be paid salaries while competing internationally.

Joseph R. Scalzo, Toledo, told a news conference that Eastern European countries pay their athletes in international competition and that the U.S. should offer the same incentives.

Scalzo, a former U.S. Olympic wrestling coach and now a business executive, said his proposal to business, industry and other segments of U.S. society was "a challenge to the free enterprize system" in competition with the socialist world.

"The American athlete who takes part 2-3 months every year in international competition can't make it without pay," Scalzo said.

"Close to half of our athletes don't even try out under these circumstances," he added. "I'm challenging industry and the private sector to join us in this effort."

He said his plan will make the free enterprise system "equal to the socialistic countries we compete against."

"I believe a program like this will be approved by one company after the other," Scalzo predicted.

He said his firm, Sun Oil Co., of Toledo, has become the first large company to subscribe to his plan.

Harry Trump was the most reasonable of bridge guests.
He demanded only two things.
New cards and Early Times.
Emil Frostbutt knew this.
On September 28, 1972, the cards in Frostbutt's posh game room were still in the cellophane.
But the bourbon.....
for some never-to-be-determined reason, Frostbutt had not ordered Early Times.
That night, for the first time in years, Emil Frostbutt played bridge without Harry.

Higher Broker Fee Upsetting

By DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. I have dealt with the same broker for many years. Recently I discovered that his firm charged me more than the minimum commission. Was he obligated to tell me that his firm charged more than some others? — J.B.

A. At the present time a minimum-rate system is in effect on transactions in the $2,000 to $300,000 range. This does not provent brokers from charging more than minimum, if feasible. Below $2,000, rates are set competitively; above $300,000, rates are negotiated. After May 1, 1975, however, all rates are to be competitive, according to SEC plans.

While your broker may have been ethically negligent, he had no legal obligation to inform you of his firm's fee policy. He simply passed the buck back to his customer in the time-honored tradition of "caveat emptor."

Q. Please discuss government bonds which are used to pay estate taxes. — B.G.

A. The bouquet of "flower bonds" grows ever smaller with each passing season, but their value in estate planning grows ever brighter. These U.S. Treasury bonds are eligible to be applied, at par, against estate tax liability regardless of purchase price. None has been issued in about ten years, thus the list shrinks as they reach maturity. The idea is to buy these bonds at relatively deep discounts to take maximum advantage of this tax break. Some have relatively good current yields as well, adding to their attractiveness.

The bonds must be held by decedent at the time of his death, but the tax privilege is not affected by acquisition in anticipation of death. All such bonds held by an estate which are used at par value to pay federal estate taxes must also be included in the gross estate at par even if still selling at discount. Any held in excess of tax liability may be valued at market. For near maximum estate tax benefits with comparatively good current yields the 4¼s of 1975-85, the 4s of 1988-93 and 4⅛s of 1989-94 are attractive. Trading at discounts of more than 25 per cent, they provide current yields of more than 5½ per cent.

Silver Prices

NEW GOODYEAR STORE

Stocks Turn Mixed After Lower Opening

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices turned mixed after a lower opening today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange, where investors were uncertain about the length of a nationwide coal strike.

Steels and coal mining issues, which plunged yesterday when the United Mine Workers went on strike, rebounded on hopes negotiators for the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association might reach an agreement soon.

U.S. Steel, which said it planned to lay off 13,700 workers and close down 17 blast furnaces, Eastern Fuel & Gas and Pittston each gained a point. Selling yesterday accelerated when U.S. Steel announced its plans.

Wall Street has grown deeply concerned about the length of the strike, which many observers had predicted would be a short one. Once a settlement is reached, rank and file members must approve it — a process UMW officials said would take around 10 days.

If they reject a settlement, the strike would be prolonged and seriously disrupt the nation's economy.

Old Uncle Gaylord's Ice Cream Shop Sets San Rafael Opening

Old Uncle Gaylord's, San Francisco-based manufacturer of old-fashioned ice cream, will open its San Rafael shop tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 with ribbon-cutting by Mayor C. Paul Bettini.

Opening ceremonies will include the dedication of the mini-park, which was created at the site of an old abandoned service station at 1700 Fourth Street, corner of G Street. The company tore up the asphalt and planted a garden with benches, shade trees, brick walkways, and a statuary to highlight the garden setting.

Brian Hunter, vice president of sales, announced he will have an old-fashioned hand-crank ice cream maker to serve free ice cream to guests.

Managing the store will be David Rand, who also manages Old Uncle Gaylord's in Mill Valley. The ice cream shop will be open seven days a week from noon to midnight.

JACK T. MORRIS of Novato has been promoted to manager of Wells Fargo Bank's Greenbrae office. He succeeds Philip Reid, who was named assistant vice president and manager of the bank's 725 Irving Street office, San Francisco.

Morris was formerly assistant manager of the Columbus Avenue office in San Francisco. He joined Wells Fargo in 1959 with eight years of previous banking experience and served with the bank's Marin Auto Contract Center where he was promoted to credit officer in 1968 and assistant manager in 1970.

Morris Hidvegi

STEVE HIDVEGI, formerly of Novato, was named national sales training director for the Combined Insurance Co. of America, Chicago.

Hidvegi, 35, will be responsible for coordinating the company's training activities in the United States, working with instructors and writing new educational programs.

MARIN TEACHERS STORE, specializing in teaching aids and guides for both teachers and parents, hopes to open by this weekend at 114 Alto Street in San Rafael, next to Sub Hut restaurant.

Owners of the new store are William and Barbara Dittman of San Rafael, both educators. Dittman got his teaching credentials at San Francisco State in 1969 and has taught in both San Francisco and Bolinas. His wife has been a teacher in San Rafael for six years.

"We will have teachers' guides, how-to-do it books for teachers and parents, task cards, and games," said Mrs. Dittmann. "We plan to have a big selection of manipulatives — balances, cubes for counting, and other items for children to work with their hands."

Marin Teachers Store will be open from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays.

BOB BENSON BUICK-Pontiac-Opel-GMC Trucks will celebrate its grand opening in Petaluma on Friday and Saturday this week with champagne and a display of the new Buick Skyhawks and Pontiac Astres.

Bob Benson, who lives at Bodega Bay, took over the former George Buick-Pontiac Inc. at 822 Petaluma Boulevard. Benson also operates Santa Rosa Mazda and the California Auto Leasing Co. in Santa Rosa. He just sold Silveira Buick-Pontiac in Healdsburg, which he had operated for six years.

Benson has been in the automobile field for 10 years, including five years with General Motors as Northern California district manager.

THE CLOTHESLINE apparel shop at 821 Francisco Boulevard West in San Rafael, next to Graham's Lumber and Hardware Co., will close at the end of this year after four years of operation. The shop is now conducting a special close-out sale, with items reduced by 30 per cent.

John Graham Sr., who heads both the lumber company and the clothing store, said he plans to expand his lumber and hardware business into the space vacated by The Clothesline. Employees who run the apparel shop will join the staff of Graham's Lumber and Hardware Co. at 825 Francisco Boulevard West.

BEACOCK & MAXSON Realtors in Corte Madera announced two new additions to its sales staff — John Smith of Tiburon and Julie Wilson of Larkspur.

Smith, a retired lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Air Force, was formerly with the Upjohn Company. He has been a Tiburon resident for eight years. Ms. Wilson formerly worked for World Airways Inc.

DR. AND MRS. MARK BORRIS of Tiburon are back from Bermuda, where the doctor participated in a series of seminars for optometrists, sponsored by the American Optical Corp. Dr. Morris practices in San Rafael.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Election Shows Falsity Of 'One Man, One Vote'

The falsity of the notion that "one man, one vote" automatically produces fairer representation was proved again in the election of Peter H. Behr as state senator from the new Second District.

This is not said to disparage Senator Behr. He has represented his Marin neighbors well, which is why they gave him such overwhelming support at the polls that he won reelection despite running behind his opponent in all the five other counties in the district.

It is this pattern that proves the point.

BEHR HAD NOTHING to do with the reapportionment plan which lumped Marin with Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Lake and most of Sonoma. He opposed it.

The former Fourth District, which elected Behr four years ago, was made up of Marin, Napa and Solano — counties that all border the bay and have common problems and common interests.

There is little community of interest between Marin and Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Lake, or even the northern part of Sonoma County.

The former Fourth District had the necessary population. The boundaries were not changed because it failed to meet the "one-man, one-vote" standard. But some other districts failed to fall within the arbitrary allowance of population difference that our eminent justices, in the infinite wisdom to be gained only from pondering points of law, have decreed is necessary to provide fair representation.

And so, to correct those alleged inequities, a task force redistricted the state, and in the process created several sprawling districts where "one man, one vote" becomes a mockery — the new Second Senatorial District among them.

The result is that Napa and Solano have lost an effective state senator. Del Norte, Humbolt, Mendocino and Lake have no resident voice in the upper house of the legislature. Although Behr will try his best to understand their needs and problems, he is actually an outsider striving to represent interests he cannot hope to fully comprehend.

The fact is that fair representation cannot be based solely on the head count. To do so deprives some areas of representation.

A SIMILAR situation exists in Marin County.

The Fourth Supervisorial District, which contained a very small percentage of the county's population, was expanded 10 years ago to comply with a court order. The expansion was done without any regard for community of interest. Further, it put three cities into the ridiculous position of each being split between two supervisorial districts: San Rafael, Larkspur, and Corte Madera.

As a result, San Rafael came up with two county supervisors in the next election: John F. McInnis and Louis H. Baar. And because the board did not want to re-district Baar out of office, the idiotic district boundaries were allowed to stand.

The reason for them disappeared with election of Gary T. Giacomini of the San Geronimo Valley to present the Fourth District.

We in Marin County can do nothing about idiotic reapportionment of state legislative districts. But we can do something about proper districting of our own county.

We suggest the board of supervisors get busy on it now.

New Growth Study Calls For Investing In 'Have-Nots'

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy, food, development, resource scarcity, population — the world seems buffeted by an increasingly tangled web of crises.

Rarely, however, were the crises ever approached interdependently. Even now, politicians tend to treat such phenomena as the world food shortage and rising oil prices as isolated unrelated problems capable of separate solutions.

TWO YEARS AGO, however, the publication of a little paperback book drily entitled "The Limits to Growth" shattered many of the assumptions commonly held about world development and its impact on the future.

"Limits to Growth," a report based on computer projection done for Club of Rome — an international, independent, nongovernmental group of experts in global economics and developments — urged an immediate slowdown in world economic growth, suggesting that to continue growth at present levels was to invite global catastrophe.

That book sparked an international debate among scholars, scientists, economists, industrialists and theologians, both on the substance of its arguments and on its methodology — the use of computer projects to deterine long-range world developments.

THE CLUB OF ROME, sometimes called the "hidden college" because of the informal nature of membership, has issued a new report, a more sophisticated and elaborate study using a much more complicated computer program than did "The Limits to Growth."

And it comes up with some startling differences from the earlier work, although they are not differences that allow anyone, especially in the developed world, to sit back and let things go on as they are.

The new study, entitled "Mankind at the Turning Point" argues that instead of the no-growth policy suggested by the earlier book, humankind needs to develop a kind of "organic" economic growth, that is, controlled growth much like the growth of the human body.

"Growth for growth's sake in the sense of ever increasing numbers and larger size simply cannot continue forever," the study says. It argues that the present "undifferentiated growth is assuming truly cancerous qualities in some parts of the world" while "the very existence of man is threatened daily in some other part by lack of growth..."

AS ONE EXAMPLE, it said its computer projections suggest the need for as much as $250 billion worth of investment in the less developed world if the planet is to stave off economic and political upheaval.

If the developed world fails to make that investment in the less developed countries, it warns, "there will be a thousand desperadoes terrorizing those who are now 'rich,' and eventually nuclear blackmail and terror will paralyze further orderly development.

"Ten or 20 years from today it will probably be too late, and then even a hundred Kissingers, constantly crisscrossing the globe on peace missions, could not prevent the world from falling into the abyss of a nuclear holocaust."

But to move in the direction of a recognition of global economic and ecological interdependence requires political and social decisions politicians seem loath to confront. Thus, during last year's oil boycott, both sides acted with alternating petulance and belligerency rather than with an eye on the long term effects.

"Mankind at the Turning Point," certain to be debated as widely as "Limits to Growth," argues nations can no longer afford to do that.

People Want Wage And Price Controls Now

WASHINGTON — Hundreds of relieved politicians are patting themselves on the back this week as they rest up from campaigning, telling their husbands and wives how wonderfully attuned they are to what all the people out there are thinking. More than half of them are dreaming.

They were right, most of them, in somehow divining that the voters are upset about inflation and recession. They were wrong, in large part, in assuming that what the public wants done about it is more of the same — which means very little, if anything.

The public wants strong action, not prolonged debate about whether the level of jawboning against high prices should be turned up one notch or two. And unlike the theologians who prescribe economic dogma for the administration, the public cares not a whit for what some medieval philosopher said about free markets back when the most complicated economic problem was the price of siege catapults.

IN SHORT, the public wants wage and price controls in the United States, now.

If there ever was doubt about this, it was buried Election Day when NBC took one of the most extensive opinion surveys ever conducted. It asked some 8,000 voters as they left their balloting places how they felt about key issues.

On wage-price controls, the verdict was 52 per cent for, 31 per cent against, and 17 per cent no opinion.

This is a wider split than between the total vote for Democratic and Republican congressional candidates. And if the official vote qualified as a landslide for the Democrats, what does the accompanying poll mean for controls?

Try "avalanche."

NEVERTHELESS, leading up to that very same balloting, CBS also took a poll on the subject. It asked Congressmen and candidates rather than voters. Members of the outgoing Congress came down against giving the president power to impose controls, by 57 per cent to 43 per cent. The incoming members are for such power, but just barely: 51 per cent to 49 per cent.

Which demonstrates for the extieth time that the politicians are dragging 'way behind the public. Fortunately, the new Congress has time to reflect on the informal surveys before it comes to town to turn its beliefs into formal legislation.

Other political figures are nimbler, which may be why they stay in office longer. George Meany, for example. Back when Nixon's Phase II controls were starting to work, both the AFL-CIO president and the captains of industry were urging their abandonment. Nixon and his medicine men were afraid that when the people realized controls were working they would clamor to continue them indefinitely. Meany was against controls because wages were restrained much more than prices.

So controls were lifted and, just as predicted, wages and especially prices shot up, and are still ascending. This inevitable effect is the best reason the mumbo-jumboists can offer for opposing controls in the first place: It's not that they don't work but that they do, and afterward you get a rebound upward.

THE DOMINANT THEORISTS of the Nixon-Ford era never have considered keeping controls on long enough to have more than temporary effect, and then easing them very gradually during periods when inflationary pressure is low, and even then keeping them ready for reimposition at a moment's notice. That is against their religion.

But it is not against Meany's. He favors controls today, but this time he wants them to affect everyone, not just his wage earners. He wants controls on prices, dividends and profits — and if all those, then wages, too. With him it is not dogma but expediency.

So it is with nearly two-thirds of the public, according to the polls above. When things are under control, voters are willing to coast along with the laissez-faire economists. But when they bound out of control, then they believe it is time to control them by law.

The people say that time is now. And since politicians are not quite as thick as folklore makes them, the people's message is going to sink in here early next year.

Rural Californians Suffer From Poor Health Care System

(Reprinted from Santa Rosa Press-Democrat)

Organized health care in rural sections of the Redwood Empire and elsewhere in California is sadly lacking.

That was a clear conclusion resulting from a recent two-day meeting on rural health in Lake County.

Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, chairman of the Assembly Health Committee, left the meeting deeply disturbed. Said Keene:

"THE FIJI ISLANDS has a better organized health care delivery system than we have in rural California.

"It is apparent that our chief problem is lack of adequate coordination of manpower and financial resources."

Keene describes the dilemma as a three-layered one:

"FIRST, THERE IS a great lack of resources in manpower and funding in rural areas. Second, the traditional approach has been to finance health care through private insurance and public assistance (Medi-Cal), without significantly affecting the fragmented and unorganized system itself. This creates a legitimate demand for care on doctors, hospitals, clinics and others who are severely undermanned and not well coordinated.

"Third, there are many people living in rural areas who have special health care needs: senior citizens, native Americans, farm workers and others."

We are applying aspirin and Band-Aids to our rural health problems. What we need is a major operation.

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"Congress will be composed of men who were defeated in the late annihilation. That is, it will be composed of what is known as 'Lame Ducks'. That's a man who has been defeated and still holds office.

"There is no other business in the world that allows a man to work after he is fired, except politics. Politics is different from other business; in fact, it is different from anything. So, plainly speaking, a 'Lame Duck' is a politician who has had his salary shot from under him. Now you know that a man who already knows he is fired is not any too cheerful a bird to get along with in the way of getting through any kind of constructive legislation. He goes home the minute it is over and for the next four years complains of the frauds and the injustices of the present system." — Nov. 16, 1924.

The only things that have to be said about your recent (Nov. 9) editorial on the definition of Ecology are:

(1) Bravo! and (2) It's too bad that organizations such as ours have failed in our educational efforts, making your lucid explanation necessary.

Hahn Threats Won't Change Corte Madera

Ernest Hahn who wants to develop a huge shopping center in Corte Madera is rattling sabers again with his latest threat to sue the town (I-J, Nov. 8). Hahn has brought enormous pressure against the council, but the people have expressed their opposition to Hahn and his center in one recall election and two council elections.

The people's opposition is founded on first-hand knowledge of our town. Hahn says the committee to study the financial impace of the center was stacked. Hahn doesn't know the people chosen for the committee so he wouldn't know that the council conscientiously appointed equal numbers for and against the center.

The people know that many of our local businesses will breathe their last at the opening of any new center. They have seen what has happened to existing businesses on the opening of new centers. Hahn wouldn't have to see the ruins. He'd be long gone by that time.

Make all the threats you want, Mr. Hahn, but if there is any justice and democracy left, your threats won't succeed in making another Concord out of Corte Madera.

Over-Expanded Credit Responsible For Inflation

Re: Your editorial of Nov. 5:

There is very little chance that the public ownership of gold will have any effect whatsoever on inflation. Paper money or specie money plays a very minor part in our economy. As credits are expanded to the present extent and beyond, and, as long as goods and services can be bought and paid for by credit instruments, public ownership of gold will have no effect on the lowering or raising of the prices of merchandise and services. The proper course to take is to contract the superstructure of credit to a point where it can be safely maintained under normal distribution of the world's gold supply . . .

The first issue of assignats were notes secured by a pledge of productive real estate and bearing interest at three percent. No irredeemable currency had ever claimed a more scientific and practical guarantee for its goodness. However, the land that secured the notes had been confiscated from the church and no one would purchase because of their fear that title to the land would not be supportable.

Furthermore, to quote Tallyrand, "You can, indeed, arrange it so people shall be forced to take a thousand livres in paper for a thousand livres in specie; but you can never arrange it so a man shall be obliged to give a thousand livres in specie for a thousand livres in paper, in that fact is embedded the entire question; and on account of the fact the whole system fails."

Both Parties Avoid Reform In Choosing Vice President

WASHINGTON — The Republican and Democratic parties are still fumbling a political issue which cannot safely be left in limbo much longer:

When are both parties going to end their casual, careless, irresponsible method of nominating vice presidential candidates which has done so much harm in recent years?

From my own mail it is clear that many Americans are acutely unhappy by the fact that we have a president who was never elected to the presidency or the vice presidency and also a vice president-designate who was never elected to that office.

This only manifests how aware the nation is that the vice president has become an important factor and an important figure in the functioning of the federal government.

THE HEART of the matter is that, in the two most recent presidential elections, we have had three flawed vice presidential nominations — Spiro Agnew in 1968 and 1972 and Sen. Thomas Eagleton in 1972.

All three nominations were brought about by concealment and by the grievous failure of the parties and the conventions to do anything to penetrate that concealment.

Agnew's concealment of his criminal past was finally exposed by U.S. attorneys and caused his resignation. Eagleton's concealment of his medical background was exposed by the press and caused Sen. George McGovern to drop him from the ticket. Obviously the facts which Agnew was hiding were far more offensive than Eagleton's, but in each instance the successful concealment was intolerable.

SO FAR NEITHER party is doing anything adequate to prevent these things from happening again.

The Republican Party leaders are talking but not doing anything. The Democratic Party leaders are making a modest start; but at this stage their best proposal looks as though it were being so watered down as to end up more form than substance.

The problem is how the parties can effectively screen vice presidential candidates before the conventions are called upon to ram through the nomination during the last 36 weary hours.

Obviously preconvention investigation is the only way to do it. A national Democratic commission recognized this when it adopted the proposal of one of its members, Hans A. Linde, professor law at the University of Oregon. He advocated that, well before the convention, a blue-ribbon party committee collect "factual information publicly available" and deliver it to the presidential nominee.

IT SEEMS TO ME that this moves about an inch in the right direction. Whatever potential candidates want to conceal simply isn't "publicly available," not in the case of Agnew, not in the case of Eagleton, and not likely in any other case in the future.

Further County Plan Studies Prove Anne Ellinwood Right

More than two years ago, a Tiburon city councilman, economist, and ardent supporter of the fledgling county general plan sent a ripple through the Civic Center when she announced: "I predict the plan won't fly."

"This plan was developed in the groves of academe," Anne L. Ellinwood told county supervisors. "It overlooks the realities of today."

Thus far, Miss Ellinwood has been right. The plan has barely revved its motor, let alone get off the ground.

HER COMMENTS two years ago centered on an as-yet-unresolved contradiction in the plan — that of preserving the county's environment and its socio-economic balance through growth control.

On one hand, she said, the plan calls for preserving massive amounts of open space, while on the other it promises "social balance" through low and moderate-cost housing.

The two conflict, she continued, since with less land available for development — because of zoning and governmental acquisition — the cost of housing will mount even higher in an already inflated market.

The contradiction deepens when the "realities of today" are added, such as high-cost construction and mortgage loans and Marin Municipal Water District's no-growth philosophy.

"Maybe we should admit we are the Westchester County of the Bay Area and a snobocracy" rather than continue with promises of social balance, she challenged supervisors.

The board let her comments pass, but subsequently hired an economic consultant who concluded, among other things, that controlled growth will inflate the cost of housing to the detriment of low and middle-income families.

NEXT TUESDAY, supervisors will begin to wrestle with the contradiction as they begin discussions on the consultant's "economic impact report" and various community reactions to it.

One reaction will be from the economic committee of the City-County Planning Council of Marin.

Among the committee's eight conclusions is one that the general plan's restrictions on new growth should be softened.

It says, in part, that "actions which restrict housing may avoid disruption (of the environment) . . . but will not encourage social and economic diversity. Instead they will disrupt the socio-economic makeup of the population, favoring those with higher incomes and causing a shift toward an older and wealthier population."

It adds later: "As the consultant has stated, the pricing out of the housing market of low and moderate income families is Marin's most serious economic and social problem.

"The committee feels that Marin County should set its mind to the protection of the environment by means other than those which will make the environment available only to those with increasingly high incomes."

National Guard Will Help In Lake Nutrients Study

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today announced the California National Guard will participate in a study of "potentially serious" excesses of nutrients in California lakes.

The troops will collect samples during the next year from 98 tributaries feeding into 29 lakes.

It will be part of a national program by the Environmental Protection Agency to study the effects of fertilizer runoff, industrial wastes and residential sewage on the water quality.

Called eutrophication, excess nutrients can cause an overgrowth of plants that eventually fill in lakes, killing fish and reducing the recreation value of the water.

The nationwide study will cost about $10,000 per lake. Brig. Gen. Robert S. Johnson, deputy adjutant general of the California National Guard, said guardsmen will take samples.

California lakes under study include Iron Gate, Pillsbury, Lower Klamath, Mendocino, Hennessey, Nicasio, Santa Margarita, Lopez, Casitas, Britton, Amador, Tulloch Pedro, Shaver and Upper and Lower Twin Lakes.

Others are Topaz, Crowley, Mary, Silver, Fallen Leaf, Boca, Elsinore, Irvine, Lower Otay, Henshaw, Tahoe, Havasu and Shasta.

3 Stores Deny Price-Fixing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three prestigious Fifth Avenue department stores pleaded innocent Tuesday to price-fixing charges.

The three, Saks & Co., Bergdorf Goodman and Bonwit Teller, were accused of undermining competition in the sale of women's clothing. No date was set for trial in Manhatan Federal Court.

The three stores, which sold $70 million of goods in 1972, were indicted last month on charges of conspiring for the past five years to establish uniform retail prices.

Russia Main Culprit In World Food Crisis

By ROY D. LAIRD
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LAWRENCE, Kan. — If it does nothing else, the World Food Conference (now being held in Rome) will underline the fact that mankind is on the verge of a major, perhaps a catastrophic, food crisis. Most probably, however, no one will say that to the degree that human error is at fault, the Soviet Union is a major culprit.

Of course the problem has a Janus face. Overpopulation is a critical factor, but so is the failure of nations to exploit their food-producing potential. The USSR is such a nation.

At a time when the vast Soviet farmalnds could be producing more than enough food for domestic needs, the USSR has been importing massive quantities of grain.

Weather problems are a key factor, but beyond uncontrollable natural causes, there have been faulty Soviet agricultural policies.

One to one, Soviet and United States comparisons of yields per acre are unfair. Soviet and Canadian comparisons are not unfair. Take wheat, for example, the major grain. Soviet yields per acre continue to lag more than 30 per cent behind those achieved in Canada. Thus, for the years 1970-72 the Canadians maintained an average wheat yield of 26.3 bushels per acre, while Soviet yields were only 17.7 bushels per acre.

During the five-year period 1968-1972 average annual Soviet production of all grains was 173.6 million metric tons. Had the Russians met Canadian yield standards, their annual production would have been some 231 million tons, enough for their own needs.

A stifling ideology, bad politics and (especially in the past) poor economics are the combined causes of the Soviet agricultural plight.

Under Leonid Brezhnev much has been accomplished on the economic front. Even though considerably more is needed (i.e., Soviet fields still receive only about half the levels of fertilizer applied to American fields), there is good reason to believe that investments will approach desirable levels in a few more years.

Indeed, reversing the Stalinist policy of raping the countryside for capital to support industrial development, the current leadership is now pouring massive subsidies into agriculture, probably nearing 20 billion rubles annually.

Nevertheless, no amount of investment will solve the problem of lagging peasant incentives to produce, which are directly linked to the collectivized system of farming.

The collectivization story is complex, but at the heart of the matter is the fact that in the name of Marxism-Leninism, Soviet leaders continue to impose grossly inefficient, impossibly huge farms on the peasants. Most key decisions rest in the hands of a director. As Western studies have underlined, failure to act promptly in face of disease or adverse weather can result in the loss of animals or a crop.

America's own past research has suggested that system losses alone reduce Soviet grain yields below their potential by some 18 per cent.

In 1970 American farmers produced 102 kilograms of meat per capita, while the Soviets (with more land under cultivation) produced only 51 kilograms. Their leading health authorities state that the average annual consumption of meat should be 82 kilograms per capita. This explains why their attempted 1974 U.S. purchase was largely for feed corn.

The average American farmer cultivates 5.5 times as much land, and produces 12 times as much grain and 14 times as much meat as does his Soviet counterpart.

The Soviet agricultural sins have complex roots. Nevertheless, by any measure, the farming system imposed on the Soviet countryside is the most irresponsible, extremely wasteful enterprise imaginable.

Man's Impact On His World To Be Studied

By MONTY HOYT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A global network of protected natural areas is being established by more than a dozen nations to monitor, study, and report on man's impact on the world environment. Within the next year, some 50 to 60 countires are expected to have designated "biosphere reserves" as part of this UNESCO-sponsored program, called Man and the Biosphere (MAB).

The biosphere is the thin, life-supporting layer of the earth's surface.

So far, the United States has named 20 large, diversified natural areas as reserves; other participating countries include Britain, France, the Soviet Union, Austria, Brazil, the Philippines, Malaysia, Thailand, Indonesia, Poland, Australia, and Senegal.

"Biosphere reserves will be experimental areas where studies are conducted of living, changing plant and animal systems, how they relate to each other, and how man's activities offset and are affected by them," Christian A. Herter Jr., special assistant for environmental affairs for the U.S. Secretary of State, told MAB delegates at a recent planning conference in Washington.

"The biosphere reserve program is only one of the MAB projects, but a very important one," stresses Michel Bastisse, UNESCO's director of the Department of Environmental Science and Natural Resources research.

Other related fields of study include all major types of natural areas —tropical and temperate forests, coastal zones, mountains and tundra, grasslands, island ecosystems and deserts, as well as urban systems and the impact of fertilizers, pesticides, man-made structures, and pollution.

In selecting the U.S. biosphere reserves, an effort was made to set aside a full, representative range of natural areas from Arctic tundra to deserts. Both pristine and man-modified areas were chosen.

The reserves, consequently, serve two purposes: Havens for plant and animal species, and protected genetic pools that allow continuing evolution and scientific workshops to record the rates of change and learn more about methods of speeding environmental recovery.

Most of the U.S.-designated reserves are either national parks or experimental forests managed by the Departments of the Interior and Agriculture.

The largest world reserve eventually may be in the Amazon region of Brazil, where some 54,000 square miles (an area the size of Florida) is already protected as part of a national environmental plan. Brazilian representatives have indicated that biosphere reserves may soon be established in this area.

After three years of planning with 72 nations taking part, several international cooperative reserch and educational training programs are being launched. Multinational teams are studying tropical forest problems in Malaysia; Mediterranean countries are planning grassland research projects; Latin-American nations are looking at grazing management problems in the Andes.

Bakery Files For Creditors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Larraburu Brothers, one of San Francisco's oldest bakeries, has filed a petition under bankruptcy laws after creditors panicked following a $1.9 million judgment against the bakery.

The Superior Court jury judgment last month favored Terry Lee Spears, 6, who was blinded and paralyzed after he was hit by a Larraburu truck in 1972.

Bakery president Harold Paul Jr., said Tuesday the company's creditors staged a run on the business when they heard of the verdict. So the bakery filed a petition under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy laws, which gives the old firm added time to meet its obligations.

New Recreation Classes To Start

Yoga, guitar, tennis, dance, Christmas crafts and judo are some of the classes offered beginning Monday in the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department fall program.

A "Discovery Center" for youths aged 7 to 10, and a Tiny Tot program weekday mornings also are planned.
